England Scraps Ratio Treaties; Navy Race Seen

Experts Forecast World Competition in Wake of Announcement.

Sir Bolton Draws Fire of Laborites

Assailed in Commons for Baring Construction Plans to Germany.

By the United Press.

London, July 22.—Britain today turned her back on the whole system of international naval arms limitations in effect since the World War. She announced abandonment of the ratio system founded by the Washington Treaty of 1922 and continued through the London Treaty of 1930.

Ratios, such as the 5—5—3 apportionment between the United States, Great Britain and Japan, will go by the board, although they were defended by Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, first lord of the admiralty.

He faced bitter criticism from the opposition in Commons for revealing Britain's naval construction plans to Germany and for negotiating the Anglo-German naval treaty.

Failure to provide a substitute for the ratio system, experts believe, would precipitate an unrestricted international naval arms construction race.

Lloyd George Joins Debate.

"You mean we are dropping ratios altogether?" he asked Sir Bolton.

"Yes," the first lord replied. "We can not go on with the ratios because some countries do not like them. So we go in stages—let us have a conference in 1942 and then try some other arrangement."

Defending the Washington Treaty, but admitting its ratios will be abandoned, he said:

"Many have heard things said of the naval pacts but nothing but good can be said of the Washington treaty. It benefited all naval powers enormously, prevented races for naval armaments, cut down expenditures and maintained peace during the last 15 years because of the ratios.

Proposes Other Methods.

"They provided a standard of strength for appropriate defensive needs of the powers concerned. At the same time they gave no nation such predominance of strength as would make it safe or worthwhile for that country to risk aggression.

"We must do our utmost to perpetuate that state of affairs, but unfortunately we must use means other than used by the Washington treaty because the principle of ratios must be abandoned.

"We have got to give up any idea of ratios in the future because some countries feel it most wounding to their national pride that they should accept a naval strength permanently inferior to that of some other country. Therefore we definitely abandon the principle of asking other naval powers:

"What will the ultimate strength of your navy be?'

"Instead we say:

"'What size navy will you have in 1942'?

"Thus we abandon the idea of ratios, taking the idea of programs instead."

Raps Anglo-German Pact.

Lloyd-George criticized the Anglo-German naval pact of June 18. Recalling the millions of tons of shipping German submarines sunk in war time, he said:

"The accord not only condoned the German sinkings, but agreed also to a German increase in those deadly weapons."

Sharp criticism of the government followed admission by Sir Bolton that the admiralty had imparted British naval construction plans to Berlin during negotiation of the recently concluded Anglo-German naval treaty.

"You mean to say the program

POLICE COURT.

Stranger in Our Gates.

SUNDAY must have looked pretty dark to William Giles, 21, who came to the Nation's Capital from a little town in Georgia to seek his fortune. He spent Sunday in a stifling cell, miserably nursing a cut on the head.

Outside it was a fine, sunny day, with maybe a little breeze now and then. But Giles couldn't see any hope of getting outside, escaping the baffling technicalities of the law.

On Saturday Giles had been pretty hungry. He had approached a couple of passersby on fashionable Connecticut avenue. "Buddy, can you spare a dime?"

Then Police Sergt. J. T. Langley came along and arrested him. Giles said the officer struck him and blood flowed. James Topham, proprietor of a Connecticut avenue gift shop, and James C. Worthy, of Stoneleigh Court, saw the incident and protested. Topham's wife sympathetically wiped the blood from Giles' face.

Came Monday morning and Giles' sympathizers were in court, too. Topham was charged with disorderly conduct and Worthy with assault and disorderly conduct. The disorderly cases were continued, the assault set for jury trial August 5.

Judge Ralph Given turned to Giles. What was his story? The youth started to cry. Senator Russell of Georgia had promised him a job, that's why he came here, he said.

The judge considered. Well, he'd release Giles on his personal bond. The youth turned away uncertainly. Up stepped a man connected with Senator Russell's office and took his arm. Together they left the courtroom, Giles smiling now. . . .

TWICE the parents of twins, the jaguar team of Rose and Lopez at the Zoo has now assumed the responsibility of triplets. The kittens are so new that even Director William M. Mann and Head Keeper William H. Blackburne have not seen them yet. Only by the volume of mewing, issuing from the shielded den in the lion house, where Rose is getting acquainted with her young, do they surmise it's triplets this time, not twins. It may be another couple of weeks until Rose comes into the open with her latest brood.

DOWNTOWN.

Something Happened.

IN Fourteenth street sidewalk traffic eddies around a couple of pedestrians craning their necks. The eddy grows as others stop to stare upward. A faint curl of smoke is blowing from the second floor window of the Willard Building (across the street from the hotel). In another minute the building starts to disgorge people, mostly girls. "I told you I smelled smoke." "I didn't even know anything was wrong until I heard the bell."

The sidewalk is jammed by now. The smoke is coming out of the third and fourth floor windows, too. "Where's the fire department?" Nobody seems excited. It's too hot.

By the time the hook and ladder arrives a shower is pelting the pavement. Everyone huddles under awnings. All the firemen jump off the truck and rush into the building. Some wit says, "Maybe they want to get out of the rain."

The sun pops out in the middle of the shower. "Oooh, look for the rainbow," says a pretty girl in pink. Necks are stretched beneath the awnings. The sunny shower is stealing the show.

Suddenly the rain ceases. The firemen file out of the building and drive off, almost unnoticed. The crowd melts rapidly—back to desks and filing cabinets for the long afternoon's grind. Anyway, something happened while they were out to lunch.

Rome Lowers Gold Reserve In War Move

Soldiers Guards Japan Embassy as Press Hits Nippon.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, July 22.—Italy, increasingly concerned with the mobilization of an expeditionary force in East Africa, today decreed temporary suspension of its 40 per cent gold coverage law.

Nullifying a paragraph in the stabilization law of 1927, fixing legal gold coverage, the government's action was regarded in informed circles here as meaning Premier Mussolini was confronted with the urgent necessity of purchasing large supplies of raw materials abroad to furnish his army war materials in East Africa.

The statement was issued by the council of ministers on the proposal of Premier Mussolini and said the action was taken because of the "necessity and urgency for procuring means for payments abroad of an exceptional nature."

The announcement, published in the Official Gazette, served to heighten the effect of the day's developments here in the Italo-Ethiopian situation.

The decree was made public while uniformed policemen, Fascist solders and detectives stood guard before the Japanesse Embassy, following a concentrated attack by the press upon Japan for reported opposition to the Italo-Ethiopian controversy.

Public interest quickly swung to the government's suspension of its gold coverage law, however, as the decree was discussed throughout the capital tonight.

Lira Coverage Declines.

Six months ago Italy's gold coverage was around 41 and 42 per cent and within the last few weeks, according to statements of the Bank of Italy, has sharply declined, while there has been an increase in foreign credits.

Banking circles said the coverage in reference to the currency was perhaps less than 40 per cent as foreign credits are in many cases foreign securities listed for their face values instead of their present market values.

Italy now has nearly 5½ billion liras in gold.

The reduction of the coverage limit has been foreshadowed recently by steadily rising prices and a growing necessity for expansion of credit. The wholesale price level has risen from 260, with reference to the 1913 level, since January before mobilization to over 325 at present.

The bank's latest statement, from June 30 to July 10, showed a decrease in gold holdings from 5,589,220,000 liras to 5,523,654,000. Its foreign credit entry increased from 295,367,000 liras to 361,067,000.

Banking circles, after a study of the decree tonight, pointed out that in not setting a new legal limit to replace the 40 per cent clause, the government reserved for itself the option of carrying the legal limit to any level it sees fit.

Foreign Credit Needed.

These circles said every effort would be made to keep the external value of the lira high to aid Italy in buying her raw materials abroad.

The reduction of the legal limit, however, they said, indicates Italy will use her gold directly in order to buy foreign currencies at their full rate in order to use them to purchase badly needed products.

The Japanese situation became serious as front pages of newspapers making sharp accusations were posted on walls throughout the city.

Ambassador Sugimura of Japan is scheduled to call on Fulvio Suvich, undersecretary for foreign affairs,

'Baby Coins' to Facilitate Revenue Collection, Morgenthau Says.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

As a result of a demand for such coins brought about by the increase in State sales taxes, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., yesterday announced he would seek authority from Congress to issue one-half-cent and one-mill pieces.

Such action will be taken by direction of the President, Morgenthau said, explaining that the decision was made after several States had threatened to coin monetary pieces of less than one cent. He held that it would be illegal for States to coin money.

If Congress grants permission for the smaller coins, as it is expected to do, it is planned to make the five-mill or one-half-cent piece of copper, somewhat smaller than the present penny. The one-mill coin will be the same size but will consist of an aluminum alloy.

The Treasury chieftain said that the Government would make profit out of coining such pieces. He pointed out that last year the Treasury netted $330,000 in the coinage of one-cent pieces.

Aside from the payment of fractional or percentage sales taxes, there would be little use for the five and one-mill coins, since virtually nothing could be made that would sell for less than one cent. The English farthing, equivalent to one-half an American cent, virtually has gone out of circulation for lack of use for it.

When asked whether the decision to coin one and five-mill pieces might be regarded as an indication that the Federal Government soon would have a sales tax, Morgenthau emphatically denied that any consideration whatever was being given at this time to such a proposal.

The United States had half-cent coins until 1857, but they were abandoned then and there was no

Nazis Forbid Church Youth Meet Openly

Edict Curbs Catholic and Lutheran Groups; New Attacks Hit Jews.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, July 22.—The heavy hand of Nazi law today was poised above the heads of Jews, Catholics, Protestants and other asserted opponents of Nazism as officials of the third Reich avowedly prepared themselves for a sweeping campaign against "reactionaries."

An edict issued today by Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior, ordered Roman Catholic and Lutheran confessional youth organizations to cease all mass appearances in public and to discard their uniforms and emblems.

The Catholic clergy, which generally obeyed the government decree yesterday against pulpit comment on the Nazi drive against "political Catholicism," was in a tense state throughout the country.

New assaults on Jews were reported in many sections. Anti-Semites routed Jews from beaches, while the provincial press exhibited increased bitterness in its attacks.

"Enemy No. 1."

Meanwhile, as threatened action against Catholic priests was held in abeyance, even in Freiburg, where priests yesterday openly defied the government order against references to the anti-clerical decree, Hans Kerrl, designated by Reichsfeuhrer Hitler to direct religious activities, left Berlin on a three weeks' leave.

He announced he was absenting himself from his office "to prepare for mastering the task" to which he has been appointed.

The decree issued by Frick said: "The leadership of the state can no longer look on idly at this activity, which, in the course of events brought about general danger to public security and order."

It was announced at the same

Blanton Balks D. C. Rent Bill Vote in House

Filibuster Blocks Ballot; Divorce Measure, Eight Others Passed.

By Douglas Warrenfels.

Filibuster tactics were employed yesterday in the House by Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), of Texas, to prevent action on a bill to establish a rent commission in the District.

Nine other District measures, including a bill to liberalize the divorce laws, were passed before the Texan began his dilatory maneuvers.

Chairman T. Mary Norton, of the House District Committee, irked by Blanton's conduct, voiced the hope that another District day would be set aside before Congress adjourns so she could renew the fight in behalf of the rent bill.

"I want to have that bill brought up," she told reporters, "if for no other reason than to prove we're not going to let one man run the House."

If Congress still is in session when another District day falls due in two weeks, Mrs. Norton said, action will be sought on a second proposal side-tracked yesterday by Blanton, a bill to place public vocational schools on a par with junior high schools.

Forces Long Reading.

The rent bill was called up at 2:35 p. m. Blanton at once raised an issue of no quorum and later caused additional delay by forcing the reading by the clerk of the 26-page measure before debate could begin, a parliamentary technicality seldom invoked.

At 5:30 p. m. Mrs. Norton consented to adjournment in the face of another no quorum call, made by Representative Michener (Republican), Michigan.

Representative Ellenbogen (Republican), Pennsylvania, champion of the rent commission scheme, insisted such legislation was needed to prevent the forcing of Government employes working in Washington to live 30 or 40 miles away.

"We sent 5,000 questionnaires to Government workers," he said. "They showed rents here have increased to exorbitant levels because landlords have taken advantage of the influx of thousands of New Deal employes.

"In the Navy Yard alone 2,000 employes have been forced to live in Maryland and Virginia, some as far as 40 miles away. We want to prevent them from having to drive 80 miles every day."

Someone asked whether the measure would result in a reduction in rents.

"If this bill would not lower rents," Ellenbogen flared, "why does every real estate man in Washington try to have it killed?"

Assails Questioners.

Ellenbogen declared members who questioned the constitutionality of the bill were insincere. He argued the Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of the 1919 rent commission law.

When Blanton arose to assail the bill Representative Connery (Democrat), Massachusetts, demanded to know what he would suggest in its place.

"Why, when we come back here next year," the Texan responded, "we should move far out if necessary. I'd go to Baltimore to live if I had to."

Blanton conceded local rents were "outrageous" and charged that Gov-

Leaders Act To Head Off Inflationists

Robinson Assails Borah for His Threat to Prolong Session.

Norris Also Opposing Senator's 5-Billion Legislation.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Borah's disclosure of efforts to tack $5,000,000,000 of inflation legislation onto the Administration's tax bill yesterday brought quick notice of opposition from Democratic leaders.

"I think it would be a sad mistake to put either the Patman bonus bill or the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing measure (those mentioned by Borah) on the tax bill because it would defeat that bill," said Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, who is sympathetic to both the bonus and farm proposals.

While Borah was insisting that these two issues would have to be met before an adjournment, and that the strategy had been decided upon as a result of numerous conversations recently, Norris said he did not "know of any conferences."

Frazier Is Apathetic.

Even Senator Frazier (Republican), North Dakota, co-author with Representative Lemke (Republican), North Dakota, on the bill to refinance the farm debt with $3,000,000,000 of new currency, conceded this measure would have a better chance "on its own merits."

He said, however, that if the House did not take up the proposal he would offer it as an amendment to the tax measure. Only eight more signatures are needed on a petition to force a House vote on the bill.

Borah's statement, which included a forecast that Congress would be in session until November 1 because of the inflation issues, drew this statement from Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the majority floor leader:

"I do not think these measures should be attached to any bill as amendments. If they are to be considered they should be treated separately and I do not see how they can be taken up and disposed of this session."

Some Inflation Wanted.

Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, said "everybody realizes it is the desire of Congress to adjourn as soon as possible and I can see no reason why it should be in session later than August 15."

Backing up Borah was Senator McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, one of the 46 signers of a petition framed by Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, for transmission to President Roosevelt, asking a speeding up of silver purchases until the price reaches $1.29 an ounce.

"I think we should pass some inflation legislation before adjournment," he said, adding this should be accompanied either through the Frazier-Lemke, bonus or some new silver proposition.

Senator Thomas said he was "interested" in seeing some bonus plan attached to either the tax or banking bill, inasmuch as "the country is in favor of the bonus by a two-thirds majority."

He contended the farm group generally would favor an amendment to the bank bill further to devalue the gold dollar.

Bargaining Talk Spreads.

Representative Lemke planned to renew his drive to obtain the necessary 216 names, while House Democratic leaders continued efforts to get more signers to withdraw their names.

"I'll have the signatures by the end of August, and there doesn't seem to be any rush now," Lemke said.

Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, meanwhile sent a letter to his unofficial bonus steering committee asking what they thought about getting the petition completed on his inflation-bonus measure. Started before the Ways and Means

Strike Paralyzes All Terre Haute; Troops in Power

Orders Guard Out

GOV. PAUL V. McNUTT.

Business Is Suspended With Families Unable to Get Even Food.

Stores Are Closed By Roving Bands

Disorders Are a Climax to Walkout Involving New Deal Law.

By Duncan Aikman,
A Special Correspondent.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 22.—Midwest and industry locked horns with the New Deal here today in the most serious general strike the country has seen since last summer's San Francisco outbreak.

As a result, Gov. Paul V. McNutt, reputed vice presidential aspirant in 1936 and Indiana's White House hope for 1940, was rushing a martial law proclamation and 1,200 National Guard troops here tonight to open business in a town "locked tighter" today by general strike tactics than San Francisco was a year ago this month.

While housewives sought vainly for groceries in closed shops today and hostesses adjourned luncheons over the Illinois line ten miles westward, business and industrial leaders of this 75,000-strong metropolis of a dozen western Indiana and eastern Illinois soft coal counties, birthplace and residence of Eugene V. Debs and traditional Midwestern center of radical labor agitation, tried to solve the situation as one of the New Deal's inevitable confusions.

New Deal Held Cause.

For Terre Haute's general strike arose out of a difference of opinion over the meaning of a New Deal legislative act no longer held constitutional. Early in April employes of the Columbian Enameling & Stamping Co. struck here in what they claim was an effort to make effective their rights under Section 7(a) of the since-annulled national industrial recovery act. Union and anti-union estimates differ as to whether 90 per cent or 450 out of 600 of the company's employes were organized originally, but at any rate grievances over the meaning of Section 7(a) accumulated.

So three months ago the unionized workers in the company, according to admissions from both sides, walked out because special considerations, including picnic entertainments, free sweaters and personal privileges were granted unorganized employes.

The strikers stood their ground on last spring's interpretations of section 7(a) that a majority of the employes of a given plant should constitute the recognized collective bargaining unit and demanded that all non-union employes be dismised or forced to join craft or unskilled labor unions.

Riot Blamed on Guards.

Importation of plant guards at the enameling and stamping works from Chicago brought on a riot three weeks ago, in which office equipment of the company was wrecked and thrown out windows, and the present crisis was precipitated by the increase of the guard corps to 75, including a dozen mechanics and electricians required for maintenance work. The increase which arrived under police escort last week was branded by local union leaders as a "strike breakers' invasion of the community." Last Friday 48 local unions voted a "sympathy labor holiday" as a means of forcing a quick decision for a closed shop in the enameling works argument.

Tonight, however, the general strike avalanche ran into the jagged but firm wall of National Guard bayonets. During the day the strikers had everything their way; Terre Haute's police force of 76 men was mainly occupied in preventing possible disorders from a crowd of 2,000 pickets, strikers and sympathizers gathered around the enameling and stamping plant. Consequently, during the business day a mob of "general strike" promoters ranging at times from 300 to 1,500 had a virtually free hand in the business section of the city.

By 10 o'clock this morning the results of their work approximated an economic revolution in miniature. All industrial plants in the city, with an approximate employment roll of 8,000, were closed except one large glass factory southeast of town with a barbed wire entangle-

New Dealists Totally Mad, Declares Nice

Fresh From Parley With Hoover, He Assails Administration.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, July 22.—Out of a huddle with former President Hoover came Gov. Harry W. Nice of Maryland, today to attack the national Administration as "totally insane."

The Governor, mentioned as a possible candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1936, pleaded for a "return to national sanity," in addressing a Union League Club luncheon.

He declared there is need for "courageous action in stopping extravagance, enforcing economies and in reducing taxes so that the industries, particularly the smaller ones, may survive."

Spends Week-End With Hoover.

Announcing his address, the Republican county central committee said he would "arrive fresh from a political conference with (former) President Hoover." Gov. Nice spent the week-end with Mr. Hoover and former War Secretary Patrick J. Hurley on the Russian River, north of San Francisco.

"It is little short of criminal to burden with taxes the people of today for the avowed perpetuation of a political regime," Gov. Nice told the club.

The depression was world-wide, he said, "but under Republican administration and with constructive policies conforming to prescribed constitutional practices, recovery was on the way in June, 1932, only to be set back by the election."

Would Enforce Economies.

"All of the rest of the world has moved toward recovery. America alone has lagged behind * * * it was this uncertainty of the public mind that enabled professional and political quacks to intrigue, with their cure-alls, the imagination of a depressed people. * * *

"The first essential requisite in the correction of this situation is courageous action in stopping extravagance, enforcing economies, and in reducing taxes, so that the

Relief Shut Off on 19,000 Men To Stop Loafing in Grain Belt

By the Associated Press.

Pierre, S. Dak., July 22.—Nineteen thousand heads of families were removed from South Dakota relief rolls tonight in a drastic move to force them to seek employment in the harvest fields.

Spurred by farmers' complaints that dole recipients had declined to go to work gathering grain, officials ordered a suspension of all State and Federal relief until the shortage of farm labor is fully supplied.

Joining six other Midwestern States that have taken similar though less sweeping measures to insure adequate help during the all-important harvest, Deputy Welfare Commissioner Philip L. Ketchum sent this notice to all county relief directors in South Dakota:

"Effective immediately, issue orders to stop all work relief projects and close the relief office tonight. Post a notice that all Federal and State relief in South Dakota is suspended and that no relief offices will be reopened until all farmers needing men to help with the harvest have been supplied with such help. Refer unemployable persons needing assistance to the county."

Approximately 20,000 farmers who have been transferred from relief rolls to the rural resettlement administration and are receiving subsistence or rehabilitation loans will not be affected by today's order.

The so-called "revolt" of relief clients was believed by officials to have been stemmed in six other States.

Illinois halted work relief in rural areas. In Kansas relief clients were warned they would be dropped from the rolls if they refused temporary employment. Plans were under way to cut off Federal allotments in approximately 26 Nebraska counties and reduce them by 50 per cent in 15 others.

Able-bodied residents in nearly a score of Iowa counties were denied the dole and told to join the threshers. Redwood County, Minn., shut down works undertakings. All but specialized projects were halted in North Dakota.

C. C. Stillman, Ohio administrator, asserted those who refused jobs would be deprived of relief, although there as well as in the Southwest and Pacific Northwest no shortage of help was reported by farmers.

Wisconsin officials stated it was "difficult to find farm workers," while H. S. Benson, agricultural

Belfast Church Riots Spread As Fires, Strikes Are Started

By the Associated Press.

Belfast, Northern Ireland, July 22. The Catholic-Protestant fights that began with the Orangemen's Day celebration of July 12 definitely became a religious battle today as it spread southward into the Irish Free State.

Fires, window-smashing, street fights and at leat one strike were today's developments. Murder indictments were voted.

The strike was called by dock workers at Limerick, in the Free State, where workers refused to unload a cargo because the vessel was owned by a Belfast firm.

A Protestant church was burned in Kilmallock, also in County Limerick, and shop windows were smashed.

Another strike was agitated in Belfast when shipyards men, returning to work from their annual vacation, were attacked en route to their jobs. Previously there had been threats that many of the men would not be permitted to return by their comrades.

There was brief fighting before the workers finally gained the shipyards, with only a single casualty. The victim was taken to a hospital.

Inside the shipyards the thousands of workers were addressed by clergymen who appealed to them to aid in the cause of peace. There was widespread relief when the workers consented to remain at their jobs.

Several of the Belfast rioters were indicted for murder by Coroner Thomas Alexander in seven deaths already caused by the fighting. The indictments named "persons unknown."

At the inquest on the seven the coroner described the ten days of disorder as "all so wanton and meaningless." "Bigotry," he added, "is the curse of peace and good will."

As peace is prayed for in all the churches, helmeted troops stand with fixed bayonets outside.

AAA Bill Nears Passage; Trade Policy Upheld

Benefits Payments Ratified Import Quotas Voted; Price Fixing Out.

By Robert C. Albright.

Storm-torn with amendments, the President's AAA bill neared a vote in the Senate last night after the chamber, by a 47-to-30 vote, refused to repudiate the Administration's reciprocal tariff policies.

Seeking to terminate the long-drawn controversy, Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson forced the tariff issue to a head by a tabling motion and for the third successive day called the Senate to meet two hours early.

It was an amendment by Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, to force Senate ratifications of reciprocal trade agreements, that was quickly tabled on Robinson's motion.

Vandenburg Prolongs Fight.

But the controversy was renewed immediately by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan. Vandenberg moved to discard the reciprocal trading policy altogether, and his amendment was still pending when the Senate recessed.

Other action taken in a busy day of contentious AAA debate:

1. "Legalized and ratified" AAA marketing agreements already negotiated by the Secretary of Agriculture, voluntary understandings entered into and all benefit payments made to farmers.

2. Authorized the President to fix import quotas as a means of protecting price gains in basic commodities, attained through processing taxes, by a 60 to 17 vote.

Price Fixing Barred.

3. Struck from the AAA bill its last price-fixing feature, by denying producers the right to set minimum prices to handlers. Last week the Senate had prohibited fixing of prices for resale.

4. Adopted two amendments by Senator Augustine Lonergan (Democrat), Connecticut, designed to preserve freedom of the press by prohibiting processing taxes on material entering into newsprint, and by specifically barring AAA interference with advertising of farm commodities.

Senator Robinson quickly cut short the debate on McCarran's reciprocal tariff amendment after only two speeches—by himself and the Nevadan. He did this by his motion to table—a motion not subject to debate. Vainly, Senator Vandenberg sought permission to speak before the vote, but Robinson would not relent.

Hits Brazil, Soviet Deals.

When the vote was taken, 1 Republican, Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, and 1 Progressive, Robert M. La Follette, jr., of Wisconsin, voted with 45 Democrats for the tabling motion. Ten Democrats, 19 Republicans and 1 Farmer-Laborite, voted no.

Contending for Senate ratification of reciprocal tariff agreements, McCarran declared that the Brazilian treaty, if ratified by Brazil, would "strike down the manganese industry in 25 States." He said understandings entered into with Russia, would throw 2,500 persons in the domestic match industry out of work.

"American labor can not compete with the convict and slave labor of Russia, or the laborers of Japan, who know only one god, their mikado, and are content with a few grains of rice and a mat to sleep on."

Vandenberg Complains.

Complaining of Robinson's failure to permit him to speak, Vandenberg gained the floor immediately after the vote with an amendment more drastic than the McCarran proposal, asking outright repeal of the law.

He charged that the act is unconstitutional and cited three "constitutional authorities" in support of his statement — Former Attorney General William D. Mitchell and Former Solicitors General Thomas D. Thacher and James M. Beck.

Robinson, on the other hand, not only contended the act is constitutional; he said the law has been subjected to "misconstruction" and "deliberate misrepresentation."

Benefit Payments Ratified.

Chairman Ellison D. Smith, of the Senate Agricultural Committee, offered the amendment to validate marketing agreements and payment of farm benefits. It was approved by a voice vote. The amendment is understood to have been worked out by AAA officials, following refusal of the Senate last week to bar all processing tax suits. Processing taxes, Smith said, are not affected by the action.

If the Supreme Court should uphold the Boston Circuit Court of Appeals ruling against processing tax constitutionality, however, the Government would be in the position of having benefit obligations to meet without an immediate revenue source.

An earlier attempt by Senator Vandenberg to provide for payment of benefits out of the $4,880,000,000 works fund, if the supreme Court invalidates processing taxes, was rejected. Senator Walter F. George (Democrat), Georgia, explained the President now has this authority under a works bill amendment George sponsored.

Potatoes Under Control.

It was on motion of Senator La Follette that the Senate voted the President power to set import quotas on farm products to protect the AAA's price raising program, and it was Senator Harry Flood Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, who succeeded in eliminating the last price-fixing feature of the bill.

Other amendments approved included one by Senator Josiah W. Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, bringing potatoes under the crop control program, and one by Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, authorizing $50,000,000 of works funds for purchase of marginal lands.

Between You and Me

By Raymond Clapper

SENATOR Borah is back on the other side of the street now. And he is having his usual success.

Within a few hours after he predicted that a farm mortgage moratorium and a bonus measure would be spliced onto the forthcoming Administration tax bill or the banking bill, the returns began coming in from outlying precincts. A Borah-for-President club was organized at Rogers, Ark., by a lady who is head of the Townsend Old-Age Pension Club there.

Only a short time ago Senator Borah had the conservatives edging up hopefully toward him. He made a radio speech on the Constitution which brought thundering cheers from all who opposed President Roosevelt's attack on the Supreme Court. One prominent conservative, often mentioned as a Republican presidential possibility, began telling his friends that he would gladly step aside and run for Vice President on a Borah ticket. Even the Republican national committee printed up the Borah speech and distributed it as an official pamphlet. Such respectable recognition Senator Borah had not enjoyed in a long time.

Now, while not getting himself out on the end of a limb, for the Senator always watches those details, he has given aid and comfort to those who want the Federal Government to enfold within its generous arms some $3,000,000,000 of farm mortgages—good, bad, or indifferent and also to pay off the war veterans.

Those are just the two things that are too wild for Mr. Roosevelt.

So we have the miraculous spectacle of Mr. Roosevelt being attacked by Senator Borah riding in from all directions. Or possibly the Senator is like a great political banyan tree, spreading his roots all the way from Wall street to Main street, from the Eastern easy chairs of the Union League clubs to the Western soapboxes of the Townsend clubs.

Anyway, it's a great act. It must make Mr. Roosevelt, who has a similar one of his own, turn slightly green.

Not that it matters much, but occasionally during dreary debate in the Senate, something slips through the thick, stuffy layers of ponderous verbiage to show us that the Senators, after all, are human.

For instance, we find the Senators, wearily arguing about compensating taxes, dull, unpleasant things that nobody likes, when suddenly the playful old devil that is in all of us comes galloping right out into the Congressional Record.

Senator Tydings, Maryland's dapper bachelor, darling of Washington's cocktail hour, at which time he is know as "Glad Tydings," is arguing for a compensating tax on shoddy.

Senator Barkley, who is not a dapper bachelor, who grew up a dry in old Kentucky and hence is no 5 o'clock hero, and who is not nearly as handsome as the lithe young Tydings, rises with a trace of envy obviously gnawing at his inhibitions, armed to squelch Tydings and his shoddy tax with a pun.

Senator Barkley: I think it is a shoddy argument the Senator is making.

Senator Tydings: I have not yielded. The Senator has a way of always making speeches in another's time without even bothering the chair to obtain recognition. And that is the shoddiest thing I know of.

Senator Tydings (continuing): We have now reached the age of cellophane bathing suits and I think there ought to be a compensatory tax put on cellophane so that Senators who make shoddy arguments will not have to wear glasses when viewing the beauties at the bathing beaches.

Senator Barkley: The Senator is talking about something concerning which he is an expert.

Senator Tydings: I claim that is a very good observation and the only good one the Senator from Kentucky has made so far in this whole argument.

Less authentic is the Washington version of the conversation in California between Herbert Hoover and Gov. Nice of Maryland, a budding Republican presidential prospect, who called to pay his respects and, no doubt, for other purposes:

Gov. Nice: How are you Mr. Hoover?

Mr. Hoover: Fine, Governor. How are you?

Gov. Nice: Fine, Mr. Hoover. Great weather you have out here.

Mr. Hoover: Yes, it is great weather. Not nearly so hot as it is in Washington.

Gov. Nice: That's good. That reminds me, Mr. Hoover, if you will pardon me. Perhaps it is none of my business. I don't know whether I ought to bring it up.

Mr. Hoover: Go ahead. What's on your mind?

Gov. Nice: Nothing, only some of my friends are talking about me for President. You know how it is.

Mr. Hoover: Yes, I remember.

Gov. Nice: But the trouble is they don't know how you feel——

Mr. Hoover (interrupting): I feel fine. It's been good to see you. By the way, I notice your Baltimore Pulaski Club has indorsed you for Vice President. Let me congratulate you. You would make a splendid Vice President.

Gov. Nice: Who, me?

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

A poll of the House by an Administration agent was said last night to have disclosed that 35 members who voted against the so-called "death sentence" for "unnecessary" utility holding companies now would support the provision and the list is growing daily.

A sharp swing in sentiment in favor of the drastic proposal approved by the Senate by a majority of one vote and rejected by the House by 70 votes, apparently was prompted by disclosures of the Senate Lobbying Committee.

Word of the poll was passed to Senate and House conferees as they met prepared to adjust differences in the Wheeler-Rayburn bill. Absence of several conferees made deliberations impossible and the group agreed to meet again Wednesday.

By the Associated Press.

Asserting "there's enough dirt to keep 20 committees busy," Chairman Black (Democrat), Alabama, of the Senate lobby investigators, last night welcomed a parallel House inquiry into the power company battle against utility holding company abolition.

"I'm glad to see them go ahead with it," he said, adding that so far as he was concerned talk of rivalry and cross-purpose tactics between his own and the House Rules Committee, the other investigating body, was unfounded.

His assertion was prompted by questions referring to Capitol Hill gossip, which originated in statements of Chairman O'Connor (Democrat), of New York, of the House Committee to the effect that the Senate inquiry was hastily begun and that his own was "a deliberative committee."

Seeking the source of 127,000 telegrams which the record already shows were sent to Washington in opposition to the utility bill's "death sentence" for "unnecessary" holding companies, the Black committee today will resume digging into the opposition tactics of the power companies.

The House committee, which had expected to start hearings on power company activities today, postponed that phase of its investigation until later in the week. Its counsel, William Collins, meanwhile will analyze information given by House members on what they know of lobbying for or against the bill.

The Senate committee today will hear three witnesses from York, Pa., on charges that numerous unauthorized telegrams to Senators and House members, opposing the dissolution clause, originated in that city.

It has called Quay C. Haller, agent there for Metropolitan Edison, a subsidiary of Associated Gas & Electric, some of whose activities already have been investigated. Other witnesses will be J. E. Coble and Luther A. Coleman, York managers, respectively, for Western Union and Postal Telegraph.

ELWOOD H. SEAL.

Seal's Services In Lobby Probe Asked of Hazen

O'Connor Wants Counsel Lent to House Group as Assistant.

Services of Assistant Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal as an aid in the House lobby investigation have been asked of Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen by Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), of New York.

O'Connor, chairman of the House Rules Committee, yesterday sent a message to Hazen asking that Seal be loaned to the committee for the period of the lobby inquiry.

Commissioner Hazen agreed on the condition that the request be approved by Corporation Counsel Barret Prettyman, who is expected to make his decision today.

Seal, who has been in the corporation counsel's office for three years, came into prominence two years ago when he conducted the Senate investigation of milk prices in the District.

In the District affairs, he has conducted the bulk of the suits against the local government in the last six months. During that period, only $3,500 has been recovered from the District in suits in which an aggregate of $500,000 was sought.

Revised Control Of Islands Seen At Senate Probe

Congress May Change System of Government; Council to Present Plan.

By the Associated Press.

Congressional intervention in the Virgin Islands controversy to set up a revised form of government was openly considered yesterday at hearings before Senator Tydings' (Democrat of Maryland) investigating committee.

Whether the Islands would be removed from Secretary Ickes' Interior Department control was not intimated. Unconfirmed rumors have mentioned this possibility.

Yesterday's hearings, resumed after a 12-day recess taken when President Roosevelt intervened to "cool off" the recent Tydings-Ickes feud, took an entirely new tack. Paul M. Pearson, the Republican Governor against whom charges of maladministration rest, sat through the session without hearing his name mentioned.

The inquiry was directed instead toward possible remedies for what one witness called "too much government" in the tiny Caribbean islands, whose present economic condition was unfavorably contrasted with that under Danish administration in 1917, before the United States bought them for $25,000,000.

To one witness, Dr. David C. Canegata, president of the Municipal Council of the Island of St. Croix, Tydings said:

"Speaking for this committee and for the Senate Territories Committee, we would welcome a plan worked out by your people suggesting changes in the organic act of the Virgin Islands."

Canegata, a Negro, replied that the Virgin Islanders would welcome an opportunity to present such a plan, and said he thought it could be done by December or January, in time to be considered at the next session of Congress.

Only three witnesses testified. The others were Paul C. Yates, former newspaperman and discharged administrative assistant of Pearson, and Anselmo Fabio, member of the St. Croix council.

Asked by the committee to suggest constructive means of reorganizing the government, they mentioned complete reorganization of the tax system; revision of the present homesteading plan; extension of suffrage, now limited to persons possessing property of a certain value, to the masses; unification of government and placing all legal functions under the Justice Department.

Former Governor Hurt In Automobile Crash

Valley City, N. Dak., July 22 (AP).—Former Gov. William Langer suffered a slight concussion and a dislocated shoulder blade when the automobile in which he was riding was sideswiped and overturned near here early today.

Although unconscious when brought to the hospital, Langer showed steady improvement, his physician said, and probably will be able to leave the hospital in a week.

Committeeman Named.

Columbia, Mo., July 22 (AP).—The Republican State committee today selected Arthur M. Curtis, Springfield attorney and State chairman from 1930 to 1934, to succeed the late Dr. E. B. Clements, of Macon, as Republican national committeeman from Missouri.

Treasury Seeks To Coin Mills And Half Cents

demand for revival until the present era of sales taxes. There never has been an American one-mill coin. Agitation in the last few years for a three-cent piece has not been espoused by the Government, and although bills authorizing such a coin have been introduced in Congress no action has been taken on them.

The decision to mint the five and one-mill coins was precipitated by the States of Colorado and Missouri asking the Treasury whether it would be legal for them to issue "State coins," that is, a coin of monetary value only within the borders of the State minting it.

Morgenthau said the legal department of the Treasury had considered the matter and had decided that it was absolutely contrary to law for the States to mint or issue coins with a monetary value. Such action by State governments would not be analogous to the issuance of tokens by street car companies, since the latter lack monetary value and are good for "one ride," the same as a paper ticket.

Danger Is Seen.

Washington and Illinois already have taken steps to issue coins or tokens of a value of less than 1 cent in order to facilitate payment of sales taxes. A token the size of a dime has been proposed and it is feared that it would be used in place of the 10-cent piece in coin devices or machines—such as automatic cigarette vendors and stamp machines.

States with a sales tax stated in a percentage such as 5 per cent feel that in the absence of a coin of less than 1 cent they are imposing an inequitable burden on small purchases. For instance, the tax now amounts to 1 cent on a 5 or 10 cent purchase, thus amounting actually to 20 and 10 per cent respectively of the cost of the article.

Difficulties in collecting the taxes paid by the public also are found in States weher the sales tax is specified, that is, as 1 cent on purchases up to 35 cents; 2 cents on purchases up to 70 cents, and so on. Thus a purchaser of one package of cigarettes pays 1 cent tax. If he buys two packages the tax remains 1 cent. Where two customers each buy one package, the dealer is able to record it as one sale and thus retain 1 cent paid as a tax.

Poor Man Pays.

The inability to pay the exact tax on small purchases has had the effect of reacting against the poor man. In the case of a 5-cent loaf of bread, for instance, the purchaser in many States now pays 6 cents, a tax of 20 per cent. The purchaser of four loaves of bread may pay but 21 cents, a tax of 5 per cent.

By issuing a 1-mill coin the Treasury will make it possible for purchasers to pay proportionately the tax imposed at 2 per cent or more on a purchase of 5 cents or more. Thus on a 5-cent purchase a 2 per cent sales tax would amount to 1 mill; a 5 per cent tax would amount to 3 mills, and so on.

The issuance of the proposed one-half cent pieces, however, may change methods used in merchandising low-cost articles. For instance, in order to stimulate sales, cigarettes are offered at 12½ cents a package. If one package is purchased the price is 13 cents, but 25 cents for two packages. The use of the one-half cent in the price as an inducement to buy more would be lost by coinage of one-half cent pieces.

More Bookkeeping.

For the novelty of the thing, however, stores may offer articles at split-cent prices, and where commodities are charged and paid for at the end of the month by check it may become necessary to write the amount out, as, for instance, 14½ cents, creating new difficulties for bookkeepers. "One-half cent" sales may come into vogue, replacing the present "1-cent sales."

If the one-half cent and 1-mill coins get into general use it may necessitate remodeling cash registers and counting machines to take care of the fractions. Thus the new coinage may have far-reaching effects, but none need worry about getting 1,000 mills as change for a dollar, because, undoubtedly Congress will limit the amount in which they can be used as legal tender, just as cents are legal tender only up to 25.

Apathy Shown By Thompson As Trial Opens

Youth Accused of Hostess Murder Pays Little Heed to Battle.

By the Associated Press.

Peoria, Ill., July 22.—Gerald Thompson—branded "morally insane" by his counsel—looked on with apparent unconcern today as his trial for the murder of comely Mildred Hallmark opened in a crowded circuit courtroom.

Slumped in a chair, an armed guard on either side, the youth accused of attacking and slaying the 19-year-old cafe hostess paid little heed as opposing attorneys wrangled over preliminary motions. Defense Attorney Ren Thurman indicated he would advance a plea of insanity.

2,000 Line Walks.

The sweltering courtroom seats about 200—seats which were filled the minute the ancient courthouse doors were thrown open. Those fortunate enough to obtain places had waited in line since dawn.

A crowd estimated by court attaches at 2,000 lined the walk leading from the courthouse to the county jail, as Thompson, handcuffs on his wrists, was led from the jail to the scene of his trial.

A sullen murmur ran through the spectators.

Special deputies and extra bailiffs guarded the courtroom and the corridors, but there was no untoward action.

State's Attorney Edwin V. Champion sought a jury qualified for the death penalty.

No Scruples, He Says.

The prosecutor asked Harry Scott, first of the talesman:

"Would you have any scruples against the death penalty?" Scott answered he would not.

Thompson blanched. It was his first show of emotion.

Earlier Thurman had attempted to delay the trial, petitioning Judge Joseph E. Daily for a continuance on the ground that Mrs. Florence Whiteside, Thompson's mother, was a patient in a hospital following a nervous breakdown and could not testify for her son.

"The defendant's mother will testify," Thurman told the court, "that she was married at the age of 14. The defendant in this case was born when she was 16.

Calls Him Morally Insane.

"She will testify that he is a morally insane individual, a psychopathic case where sex is concerned, and has been so for years.

Prosecutor Champion argued that if the defense intended to set up an insanity case the motion was not the proper manner in which it should be presented. Judge Daily concurred.

Two prospective jurors—William Scofield, landscape gardener, and George Snedden, truck driver—had been tentatively selected when court adjourned today. Of the 132 talesmen called, 21 were excused for cause. Each side exercised two peremptory challenges.

Charged With Wife Murder

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Newell H. Sherman, 26, is shown leaving Worcester, Mass., courthouse manacled to an officer, after pleading not guilty to a charge of drowning his wife. Police claim he has confessed he drowned her because he was in love with a 16-year-old girl.

The 'Other Girl' Says She Hated Slayer of Wife

Scoutmaster Says He Sang Hymns While Rowing Spouse to Death.

By the United Press.

Worcester, Mass., July 22.—Sutton's "American Tragedy" slaying was doomed to failure though it were "the perfect crime," it was disclosed today, as the "other girl" in the case told of having "no use" for husky young Newell Paige Sherman, alleged wife-killer.

While the towering Sherman, choir singer, scoutmaster and constable's son, pleaded a perfunctory "not guilty" to a charge of drowning the mother of his two babies from a canoe in fog-shrouded Lake Singletary, 17-year-old Esther Mogill, of Whitinsville, was protesting that far from having a secret love for Sherman, she really detested him.

Marriage, said the slender, bespectacled young "motive" for Sherman's alleged crime, was preposterous. Their work together at a machine company was all they had in common, she said, and whenever Sherman gave her a "lift" to and from work, there was always a third person in his car.

Near Collapse.

Far from promising to marry the 26-year-old machinist if he could but dispose of his 23-year-old wife, Esther was said to have told Sherman on one occasion, "Why don't you go down three times and come up twice." And he, assuming that she was fooling, replied: "I won't, but maybe somebody else will."

The McGill girl was near collapse at her home after telling of her asserted coolness toward Sherman, and in a Worcester jail cell, after his brief arraignment, the suspect sobbed as he told reporters incongruous details of the Sabbath midnight "murder."

Hunched in a brown suit, with collar and tie in disarray and hair unkempt, the burly defendant seemed to hint an insanity defense when he said:

"I was singing to my wife in the canoe. My only religion is song. I put my whole heart and soul into it. I was singing a hymn, 'When I Consider the Work of Thy Hand.'

Invitation Pleased Her.

"When I stopped singing the thought to murder her came back to my mind. I must have been crazy."

While he and his wife glided over the lake where they had courted five years before, their children, Janet May, 2½, and Dudley 8 months, were asleep at home. Mrs. Sherman, the former Alice Dudley, of Douglass, had been delightfully startled at her husband's invitation to a late night canoeing trip. They had had hard words over Newell's alleged attentions to the McGill girl, and the young wife thought Newell had finally "come to his senses."

But as they reached a deep part of the broad lake, Sherman related in his "confession," he dug his blade under the hull of the canoe, capsized the craft, and let his wife sink to her death. She called out, "Newell, I'm here, Newell!" as she struggled, and once managed to grab his arm, but he gave her a shove and swam ashore.

Century Strike Parley Ends In a Deadlock

Mayor Tells Strikers of Efforts to Obtain 'Human Wage.'

Attempts to end the strike at the Century Manufacturing Co.'s plant in Alexandria failed yesterday when Morris Weinman, of Baltimore, proprietor, refused to make concessions sought by girl strikers.

A meeting held in Weinman's office, with Howard T. Colvin, Department of Labor conciliator, and a committee representing the 105 strikers, ended in a deadlock.

"The meeting was held merely as a courtesy to Colvin's position," said Weinman.

Concessions Refused.

Colvin said Weinman was unwilling to make any concessions and reiterated his threats to close down the plant rather than adjust wage differences. Meanwhile the strikers laid plans to attach the machinery at the plant in an effort to obtain a week's wages they claim is their due.

At the close of the conference Colvin said he had won a promise from Weinman to take the matter of a conference with the strikers under consideration.

Slight disorder marked the afternoon. Three "strikebreakers" hid in a nearby store, refusing to come out at the dares of strikers. Police did not intervene.

Refuses to Clear Street.

Police Sergt. George Everly refused to clear the street of the newspapermen and when Weinman, at the close of the conference, started to drive to Baltimore with his son, he was met with boos and catcalls from the strikers. Despite a flat tire, said to have been caused by nails thrown in the path of the machine, the proprietor drove away.

Strike leaders, who said the girls were to have been paid today, for the week ended July 13, declared they would seek legal action to compel Weinman to pay them.

Colvin would not comment on this phase of the matter. He said he was still sanguine of a settlement of differences between Weinman and the strikers when the proprietor "cools off."

Thirty girls will be given work today, Mayor E. C. Davison said, in a self-help plant at the old Poor House Building, making shirts for the Virginia Emergency Relief Administration at a higher wage scale than prevailed in the Weinman factory.

Strike Meeting Held.

A meeting of the strikers was held last night in Eagles Hall, addressed by A. D. Gordon, representing the United Garment Workers, and Mayor Davison. A committee was appointed to confer with Weinman, and the Mayor assured the strikers that under the recently enacted Wagner law the proprietor of the shop would be compelled to receive them and consider their grievances.

The committee is composed of Mrs. Lily Anderson, Mrs. Virginia Hutchinson, Mrs. Lillian Bright, Mrs. Cora Smith, Mrs. Anne Green and Miss Reba Donald.

Mayor Davison assured the strikers that everything possible would be done to assure them "human wages" for their work. It was learned that the average wage of the girls since the recent wage cut made by the company was approximately $8 a week.

No Room for Sweatshop.

The Mayor stated that if any industry in Alexandria could not pay a living wage, it would be better for the city and the residents that such an industry be dispensed with. He declared there is no room in Alexandria for any industry which lowers the standard of living to a point where workers can not make a decent living wage.

The Mayor quoted a telegram which stated that no product of the Century Manufacturing Co. would be put on sale in St. Louis, Mo., until the strike is settled.

Fire Chief Retires After Long Service

Battalion Chief H. F. McConnell will be retired today by the District Commissioners after 39 years' service in the District Fire Department.

During his career he received three citations for meritorious work. He was decorated for his excellent service at the time of the Knickerbocker Theater disaster in 1923, and was given a merit decoration for his work in the Kann warehouse fire in 1925.

He was appointed to the department in 1895 and in 1904 was made a lieutenant. He was promoted to captain in 1910 and in 1922 was made an acting battalion chief, achieving the full rank a few months later.

For several months he has been in failing health. He is 62 years old. He lives at 1133 Trinidad avenue northeast.

J. W. Quimby Dies In Head-On Crash

Queenstown, Md., July 22.—James W. Quimby, 48, prominent farmer and Queen Annes County political leader, died almost instantly here today in a head-in collision between his automobile and a truck.

The truck, driven by Thomas A. Stradley, 25, of Chestertown, struck Quimby's machine on the Colonial highway when the farmeer suddenly pulled into the center of the road to make a right turn, Clyde Embert, 45, a passenger in Quimby's car, was seriously injured.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of unavoidable accident and recommended that no charges be placed.

Quimby, who was a candidate for sheriff last year, is survived by his wife, three brothers—former County Commissioner Charles S. Quimby, Fred C. Quimby and William B. Quimby, superintendent of the county almshouse—and two sisters, Mrs. Frank Brown, Salisbury, and Mrs. Elmer Neighbors, of Centerville.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Front Royal, Va., July 22.—Miss Mildred Lee Sowers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Sowers, became the bride of Mr. Cornelius Jett Cunningham, of Hedgesville, W. Va., at 8 p. m. Saturday in Rockland Baptist Church in Warren County. The Rev. C. V. VanDerLinden, Boyce, performed the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white satin, with a trailing bridal veil, and carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor was her sister, Miss Virginia Sowers, of New Brunswick, N. J. Bridesmaids were Miss Alice Sowers, sister of the bride; Mrs. Robert Pettus, of Drake's Branch, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Doris Tootle, of Mendes, Ga., and Miss Mae Burch, of Boyce.

Elbert Cunningham, of Lynchburg, the bridegroom's brother, was best man, and ushers were Henry and Charles Sowers, brothers of the bride; Basil Maddox, of Lynchburg, and W. LeRoy Corron, of Front Royal.

A reception for 200 guests was given in the home of the bride's parents. The young couple left on a motor trip of two weeks through Northern States. They will live in Hedgesville, where the groom is agricultural instructor in Hedgesville High School.

Mrs. Cunningham is a graduate of Warren County High School in Front Royal and attended Fredericksburg State Teachers' College during the past session. Mr. Cunningham is a native of Lynchburg and a graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg.

Rural Ministers Talk Of Bettering Farm Life

Blacksburg, Va., July 22 (AP).—Means for improving rural life in America were discussed today at the rural ministers scheel, being held at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. They included suggestions for developing a curriculum and training rural citizens for rural life, social and recreational programs and home ownership.

Registration of those who will take the four-weeks training for out-of-school youths also occupied the delegates today and a general outline was given on what the instructional period will offer.

Hilleary Re-elected.

Warrenton, Va., July 22.—Richard W. Hilleary, Warrenton, was re-elected chairman of the Union Sunday School Association, of Fauquier County, at its annual meeting in the Warrenton Baptist Church. C. C. Claypool was named vice president, and Mrs. Della C. Poe, secretary-treasurer.

Democrats Act To Block Borah Inflation Battle

Norris Joins Robinson in Protest Against Rider Plan of Legislation.

Committee reported the Vinson bonus bill several months ago, the petition now has 158 signers.

The Borah announcement brought renewed speculation as to whether the Administration might not be willing to put off taxes until next session, a move favored by many Democratic leaders, however, insisted they would adhere to plans for action at this session.

Rogers, Ark., July 22 (AP).—A "Borah for President" Club was started here today following the publication of the Idaho Senator's prediction that a new inflation drive was planned in Congress.

Mrs. Priscilla Thompson, president of the Townsend Club, is acting as president of the new organization.

Blanton Balks Vote by House Upon Rent Bill

ernment workers from out of town were required to "pay several prices" for everything they bought here.

"But this bill isn't going to solve the problem," he said.

The 1919 commission, the Texan added, failed to reduce rents. He concluded by ridiculing the Ellenbogen bill as "Socialistic" and "unconstitutional."

Representative Dirksen (Republican), Illinois, opposed the measure as likely to prevent bondholders in financially-distressed Washington hotels and apartment houses from "getting even a nickel on the dollar."

There was comparatively little debate on the divorce bill. The measure ultimately was passed by 161 to 98 on a roll-call vote after it failed of passage on a standing count, 21 to 28, due to the opposition of those who wished to offer amendments from the floor. Only committee amendments were considered.

Representative Carpenter (Democrat), Kansas, House sponsor of the bill, passed several weeks ago by the Senate, discredited reports that it would convert Washington into a Reno.

Residence Clause Cited.

"Don't worry," he cautioned. "This bill won't make Washington a divorce mill because anyone who gets a divorce will first have to live here a year, not just a few days."

Committee amendments struck from the bill clauses which would have made habitual drunkenness for for one year or insanity for five years grounds for divorce. Another amendment made cruelty ground for a legal separation only.

Grounds for divorce left intact included adultery, desertion for two years, voluntary separation from bed and board for five consecutive years without cohabitation and final conviction of a felony involving moral turpitude, with sentence to a penal institution for not less than two years.

Applications for decrees of absolute divorce, the bill required, must be filed by the innocent spouse.

Members from Virginia and Maryland, who contended the measure would give Washington a more liberal divorce law than those in their States, failed in efforts to eliminate several of the grounds.

Representative Patman and McFarlane (Democrats), Texas, led an unsuccessful move to block passage of a bill to require semi-annual inspection of the safety devices on all motor vehicles in the District at a total fee of $1 the first year and 50 cents for each subsequent year.

Defends Plan.

Mrs. Norton defended the proposal as necessary to prevent accidents.

"Accidents often are caused by faulty parts and machinery," she said.

McFarlane said a similar bill was repealed in Texas after it proved "obnoxious." He said the "poor people" of the District could not afford to pay "any more taxes of any sort."

Several attempts to have all employes of the inspection service placed under the civil service failed. Passage finally was voted without a roll call.

Other bills passed would authorize removal of a Pennsylvania Railroad substation at Seventh and C streets southwest, increase the penalty for prostitution from $25 to $100; permit the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the World to use Washington parks during a coming convention, provide for establishment of a smoke control department in the District government and remove the exemption from jury service now granted Federal workers. In addition, three bills intended to improve police court procedure and jury service were passed.

In a statement the Keystone Automobile Club expressed regret that the House had passed the compulsory automobile mechanical inspection measure and cited the fact that accidents have increased in Pennsylvania since such a law was adopted.

Opposition to the measure was expressed by the club because "it will place on taxpayers an initial burden of nearly $200,000 and will put on already over-taxed motorists the weight of continuing costs." The club stated it hoped the bill would not get Senate approval.

"Ay Tank Ay Go Home!"

And why did the Swaggering Swede desire to leave the studio and retire to the cloister of her hearth? The answer is easy: She wanted ten minutes to herself in order that she might read Sidney Skolsky's column about Hollywood, its film stars and extras, its crackbrains and its geniuses. It's the best thing to come out of Hollywood since the movies learned to talk broken English.

Skolsky's Hollywood column is found in The Washington Post five days a week, and after reading it, you'll join the Scandinavain star (and the other stars and fans, too), in a hearty toast: "Skol to Skolsky!"

Tax Framers Still Disagree On Schedules

Ways and Means Members Spends Week Without Results on Rates.

After a week of conferences on the President's "share-the-wealth" tax program, the Ways and Means Committee is still lacking agreement on rates, revenues sought and the ultimate scope of the Administraion's bill, it was learned last night.

Pending adjustment of some questions of "policy" between committee Democrats and the Administration, it was said there will be no committee vote on available schedules, although a draft of the bill has been promised for this week.

Charging "indecision," and "lagging interest," minority members of the committee, who contend they are not being consulted on policies, yesterday laid down a barrage of criticism. They said Democratic members of the committee are meeting apart and at night on the measure.

Unwillingness of a majority of the Democrats on the committee to subscribe to the corporation income tax proposals of the President was said to be responsible for some of the delay. There have been negotiations back and forth between the White House on this score, it is understood, with the Presiden holding firm to his recommendations.

Inflation Talk Alarming.

Suggestions that the bill might be used by insurgents in the Senate as the vehicle for amendments of inflationary type, ranging from the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing bill to the Patman bonus measure and silver legislation, also were causing concern. Publicly, leaders said that none of the amendments stand a chance.

The Ways and Means Committee, Republicans and Democrats, met for a few moments yesterday afternoon, but adjourned for lack of a quorum. Democratic members of the committee passed most of the afternoon in conference. They rejected a proposal to tax inheritances as part of national income.

"You can quote me as saying that if the majority members vote as I know they feel, corporation taxes will not be included in the bill," said Representative Roy O. Woodruff (Republican), Michigan.

Woodruff said, however, that "policies" never have been discussed at sessions attended by both Republicans and Democrats.

"When we minority members are called in we have to listen to a lecture by Mr. (L. H.) Parker, the committee's tax expert. I am not objecting to that. Mr. Parker's lectures are very enlightening. But that's a far cry from actually passing on provisions of the bill."

Jenkins Calls it Childish.

Representative Thomas A. Jenkins, of Ohio, another minority member of the committee, in a statement called the tax bill a "foul ball" and declared that "from the beginning it was just a gesture to satisfy share-the-wealth advocates."

"The program has not progressed far enough even for introduction of a bill," he said. "Interest has lagged until it is impossible even to get a quorum of Democrats or Republicans to attend a committee meeting. Only this morning, the committee failed to meet for this reason. The whole thing is just a lot of childish foolishness."

Jenkins in his statement demanded that the President "withdraw" the tax bill.

"He should announce to the country that he is going to change his course and begin cutting down expenditures," Jenkins added. "The country needs a rest from all of this agitation."

Still another Republican member of the committee, Representative Frank Crowther, of New York, said he had "tried in vain" to persuade the committee to make a "real revenue measure out of the bill."

"We ought to start now on a five-year program for balancing the budget," he said. "The bill they are drafting serves one purpose only—checking the share-the-wealth agitation of Huey Long. You ought to work from the bottom up in building a tax bill."

Democrats Hew to Line.

Democrats informally already have decided to limit the program to the proposals set forth in the President's message — inheritance taxes, high-bracket income surtaxes, and taxes on corporation income. There is strong sentiment against the last of these, however.

Majority members are considering a proposal to link corporation income taxes to excess profits tax of a type already proposed in the Senate by Senator Tom Connally (Democrat), Texas.

Action of committee Democrats yesterday in sidetracking a proposal to consider inheritances as income for taxing purposes—a proposal that would have seriously hit large bequests and yielded more revenue than conventional methods of taxing the two separately—was interpreted as a tendency toward moderation in final preparation of the bill.

Chicago Employes Win Salary Raise

20,000 CityWorkers Given More Pay by Council.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 22.—Salary increases and reduction of pay cuts affecting more than 20,000 municipal employees were voted by the Chicago City Council today with the approval of a $4,563,000 "baby budget."

The budget included an appropriation of $1,677,760 for canceling during the final six months of the year one-half of the pay cuts which police and firemen were given at a level 7½ per cent under the basic scale of 1931. Others were put on the basis of a 10 per cent cut.

The council also voted $1,070,000 to restore judges, clerks and bailiffs of the Municipal Court all reductions in their salaries.

Included in the budget were provisions for 500 more police, 200 more firemen and the purchase of a $200,000 Diesel-powered fireboat.

House Liberals Fight Measure On Propaganda

Maverick and Kvale Say Service Disaffection Bill Is Un-American.

By the Associated Press.

An effort to pigeonhole the Tydings-McCormack Army-Navy "disaffection" bill was planned last night by two House liberals, who said it threatened freedom of the press.

The measure, passed by the Senate and approved by the House Military Committee, was designed to prevent the inciting of disaffection or disobedience to law or official regulations in the Army and Navy. It was based on recommendations of a special House committee that investigated un-American activities last year.

"We are going to battle the bill to the end in the Rules Committee when an attempt is made to give it legislative right of way," said Representative Maverick (Democrat), Texas. "And we ought to have a lot of support."

With Representative Kvale (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, Maverick condemned the proposed legislation as a "direct and wanton assault on the freedom of the press and of speech," an insult to enlisted men in the Army and Navy, a reflection on their officers, and "an intended suppression of organized labor."

In a minority report from the Military Committee, they contended the bill would violate both the spirit and letter of the first amendment to the Constitution, which says Congress shall enact no law abridging freedom of speech or of the press.

They termed the measure un-American, undemocratic, unnecessary and unconstitutional, and said it would result in:

"Cross-currents of persecutions, hunts by hysterical false patriots, newspaper raids, brutal arrests for unfounded gossip, head-crackings, bloodshed, unconstitutional searches and seizures, suspicious industrial warfare — bringing chaos rather than halting it."

"Any newspaper so much as suggesting an increase or decrease in the Army would be subject to its provisions," the report said.

"A newspaper suggesting that the Navy did not have the best battleships could be charged with violation of the law in that they were inciting sailors to disaffection, thinking the ships might not be suitable for their sailing."

Joke on Pearl's Friends, 'Baron' Really Drowning

Monte Carlo, July 22 (U.P.).—This time Jack Pearl, radio's "Baron Munchausen," wasn't fooling.

The comedian was nearly drowned today because his friends did not know he couldn't swim.

Pearl made a comic dive into the deep end of a Monte Carlo pool, thinking it was the shallow end. The "Vas You Dere, Sharlie" star floundered around in the water, struggling and calling for help.

But Pearl's friends mistook his cries for comedy and he went down for the third time before lifeguards pulled him out. They revived him after 30 minutes of resuscitation work.

Knutson Asserts Fish Is G. O. P. 'White Hope'

St. Paul, July 22 (AP).—Representative Harold Knutson (Republican), of Minnesota today termed Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., of New York, the Republican Party's "best candidate to President in 1936."

Knutson, returning to Minnesota for a ten day rest, following an attack of ptomaine poisoning, said:

"I am more convinced than ever that Hamilton Fish, jr., is the 'white hope' for 1936.

"While he is from the East, he always has shown a sympathetic understanding of the needs of the West. His voting record on farm measures is of the best."

18,000 Tourists Menaced by Berg

Giant Lurking in Shipping Lanes Is Reported.

By the Associated Press.

An account of how a giant iceberg lurked in the direct path of transatlantic liners at the height of this summer's tourist season was given yesterday by the Coast Guard.

Rear Admiral Harry G. Hamlet, commandant of the Coast Guard, told of the berg in announcing the successful closing of the 1935 work of the international ice patrol.

This berg was being watched by the Coast Guard's Mendota and Ponchartrain on the Saturday, late in June, that 18,000 tourists left New York for Europe within 12 hours.

Sailing toward the berg at the time were some of the biggest ships afloat—the Europa, Majestic, Britannic, California, Carinthia, Ile de France and Rotterdam. The giant berg finally melted away.

New Pig Crop Placed Lowest For 25 Years

Agriculture Department Estimates Yield at 30,402,000 Head.

By the Associated Press.

Estimating the 1935 spring pig crop at 30,402,000 head, the Agriculture Department said yesterday inspected hog slaughter for the current marketing year will be the smallest in 25 years and that slaughter in 1935-36 will be even smaller.

In the summer hog outlook report, the department said the 1935 estimated spring pig crop is a decrease of 7,405,000 head, or 19.6 per cent, from the spring crop of 1934, and a drop of 20,814,000 head, or 40 per cent, from the average spring crop of 1932 and 1933.

Inspected hog slaughter for the three months July to September, 1935, the report said, will be the smallest for corresponding periods in more than 30 years.

The department predicted rising production during the next two years, but said that the increased slaughter supplies will not be available until the late spring of 1936.

Commenting upon advancing hog prices, the report said retail prices of hog products at New York averaged 24 per cent higher in the period from October to June 1934-35 than in the same period in 1933-34, and 62 per cent higher than in the corresponding months of 1932-33. Likewise, it said the summer seasonal rise in the prices paid producers began early this month and during the third week in July the top price at the Chicago market was $10.65, highest since 1928.

During the first nine months of this marketing year, excluding processing tax payments, the department said packers paid a total of $402,000,000 for hogs slaughtered under Federal inspection. This compared with a total of $296,000,000 paid in a corresponding period of 1933-34, $299,000,000 in 1932-33 and an average of $473,000,000 in the five-year period 1929-30 to 1933-34.

Pork exports during the first eight months of this marketing year were reported to total 76,000,000 pounds compared with 100,000,000 pounds in 1933-34 and an average of 261,000,000 pounds for the same months in the five-year period.

Export of lard this year came to 125,000,000 pounds compared with 388,000,000 pounds in the first eight months of 1933-34 and a five-year average of 514,000,000 pounds.

Approximately 1,000 grocers, their wives and children are expected to attend the event. Feature of the athletic program in the afternoon wil be a baseball game between Auth's and Versis Bros.

Red Ray Discovered, Is Hurtful to Seeds

A year's collaboration between two Government scientists has resulted in discovery of a red light ray which has a crippling effect on the germination of seeds.

Lewis H. Flint, of the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Plant Industry, and E. D. McAlister, of the Smithsonian Institution, isolated the mysteriously acting ray, invisible except when broken down in the spectrum.

Whether or not the red ray affects plant growth as well as seed germination remains to be learned, Flint said yesterday in discussing the discovery. His collaborator is absent from the city on vacation.

In earlier experiments conducted in their laboratory at the Department of Agriculture it was found that the greens, blues and violets slowed down the germination of lettuce seeds, while the reds, oranges and yellows had the opposite effect.

Gerard Swope, Workers Flee Skyscraper Blaze

The blaze was quickly extinguished.

No one was injured, although C. H. Maurice, caterer in the company's clubrooms on the forty-ninth floor, was marooned by dense smoke. He telephoned to the lobby and firemen rescued him.

The blaze was caused by a short circuit in an elevator shaft between the forty-eighth and forty-ninth floors.

Combine Lifts Rubber Prices, Report Reveals

Producing Countries Pool Efforts, Ban Exports to Boost Demand.

By the Associated Press.

An international rubber combine which has clamped down on the exports from 95 per cent of the rubber producing countries was blamed by Commerce Department officials yesterday for steadily rising prices of that commodity.

Since March, they said, close regulation of exports from rubber producing countries has brought the price from an average of 11.44 cents a pound in March to 12.53 cents a pound in June.

Slower demand for the commodity helped to lower the March price, they said, but despite larger shipments since that month, they attributed the rising price to close regulation.

The countries in the rubber export agreement—which replaced the Stevenson rubber pool plan of several years ago—were named as British Malay, Netherlands East Indies, French Indo China, British India, Ceylon, Siam, Burma, British North Borneo and Sarawak.

Most of the world's supply of rubber comes from these countries. The rubber producing sections of the world outside the pool are the Philippines and other Far Eastern islands, Africa, South America and Mexico.

Commerce officials said the plan consisted of the countries joining together to regulate rubber prices by the simple expedient of refusing to allow exports.

The plan went into effect last June and by August prices had been lifted to 16 cents a pound. At the beginning of that year the price was 9 cents.

Vidal Defends 'Flivver Plane' Program of U.S.

Improvements Have Justified $700 Model, He Tells Conference.

By Harris B. Hull,
A Staff Correspondent.

Detroit, Mich., July 22.—Answering critics of the Government's "flivver plane" program, Eugene L. Vidal, director of the Bureau of Air Commerce, today said improvements in the design of small airplanes already have fully justified plans for the development of the private family plane, adding that "$700 is a good figure and we will stick to it."

The director revealed that the first successful "family flivver" would be flown to Washington "sometime next week from California." The new ship, described as "a tailless and a fool-proof airplane," already has been accepted by Government inspectors.

Vidal, who flew a Department of Commerce plane here yesterday from Washington with Frederick Neely, chief of the bureau's information division, spoke to a meeting of aviation editors and manufacturers gathered here for the all-American aircraft show. During his talk the head of the air commerce bureau hit at "lobbyists within the industry whose activities caused the withdrawal of a large PWA allotment for the advancement of aviation."

Describes Their Safety.

As tangible proof of engineering advance resulting from the Department of Commerce's program, Vidal said that at least one of the small air flivvers already built would not "spin into the ground or fall off." A survey of commerce records shows, he added, that spinning and falling off caused 70 per cent of the fatal accidents in private flying last year.

Vidal's defense of the bureau's policy to develop simpler airplanes for private fliers came in answer to a critical talk by E. E. Porterfield, aircraft manufacturer, who asked that Government officials stop talking about a $700 family plane. Porterfield added that "the work of the development section of the Bureau of Air Commerce duplicates engineering work undertaken by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics with headquarters at Langley Field, Virginia."

The airplane builder went on to say that the "industry does not want automobile engines used for flying purposes."

In answer to this and other critical statements by Porterfield, Vidal asked him what members of the aviation "industry" he spoke for. The aircraft manufacturer mentioned three concerns but refused to elaborate. The sharp exchange between Porterfield and Vidal came after the latter had admitted that one of the first family flivvers sponsored by the bureau had failed to meet flying requirements.

"Flivver" to Visit D. C.

The new aerial "flivver" which will visit Washington in the next few days is a high wing monoplane with an enclosed cabin. Its 95-horsepower engine turns a "pusher" propeller mounted on the rear of the airplane similar to the old-style Wright biplane of 25 years ago.

Adding a nautical touch to the show, a dozen New York fliers arrived here today, en masse, landing in the Detroit River in their amphibians and seaplanes. More than 15,000 residents of the Detroit area and visitors bought tickets to the show yesterday. The exhibition of late type commercial, Army and Navy models and equipment being held in the giant hangar at the Detroit city airport will continue through July 28.

Among the show officials carrying out plans for "sportsmen pilots day" to be held tomorrow is Chester H. Warington, Washington automobile dealer, who is vice president of the Sportsmen Pilots' Association.

President Gives Collier Trophy to Hegenberger

Collier Trophy Is Awarded to Hegenberger

Noted Aero-Navigation Expert Receives Prize From Roosevelt.

Capt. Albert F. Hegenberger, noted aeronavigation expert, yesterday was awarded the Collier Trophy at the White House by President Roosevelt. The award, most highly prized in American aviation, was made before several Federal and civil aviation leaders for Capt. Hegenberger's work in perfecting radio landing equipment.

President Roosevelt said he followed Hegenberger's career with interest and had watched the development of the system now being installed at the Washington airport.

Senator William G. McAdoo, of California, president of the National Aeronautic Association, read the citation accompanying the trophy. He told the President that through the use of the blind landing system Capt. Hegenberger made the world's first blind solo flight three years ago.

"It overcomes one of flying's greatest hazards," he said.

Witnessing the award were Second Assistant Postmaster General Harllee Branch, Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover, Maj. James Doolittle, Col. Edgar S. Gorrell, Army officers and officials of the Bureau of Air Commerce.

Will Rogers Offered A Flight to Moscow

Hollywood, July 22 (U.P.).—Will Rogers, stage and film comedian, may accompany Wiley Post, globe-girdling airman, on a flight to Moscow.

Post offered to take Rogers along on the flight, on which he will be accompanied by Mrs. Post. A third passenger, Fay Gillis, who aided Post in his world flight, was to have accompanied them, but changed her plans, leaving room for Rogers. Rogers was non-committal about the proposal.

ment fence and armed guard complement. Restaurants, department stores and even specialty shops conducted by lone proprietors were closed on the mob demand of "shut up shop or be wrecked."

Hotel service was suspended except for elevator operators and cigar stands. Housewives had the unique experience in Wabash Valley history of finding food unavailable behind the closed doors of groceries stocked lavishly with mid-Western summerp rovender.

Power Service Shut Off.

Gas stations were generally closed throughout the county by truck loads of husky miners from the bituminous coal districts in the Terre Haute neighborhood. Electrical power service was shut off early in the morning at the Terre Haute plant but was restored after a few minutes by hookups made through other mid-Western power systems. The source of the "juice" was kept secret from the strikers.

While all this was happening, Terre Haute's business and industrial leaders maintained themselves in a virtually constant "in conference" state in the office of Morton F. Hayman, local Chamber of Commerce secretary. The group adhered to a policy of absolute silence and refused to issue any statements which could be attacked in the general strike publicity committee.

Half of their day was occupied in making contact with William Baker, Vigo County sheriff, and in securing his signature required under Indiana law to an appeal to Gov. McNutt for troops and a martial law proclamation. Baker maintained until early afternoon that because the good-humored, mainly native American mob which had closed Terre Haute's shops and factories had committed no disorders he "had the situation perfectly in hand" and needed no assistance from the National Guard.

Guard Begins Arriving.

The National Guard detachments, which began arriving early in the evening, are expected to make it possible for all commercial and industrial Terre Haute, which is not "on strike" because of mob pressure rather than definite union action, to resume work by tomorrow noon. Admitted doubt, however, exists on the union side as to the New Deal interpretation of the whol general strike controversy.

"They say all our grievances were accumulated under Article 7(a) which isn't Constitutional and before the Wagner act was enacted so that they don't count any more," said Max Schaefer, vice president of the Terre Haute Central Labor Union.

"Under the circumstances the best thing that the Central Labor Union can do is to take the position that they didn't authorize this strike in he first place and will be glad to settle it on any reasonable basis if the armed thugs at the enameling and stamping plant are just moved out the way they came in, under police escort."

Morgenthau Waiting For Garner Vacation

Vice President Garner is Secretary Morgenthau's vacation barometer.

Asked if he had given any thought to his annual leave, the Treasury head said:

"I've given it plenty of thought, but am waiting to see when 'Jack' Garner buys his tickets for home."

Peery's Aids Hurry to Finish Reform Study

Advisory Council Groups Hope to Have Reports for August Session.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, July 22.—With the next meeting of Gov. Peery's advisory council, tentatively called for about the middle of August, sub-committees of the group are pushing to completion their respective studies, William R. Shands, legislative research director, said today.

The sub-committees' reports will be submitted to the council, which in turn will consider what recommendations should accompany them when they are laid before the governor.

The group studying the new trial justice system, under the chairmanship of Haskins Hobson, Chesterfield County delegate, has completed its report, as has the committee considering criminal procedure under the leadership of Ashton Dovell, of Williamsburg, unopposed candidate for Speaker of the House.

A committee studying probation and parole, of which Senator Hunter Miller is chairman, is drafting its tentative report.

Groups assigned State banking laws, under the direction of Senator George W. Layman, and the sale of delinquent real estate for taxes, headed by Tax Commissioner C. H. Morrissett, are still at work.

The report on recodification of Virginia's laws, referred to Dovell with Morrissett's assistance, also requires further work.

Relief 'Chiseler' Told To Stay Home 30 Days

St. Paul, Minn., July 22 (AP).—To stay in her home for 30 days was the penalty imposed by Municipal Judge Clayton Parks today upon Mrs. Albert Jackowiak for relief "chiseling."

She and her husband admitted receiving $174 in relief since January 1, while Jackowiak was earning more than $100 a month in a packing plant. The husband was sentenced to 30 days in the workhouse, Judge Parks commenting:

"There is no worse crime than this."

Lightning Balks North Pole Hop Of Soviet Flier

Secrecy Shrouds Program as Moscow Forecasts More Bad Weather.

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, July 22.—A sudden electrical storm broke over Moscow this afternoon and halted the take-off of the Soviet's "mystery" plane on a 6,250-mile flight over the North Pole to San Francisco. Further unfavorable weather was forecast.

Because of the secrecy attending the proposed flight, there were reports the plane had already left. These were denied, however, by Assistant Manager Vofan, of the sea route department. He declined to disclose the plane's whereabouts.

The United States Ambassador, William C. Bullitt, postponed a vacation to the Black Sea to be present at the beginning of the flight. As his vacation was scheduled to begin yesterday, the reports continued that the take-off was imminent.

A watchman at the Shelokova military airfield, 25 miles from the city, reported that he saw an unidentified ship take to the air Sunday morning. The commander of another military field said the flight would begin there at Sunday midnight (7 a. m. Eastern standard time). No support of either story could be found.

Previously there had been considerable excitement caused by a story that the over-the-world plane had crashed. It was dispelled by official announcement of the scheduled take-off.

Sigmund Levaneffsky, one of the Soviet Union's most celebrated fliers, will be in command of the flight. His co-pilot will be Baibukoff and his navigator Levchenko who came into prominence as the rescurer of James J. Mattern, when the American round-the-world flier was stranded in Anadir.

The flight, if it succeeds, will break the record of 5,657,387 miles of non-stop flying set by the Frenchmen Codos and Rossi in 1933 when they flew from New York to Rayak, Syria.

agent in Knox County, Ind., said only a few men engaged in FERA work had declined to accept employment.

Relief recipients generally advanced two reasons for not joining in the harvest—the pay was less than the 40-cent-an-hour scale on Federal projects; fear they could not return to relief after the threshing.

The Agricultural Department at Washington recently announced harvest hand wages averaged $1.41 a day for the country with a top of $2.25. A "marked increase" in demand was noted. It was placed as larger than usual because of improved crop conditions and prospects.

U. S. Orders Purge Of Relief Rolls

By the Associated Press.

Orders to cut off relief to anyone refusing employment last night was the Relief Administration's reply to widespread complaints that some of the needy preferred the dole to jobs.

With a harvest hand "revolt" barely curbed in other Western States, the South Dakota Relief Administration ordered both State and Federal payments stopped until needs for harvest help are filled.

Complaints also were made that at Winchester, Va., and in nearby counties, farmers offering harvest jobs "are laughed at by loafers at stores and filling stations, who say they are 'on relief.'"

"Any persons on relief who refuses a job," said Lawrence Westbrook, assistant relief administrator, "will be cut off immediately.

"We have instructed all State administrators to purge relief rolls as rapidly as possible."

Announcing that he was "debunking" assertions that numerous Baltimore relief recipients had rejected jobs, Harry Hopkins recently made public a study asserting that only four people turned down jobs without good reasons. Similar complaints also have been numerous in the berry-picking area of New Jersey, but Hopkins' investigators insisted that they were not justified.

High Court to Rule On Sugar Institute

Refining Companies Appeal New York Decision.

By the Associated Press.

The Supreme Court was asked yesterday to decide whether sugar refining companies which organized the Sugar Institute, Inc., had engaged in an unlawful combination and conspiracy.

Federal Judge Julian W. Mack held last October in New York City they were guilty of restraining interstate commerce and were in violation of the anti-trust laws by forming the institute and operating under a code of ethics.

The appeal was filed by the American Sugar Refining Co. and other refiners of sugar cane.

Mack declared the institute was organized to preserve uniformity in the price structure and to maintain relative prices. He added that, divorced from its illegalities, the institute offered opportunities for the kind of competition required under the anti-trust laws. For that reason, he found dissolution of the institute not necessary.

Astor to Guard Heir From Kidnap Plot

New York, July 22 (AP).—The New York Daily News says the $100,000,000 heir born Friday to Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor 3d will be guarded from kidnapers "with even more care than the second son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh."

The baby, who may inherit the entire Astor fortune, will be taken on an indefinite cruise in two weeks. The youthful father discussed the youngster, but refused to name the destination of his 99-foot yacht, which is being renovated at a cost of approximately $40,000.

Young Astor showed no reticence in describing the baby, however.

"He's pink and beautiful," he said. "He's a regular little boy."

Wins Baker Suit

MRS. J. BORDEN HARRIMAN.

Mrs. Harriman Wins Appeal in Suit Over Clay

Socialite Awarded $850 on Claim Dumping Ruined Grounds.

The question of who dumped hundreds of cubic yards of red clay on the extensively landscaped grounds of the home of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman at River road and Reservoir road was settled in the United States Court of Appeals yesterday when the estate of Joseph P. Maher lost a fight to set aside an $850 verdict returned in favor of the socially prominent Mrs. Harriman.

Mrs. Harriman went abroad while her estate was undergoing landscaping. When she returned she found that a section of her grounds had been buried beneath layers of clay and her wrath, unappeased, sent her into the District Supreme Court for redress.

Her suit named her one-time friend, Raymond T. Baker, and his wife, Mrs. Delphine Dodge Baker, the William P. Lipscomb Co., Inc., J. H. Small & Sons, Logan Pingree, and Mr. Maher as defendants. Maher died before the suit was settled, and Mr. Baker, former director of the Mint, died three months ago.

Verdicts freeing all of the defendants but Maher were returned in the District Supreme Court, and he was ordered to pay $850. Both Mrs. Harriman and Maher's estate appealed from that, and she also appealed from the order exonerating the other defendants. Maher, it was shown, knew his trucks were dumping the earth on Mrs. Harriman's estate, while none of the others either sanctioned the dumping or knew of it. Under those circumstances, the court said, only Maher could be held accountable.

The clay was taken from an estate Mr. Baker was constructing on acreage adjoining Mrs. Harriman's estate. The latter claimed the trucks had "trod down, trampled upon, consumed, destroyed, and spoiled the grass, herbage, shrubbery, ornamental trees, then and there growing and being of great value."

Barbour Asks Non-Suit Clause On All Bonds

Amendment Offered After Attack on Legislation in Gold Cases.

By the Associated Press.

Characterizing the Administration's gold clause legislation as "un-American and unfair," Senator Barbour (Republican), New Jersey, introduced an amendment yesterday to provide that all future Government obligations should state on their face that the Government is not subject to suit for principal or interest.

Under the amendment, future Government obligations would carry the following sentence:

"The Government of the United States shall not be subject to suit for non-recovery of either the principal or interest in respect to this obligation."

The Administration resolution would close the courts to suits against the Government seeking to recover damages on Federal obligations resulting from depreciation of the dollar.

"The resolution," he said, "professes simply to make impossible suits on the part of individuals seeking to recover the difference in value of the gold content of the bonds heretofore payable in gold. However, if passed in its present form, it would permit the Government, if it chose to do so, to suspend the payment of the principal of any bond when due, or any interest payments when due, at the same time denying the bandholder his right to sue the Government."

Eastman Opposed To Rail Pensions

Not Feasible at This Time, Coordinator Declares.

By the Associated Press.

Railroad pension legislation at this time was opposed yesterday by Joseph B. Eastman, Federal coordinator of transportation, before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

"Legislation at this time would necessarily be hasty and ill-conceived," said Eastman. He contended "enactment of the particular bills now under consideration would not be to the interest either of the employes or of the carriers."

The rail co-ordinator said he favored special pension legislation for the railroad employes, but pointed out they were covered by the social security bill, which already has passed both House and Senate.

Submitting a mass of statistics, Eastman said the evidence was "still insufficient to prove that a special retirement system for railroad employes is socially and economically sound."

Building Code For Arlington Nears Passage

County Manager Hopes to Have Measure in Effect Within 30 Lays.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 809. Clarendon, Va.

Arlington County Manager Roy S. Braden has announced he hopes to have a building code adopted and in effect within 30 days.

The code committee, which consists of William E. A. McShea, chairman; Arthur J. Porter, H. W. Beattie, Elmer Speer and C. W. Lee, will meet this week at the courthouse to consider proposed changes in the code which has been drafted. The amendments will be presented by builders of the county.

The committee's draft ofthe code has been published, but Braden stated it met with much opposition and as a result the meeting this week was planned for hearing all opponents.

The committee's draft of the code will be submitted to the county board July 30.

Dr. A. O. Henricks, evangelist, lecturer and educator, is in charge of the camp meeting at Park Lane, Arlington County. The services will continue through Sunday.

Song Evangelist Wendell Glen Henricks is in charge of the music. Mrs. A. O. Henrick has charge of the children's meeting held each afternoon.

Services are being held daily at 10:30 a. m., 2:30 p. m. and 7 p. m.

The committee of the auxiliary of the Arlington Hospital Association for the benefit festival at the Lyon Park Community House the night of July 31 will complete plans at a meeting today at 10 a. m. in the Lyon Park Community House. The meeting will conclude with a luncheon.

The Arlington Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting will be held tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

Dairy Awarded Milk Bottles in Suit

Competing Firm to Pay 1c Damages and Costs.

Possession of 15,000 milk bottles was awarded to the Holbrook Dairy Farms of Hyattsville, Md., by Judge Nathan Caton in Municipal Court yesterday. The bottles were a subject of controversy between the Hyattsville firm and the Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy.

The judgment was granted in default. In addition to deciding that the Holbrook firm should have the bottles, the judge also awarded it 1 cent in damages and ruled that the Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy should pay the costs of the suit.

The court was informed by counsel for the Holbrook diary that the two concerns had reached an agreement on the default verdict. At the time of the filing of the suit, E. N. Brawner, vice president of Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy, declared that the delay in returning the bottles was inadvertent.

Doherty Funeral In Savannah Today

Former Georgian Came to U. S. From Canada.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah A. Doherty, who died suddenly at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. J. L. Padgett, 3973 Thirty-fourth street, Brentwood, Saturday night, will be held in Savannah, Ga., today.

Although she had been ill for a week or more, Mrs. Doherty was believed much improved Saturday. An acute heart attack at 10 p. m. was the cause of her death.

Born in Quebec, Canada, she came to this country in 1890 with her husband, Charles Doherty, making their home in Savannah. Both had been residents of Brentwood for the past several years.

Besides her husband and Mrs. Padgett, she is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Mable Beranc, of Savannah, and two sons, James Doherty, of Brentwood, and C. A. Doherty, of Jersey City, N. J.

Former Gov. Pollard Gives Frazier Support

Another indorsement was given yesterday to T. McCall Frazier, of the Virginia alcoholic beverage control board, for the position as director of the Federal Alcohol Control administration in succession to Joseph Choate, according to the Associated Press.

"Frazier is an excellent executive and will make good in that or any other job," said former Governor John Garland Pollard, of Virginia, a lifelong "dry," under whom Frazier served as commissioner of insurance and banking, and director of the division of motor vehicles, after managing the Pollard gubernatorial campaign in 1929.

Suicide Is Verdict In Death at Jail

Cumberland, Md., July 22 (AP).—A verdict of suicide was returned by a coroner's jury today in the death of Alvin Stein, 26, who was found hanged in his cell in the Cumberland City Jail early yesterday. Stein, who was held on a disorderly conduct charge, was the third prisoner to commit suicide in the jail since May 30.

Women's Clubs Plan to Select Vice Chairmen

Maryland Democrats to Name Leaders for 1936 Campaign.

Vice chairmen to take charge of the 1936 campaign in southern Maryland will be appointed in a few days by Mrs. Frances McFadden, of Mount Rainier, chairman of the United Womens Democratic Clubs of that section.

Each vice chairman will appoint a committee of three women in her counties, thus forming an advisory board. The district includes Prince Georges, Charles, St. Marys, Calvert and Anne Arundel Counties.

The action was decided at a meeting in Baltimore last week of the executive committee of the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Maryland. Mrs. Mary H. Duvall, president, presided.

She instructed chairmen of the districts to name vice chairmen.

The women will select delegates to the State convention next May. Each county will be entitled to one delegate for each State legislator.

Mrs. McFadden said yesterday she has appointed Mrs. Viola S. Lyons, of Calvert County, to represent the district on the nominating committee of the State clubs. The women will hold elections next year.

Sunday Movies Up to Laurel Town Council

Third of Voters Petition for Change in Law Forbidding Shows.

Fight for Sunday moving picture shows in Laurel, Md., will be renewed when the town council holds its regular meeting the first of next month, it was announced yesterday.

The movement to throw the town open to Sunday shows, championed for several years by the "progressive element," flared into reality last April when one-third of the registered voters of the town signed a petition favoring the cause.

The petition, asking for a vote on the question, was presented the mayor and council. Under the law, such a petition must be passed on within 30 days.

So City Solicitor Ogle Marbury was directed to draw up an ordinance including not only Sunday movies, but also Sunday baseball and Sunday basket ball. These games have been played in the town for several years with no admission charge.

This ordinance was laid before the June meeting of the council, the authorities reversed their action and directed Marbury to draw a new ordinance covering only the moving picture question. The new ordinance was presented at the July meeting, but no action was taken.

Those in favor of showing moving pictures on the Sabbath point out that the residents are driving 20 miles to see pictures in Washington, and that such trade should be kept at home.

Bitter opposition has been registered by the more conservative element, led by the churches.

Paralysis Case Bars Children From Meeting

Herndon Mayor Asks Them to Stay Away From Public Gatherings.

Following the discovery of a case of infantile paralysis, Allen H. Kirk, Mayor of Herndon, Va., late yesterday issued a proclamation forbidding children under 16 to attend any public gathering.

The woman found to have infantile paralysis is 38 years of age and lives on the outskirts of Herndon. She has two children. One of the children is in a Washington hospital and has just undergone an operation for mastoids. The other child is at home suffering from an illness that has not yet been diagnosed.

Dr. Carson said last night that the motion picture theater in Herndon would be asked to bar all children under 16. He announced at the same time that pastors of churches would be asked to cancel children's Sunday school classes and any picnics that might have been arranged.

County Police Plan Drive To Enforce Hucksters' Law

1111 Oak Ave., Silver Spring, Md.
Telephone Shepherd 2363.

Rigorous enforcement of the new hucksters' law and the coal and coke sales laws of Montgomery County will begin August 1, it was announced last night by Chief of Police J. William Garrett at Rockville, Md.

County police will halt persons violating the law and issue warnings for first offenses until August 1. Violators caught after being warned will be arrested and charged, Chief Garrett said. The time of grace is given in order that persons who are in the huckstering business or in the business of selling coal and coke from door to door can be informed of the new law.

Two men have been arrested for violation of the coal law, but both were released with suspended sentences by Judge Harold C. Smith in county police court at Rockville when they said they had not been informed of the law.

The huckster law requires that any person, association, firm or corporation which hawks, sells, vends or offers for sale on the streets or highways of Montgomery County at retail any fruits, vegetables, fish, meat, paultry, oysters, goods, wares or merchandise of any kind whatsoever must obtain a license from the clerk of the circuit court at Rockville. The license costs $100.

The law does not apply to sale of milk, ice, vegetables, butter, eggs, poultry, fruit or country produce sold or offered for sale by the makers or growers thereof.

The coal law requires a ticket showing the vendor's name, the date and the weight of coal or coke sold in Montgomery County, together with a ticket showing that it has been weighed in the county and the name and address of the weigher.

State's Attorney James H. Pugh also has announced that he will prosecute vigorously any person violating the laws.

Full information about the huckster's law can be obtained from Clayton K. Watkins, clerk of the Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md., who also is the person to issue the license. Mr. Watkins' office is in the courthouse at Rockville and his telephone number is Rockville 360.

The Young Republican Club of Montgomery County, Md., will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, on Edgemoor lane, Edgemoor, Md.

Walter W. Dawson is president and Paul M. Coughlan is vice president of the club. Plans for the coming national election campaign will be discussed, as well as other matters of importance to Republicans of the county.

Jesse T. Mower, of Silver Spring, was arrested yesterday on charges of malicious destruction of personal property, and assault and battery. His companion, Robert Hutchison, of Silver Spring, was held for investigation, pending further investigation of the case by Montgomery County police. Both were lodged in the Rockville Jail.

According to police, the pair drove up to the home of R. L. Fearn, who operates a goat farm on the Redland road near Norbeck, Md., yesterday. Hutchison went to the barn to talk with Mr. Fearn. Mrs. Fearn heard a noise and went to the door to find Mower trying to open the door. She asked him what he wanted, but his replies were unsatisfactory, she told police. She called Fearn to the house.

Mower, meantime, had broken the glass on the door and released the latch, she said. He entered the house, leaving a trail of blood from a cut on his wrist. When Fearn attempted to oust him, he struck the dairyman and knocked him through a glass door, causing painful cuts, it was claimed.

Fearn then left the house, Mower allegedly pursuing him. Farm hands ran to the scene and subdued Mower, who then was tied and held by the group. He was arrested by Sergt. Roy Bodmer and Policeman James Burdette, of Rockville police headquarters, and taken to Rockville Jail.

Mower was in a weakened condition from loss of blood when he arrived at the jail and was treated by Dr. W. S. Murphy, who said his condition was not serious.

Hutchison, who left when the fight started, was picked up by policemen but no charges were placed against him. He is being held for investigation, however.

A dinner under joint auspices of St. Martin's and St. Rose's churches will be held tomorrow and Thursday at 5 p. m. at the St. Martin's School hall, Gaithersburg, Md.

The Rev. M. J. Finnerty, new pastor of the church, heads the committee in charge, with the following sub-chairmen: C. K. Meem, treasurer; Mrs. A. V. Hogan, supper tables; Mrs. Bernard Diamond, cake table; Miss Marie Stang, fancy table; Miss Eulalie Boland, fishpond; Paul Ramsdell, ice cream; Elmer Walter, beverages and Miss Mary Rome, tickets.

Hostesses are: Mrs. R. L. Hickerson, Mrs. Edward Broslus, Mrs. Hobart Ramsdell, Mrs. Paul Ramsdell, Mrs. William Waters, Mrs. Worthington Griffith, Mrs. C. C. Royer, Miss Mary Gloyd, Miss Catherine Riordan, Miss Edna Beall, Mrs. Bessie Walker.

A benefit dance will be held Thursday night at 9:30 o'clock at the school hall, Mrs. Elinor Miles is chairman.

A hearing on the application of the Security Land Co. for rezoning of a tract of land on Edgemore land near Wisconsin avenue, Bethesda, from residential "A" to "C," in order that a two-story apartment house may be built, was held last night at the Bethesda County Building. There was no opposition to the change, which had been approved by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission. County Commissioner Robert D. Hagner indicated that he would recommend approval of the petition.

The Luther League of the Takoma Park Lutheran Church will hold a social tomorrow night in the home of Mrs. Harvey H. Brake in Washington Grove, Md.

Members will assemble at the church, corner of Fifth and Dahlia streets, at 7:15 p. m. and go in cars to the meeting.

The second annual 4-H Girls' Rally Day will be held August 2 at the Liberty Grove Grange Hall at Murtonsville, Md. As a feature of the afternoon program club members will stage a style show and exhibits of clothing and canned food. Club record books will be judged. Club members placing first in each class will compete in the State-wide contest at College Park, during the annual 4-H Club week.

Included in the evening program will be a talk by Lois Mollyneaux, who will give her impression of the National 4-H Club camp.

Miss Edythe M. Turner, home demonstration agent for Montgomery County, has announced that 20 members of the 4-H Girls' Clubs have sent in enrollment cards for the annual 4-H Boys' and Girls' Club week at the University of Maryland, August 8 to 13. The following have enrolled:

Fairfax Board Backs $340,050 Building Plans

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 126-J.

The county school board yesterday tentatively approved a school building program totaling $340,050. The program is to be financed by a grant of 45 per cent from the Federal Government, which will amount to $153,022.50. The balance is to be financed through a county bond issue.

The board instructed Superintendent W. T. Woodson to take the necessary proceedure in having the Circuit Court of Fairfax County call a special bond issue election.

According to estimates of the board, the bonds would be issued for a 30-year period at a low rate of interest and to raise the necessary sinking funds and interest a county-wide tax of 8 cents on each $100 assessed property valuation would be necessary.

Superintendent Woodson also was instructed to make application to the Public Works Administration for the 45 per cent portion of the cost.

Under the tentative program the school board would erect additions and new buildings at the following places:

Annandale—Construction of two classrooms and furniture, $10,600.

Centerville—Alterations to the present building for an auditorium, including equipment, $20,000.

Chesterbrook—Addition of two classrooms, furniture, $6,600.

Franconia—Two classrooms and furniture, $10,000.

Groveton—Three classrooms and furniture, $14,900.

Woodlawn—Six classrooms, auditorium and furniture and a tract of approximately 8 acres, $54,650.

Lorton—Auditorium and two classrooms and furniture, $33,000.

Town of Falls Church—Three classrooms and furniture, $19,000. This project will be financed entirely by the town.

Lee-Jackson High School—Home economics cottage and approximately 10 acres of land, $12,000.

Lincolnia—Six rooms and auditorium and furniture and approximately 8 acres of land, $42,650.

Gum Spring, colored, three classrooms and furniture, $6,000.

Seminary, colored, one-room building and furniture and two acres of land, $3,300.

The above estimates on each of the buildings were prepared and submitted by the State school architect, Raymond V. Long.

The Young Democratic Club of Fairfax County will hold its regular monthly meeting tonight in the courthouse at Fairfax. Plans will be made for a last-minute political rally about August 1 preceding the Democratic primary, August 6. All local candidates having opposition will be given an opportunity to speak.

The candidates for State Senator will be given a chance to explain the issues in the senatorial fight. Representative Clifford A. Woodrum, of Virginia, is to be the principal speaker. The rally will be held in the auditorium of the Herndon High School.

Herndon Council, Junior Order of Fraternal Americans, at its regular meeting elected and installed the following officers, with Edgar E. Gillette as installing officer: President, Mr. Ernest E. Beard; vice president, H. Arnold Greear; secretary, Edgar E. Gillette; financial secretary, J. D. Groh; treasurer, Vernon C. Cockerille; chaplain, Ned Sutphin; warden, Willis W. Potter; junior past president, George Mock; inside sentinel, A. R. Matthews; outside sentinel, B. M. Page. Gillette and Arthur E. Wynkoop were appointed delegates to represent Herndon Council at the State Council next May.

Boy, 7, Gets Assistance For Pair Pinned by Car

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Danville, Va., July 22.—But for the presence of mind of James Price, 7-year-old colored boy, his father, John Price, and Lucille Newman, also colored, probably would have died under their car after it had skidded off the Richmond road and toppled down a steep bank.

The little boy was thrown out of the car. Hearing the cries of the two pinned in the auto, he scrambled back to the road and flagged passing cars, standing in the road, his face and head cut. Motorists lifted the car. The woman's leg had been cut off.

London Tin Price Jumps $45 Per Ton

London, July 22 (AP).—Excitement prevailed on the Metal Exchange here today when the price for cash tin rose nine pounds sterling ($45) to £245 per ton, the highest price in several years. The premium for cash tin over the three-month delivery price increased to 20 pounds sterling.

Meeting Is Planned On Highway Closing

Arlington Groups to Discuss Military Road Plans.

A joint meeting of the Arlington County Civic Federation and the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce will be held tonight at 7:15 o'clock in the offices of the chamber to consider the proposal to close Military road which bisects Washington Airport.

B. M. Smith, chairman of the County Board, and Roy S. Braden, County Manager, will attend to explain the county's attitude on the question.

The next regular meeting of the Civic Federation which was to be held on August 6, the day of the primary election, has been changed to July 30 at the Lyon Community House, President Arthur Orr announced.

Do Walk On Grass!

Last month a New York lady advertised in a weekly book review magazine for some spot in Washington where she could "live with books, sunlight and privacy." She was answered in these columns by an editorial which suggested that, while the Capital City abounds in the first two requisites, it is woefully lacking in the last and most desirable of the three. In an effort to be cooperative, perhaps we were a bit premature. For the need of a site here that would be free from automobiles has recently been recognized and Washingtonians may, within a very short time, find something of the peace that makes Bermuda such a haven. A park where there are no odors from gasoline, no raucous squawk from ceaseless honking, and no fear of the automobile just around the corner seems almost too good to be true.

In four months' time, some 200 members of the Civilian Conservation Corps have managed to give a very good idea of what this pedestrians' heaven will resemble when the 95 acres of Theodore Roosevelt Island is finally converted into a woodsy retreat. Though it will be some years before the project is completed, there is a sort of unique consolation in the fact that work on the pastoral Utopia has been started.

Additional trees are to be planted in cool groves and along bridle paths. Winding trails where a hiker may exercise to his heart's content are being cleared. But the chief virtue of this piece of mammoth planning is the strict taboo on automobiles, thus affording a quiet rusticity for those who simply desire to sit and stare off into space. It's the best antidote known for city-sickness. An English woman once said that the trouble with America was that no one over here ever took the time to lean over a fence and look and look. It should afford Washingtonians great pleasure to know that before very long they will be in a position to answer both the New York lady and the English woman.

Exposing The Tax Fantasy.

The absence of any comprehensive analysis of the President's tax program from Administration circles is being offset, to some extent, by carefully organized data from private sources. The President sketchily outlined a method of procedure, broadly indicating what he wants Congress to do and to avoid doing. The Treasury offered a few "guesses" as to the amount of revenue that might be obtained from various combinations of taxes of the approved variety and the Senate Finance Committee released some tentative schedules of new taxes with estimated yields. For the most part, however, the public must rely upon other sources of information.

Without any definite plan or provisional draft of a bill to guide it, the House Ways and Means Committee undertook to hold hearings on a tax program consisting mainly of a statement of general objectives and policies. Under the circumstances it is not surprising that the few witnesses appearing to testify wondered whether there was anything sufficiently tangible to call for an expression of opinion.

In face of these handicaps, private investigators and tax experts have performed a most valuable service in throwing light upon the obscurity that surrounds the new tax program. The report of the United States Chamber of Commerce released a few days ago and the more extensive study made by the National Industrial Conference Board have provided facts, figures, and comment sorely needed to arouse the public to a perception of the dangers and inadequacies of the proposed tax program.

Both reports stress the fact that revenue is not the primary objective. As the National Industrial Conference Board says, the President's message carried "a complete and unqualified indorsement of the use of taxation for nonfiscal purposes." The board proceeds to clinch this assertion by careful estimates of probable returns from suggested levies on inheritances, large incomes, and big corporations. It shows, too, that the social and economic objectives sought by the President through the break-up of large fortunes and large industrial corporations are incompatible with a program of taxation for revenue.

So far as increased surtaxes on incomes in the topmost groups are concerned, it is demonstrable from examination of official tax returns that relatively little revenue could be derived from additional levies, no matter how high. Moreover, estimates of probable returns are made extraordinarily unreliable because heavily taxed individuals have the alternative of investing in tax-exempt securities. Although the President has specifically recommended the elimination of tax exemption by constitutional amendment, the board concludes that there is little reason to believe the States would ratify such an amendment within the near future. They have too much to lose and too little to gain. Hence, for an indefinite future, any pronounced increases in surtaxes will accelerate a flight to tax-exempt issues, thus depriving the Government of revenues and also defeating its efforts to break up large fortunes.

In brief, the Roosevelt tax program contemplates an assault upon bigness with clumsy weapons which the agile will be able to dodge, while misdirected blows will fall upon small shareholders in large corporations. Ample evidence to support this conclusion has been clearly set forth in the detailed and critical analyses of the experts.

Legislative Chaos.

An insurgent maneuver to inject the bonus and other inflationary measures into the current legislative situation is all that was needed to make it a complete muddle. Both the Senate and the House would rather vote for the bonus than for new taxes. A determined effort to revive this issue along with the inflationary Frazier-Lemke bill may completely clog the wheels of legislation or leave on the President's desk a tax or banking bill that he will not sign.

Senator Borah probably does not expect either the Patman or the Frazier-Lemke bill to be enacted. His chief purpose in bringing them forward at this time seems to be to embarrass the Administration and to emphasize the futility of trying to devise new taxes at this session. From the legislative viewpoint his tactics are utterly indefensible. But they will doubtless enlist the support of many Senators who consider themselves justified in using fire to fight fire.

Fundamentally, of course, the Borah proposal is not the cause of the legislative dilemma. The Senator from Idaho has merely taken advantage of a situation created by the President. When Mr. Roosevelt took over Huey Long's share-the-wealth scheme for political purposes he played directly into the hands of other politicians who are sponsoring class legislation of a different sort. A scramble to fasten tails on the share-the-wealth kite was inevitable. That the President failed to anticipate such imitation of his own gesture, or thought he would be able to control Congress after his program had been outlined, is a serious reflection upon his political leadership.

During most of the current session Congress has been amenable to the President's wishes. But no impartial observer could fail to detect a rising tide of revolt against dictation from the White House. The Executive whip has been cracked too often. Some legislators have become sullen and resentful. All of them are tired and eager to go home. A large number consider it unfair and impractical for the President to request enactment of complicated legislation near the close of a session when they had been led to believe that no tax bill would be offered this year.

In these circumstances the Borah proposal must be considered seriously, in spite of Senator Robinson's assumed nonchalance. The President's determination to drive a revolutionary bill through Congress without adequate study or analysis has given every discontented element in Congress an opportunity to press for passage of bills for the special benefit of groups they represent. Where there is one vote in favor of "soaking the rich" there will be ten for extravagant schemes through which many times the estimated increase in revenue may be spent.

Effective leadership calls for an understanding of personal limitations as well as powers. The President seems to have grossly overemphasized his ability to secure drastic, made-to-order legislation at the fag-end of a busy session. Now that the chaotic results of such an attempt are more fully apparent, Congress may well avoid further wear and tear upon its own nerves and upon the patience of the country by concluding business well in hand and going home.

Homespun Opera.

There has never been any danger in this country of having to plow under an overproduction of native operas. During the first 25 years of the Metropolitan Opera Company not a single American opera was presented. It was not until 1934, under the guidance of Mr. Gatti-Casazza, that three were given in a season. This year an opera written by an American and sung by an American was presented by the Metropolitan. But its theme, involving a pasha, was in no way indigenous to the land which gave it birth.

Two current announcements, however, stir hope that at last opera depicting contemporary America is in the offing. The coincidence goes even beyond the fact that both are being written by Americans, for both are laid in the South and both have Negroes in the leading role. The one, based on Dubose Heyward's "Porgy" is in the final stage of polishing by it's composer, George Gershwin. Noted especially for his "Rhapsody in Blue," Gershwin heretofore has been chiefly concerned with catching and orchestrating the hurly burly tempo of a jazz age. But in this, his first serious work, he has striven to combine the inflections of darky dialect, the sweetness of Negro spirituals, and the zest of crap games as played under hot South Carolina skies.

The other opera, nearing completion under the collaboration of Roark Bradford and Jacques Wolfe, has New Orleans as its setting. The main character, for whom the production is named, is a cotton picker known as "John Henry." Roark Bradford has long been considered a sympathetic portrayer of the black man of the South. It will be interesting to contrast his interpretation with that of Gershwin, who is just turning his talents in that direction.

Neither Mr. Gershwin nor Mr. Bradford ventures to predict that his efforts will be rewarded by recognition from the Metropolitan Opera Company. Nor can this be anything but a glowing possibility until after the "try-outs." The important thing now is that our composers are finally taking an interest in a field that has been too long neglected.

A Wedge For Dictatorship?

A significant debate looms before the House in the matter of the Tydings-McCormack bill which has already been passed by the Senate and has the approval of the House Military Affairs Committee. The bill is designed to punish > whoever publishes or distributes any book, pamphlet, paper, print, article, letter or other writing which advises, counsels, urges or solicits any member of the military or naval forces of the United States to disobey the laws or regulations governing such military or naval establishments.

Representative Maverick, a member of the House committee, has served notice that he will fight the bill to the utmost on the grounds that it is a violation of the constitutional provisions for free speech and free press. To this Representative McCormack has replied that Mr. Maverick has long been known to be one "opposed to any legislation which tended to protect the rights of law-abiding citizens who do not want their country overthrown by a bunch of Communists whose flag is not the Stars and Stripes but the red flag of revolution."

This is fulsome talk. Worse than that, it is dangerous talk. Representative Maverick does not oppose the bill because he cares little whether the Stars and Stripes are drenched red by the blood of revolution but because he sees, as everyone not afflicted by pseudo-patriotism must also see, that the proposed bill is a menace to the freedom of expression which American citizens have always enjoyed.

Surely military and naval authorities are able to control subversive activity within the ranks. Codes of both departments provide for the treatment of mutiny and disobedience. Why, then, this bill? It is the product of eminently sincere minds but minds so obsessed by an abhorrence of Communism and other foreign influences that they overlook far more imminent dangers to the American system of civil liberties.

The abridgement in the proposed bill is slight, admittedly, but once sanctioned it might provide the entering wedge for more comprehensive censorship of speech and the press. Certainly it would encourage those who are working to set up dictatorial authority in the United States. It is only through fearless and unhindered criticism that the country can be guarded against tendencies in that direction.

HOLC Foreclosures.

The announcement that the HOLC has started foreclosure proceedings against more than 700 home owners who have failed to meet payments on loans undoubtedly has its bright side. One of the greatest obstacles to successful functioning of Government lending agencies is the political pressure brought to bear upon them to spare delinquent debtors at the expense of taxpayers who must cover losses resulting from bad loans. The temptation to laxness is especially great when Government officials are dealing with individual home owners through a corporation organized for the purpose of preventing wholesale foreclosures and sacrifice sales of mortgaged property.

Nevertheless, when it becomes evident that the debtor either can not or will not pay the amounts due as interest on his loan, the HOLC, like any private lender, is under the necessity of taking action to protect itself. Otherwise the incentive for evasion of payments, to say nothing of the evils of carrying along debtors unable to pay, would lead to rapidly mounting losses. The extremely limited number of foreclosures, as compared with the total number of loans made, indicates that so far leniency has been the rule and that no unnecessary hardships have been inflicted upon temporarily distressed home owners.

In view of the fact that the bonds issued by the HOLC are guaranteed by the Government, it is imperative to restrict losses upon the huge contingent liabilities incurred in refinancing mortgage indebtedness. For that reason it is good news to hear that the mortgagor must pay the penalty of a failure to live up to the terms of his contract.

An evangelist says there is no buying or selling in heaven. Of course not; that isn't where business has gone.

Emancipation in Ethiopia.

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The way in which Emperor Haile Selassie avoids dislodging the chip from the Italian shoulder is a model of circumspection. He has assented to all conciliation efforts, and has refused to mobilize. Now, hearing that Italy considers it a moral duty to clean up his realm because of slavery there, he has cannily issued a decree abolishing serfdom. He had already formally abolished slavery in 1923, so it would have been awkward diplomacy to abolish it again. It is known to survive extensively in Ethiopia, however, and to have been supplanted at many points by a form of peonage which now falls under the imperial ban.

Ethiopia, with a population of 10,00,000, still has at least 2,000,000 slaves, says a writer in Current History. Proscription of slavery was a requirement for the nation's admission into the League of Nations. Nevertheless, the traffic continues, and raiders make a practice of carrying off entire villages. It may be that now, since he desires to present his country favorably before the world in its time of danger, Haile Selassie will take drastic steps to root out the practice. At any rate, he forces Italy to invent another pretext for invading Ethiopia.

The Ways Out.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Had I been advised six years ago by "F. J. R." that worthless securities made good wall paper, my lodgings might now be covered—but I dumped them all in the waste basket! However, with all due respect to the advice offered by "F. J. R." I should feel far happier at seeing my walls entirely festooned with honest lottery tickets than to see them graced with one of the worthless notes sold me by a certain real estate man, whom I am now helping to support in jail.

There is no use for "F. J. R." to crack at the New Deal at this late day. The question now is to try to find some way of paying off the debts, if it is possible to do so, of which the public would approve. Many ways have been advocated, but each has met with varying objections.

Objections have been raised against a national lottery by some, because the Sunday school teacher said it was wrong—objections have been raised against it by the advocates of those highly respectable betting games, such as prizefighting, bridge and horse, dog, turtle and cat races, perhaps because the lottery would take away from their incomes.

We must all try to realize that the debt must be paid, no matter who contracted it, and that we must try to arrive at some plan, if possible, upon which all might agree, and also which might hurt the fewest people. There are three ways that might suit everybody:

1. Tax the poor—they have so little to tax they wouldn't care.

2. Make a sales tax for the poor—the things they buy are so cheap a cent or two tax wouldn't matter.

3. Sit supinely down and wait, and maybe after a while the money for the debt might come down like manna from heaven. R. J. F.

Appreciation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An article in July 11 issue of The Post by Raymond Clapper, concerning a "Whispering Campaign" against President Roosevelt's health and state of mind should be the concern of every honest American.

No honest American wants government by whispers, and in this case lies. Whether one is for or against President Roosevelt's policies is quite beside the point. The point is this: Any person or persons who conduct a whispering campaign are totally unfit to conduct a political campaign.

Please thank Mr. Clapper for his article.

A Blot on Placid Avon?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Uncle Billy (William Lyon to you) Phelps never better displayed his rambunctious and incurable optimism than in his words of tolerance for the outside and praise for the inside of the Shakespeare Memorial Theater at Stratford-upon-Avon. His kindly words for the performance are probably more deserved, as I have never seen a poor performance by that company of players.

But the building, outside and in! The outside looks like an old-fashioned $2-a-day brick hotel in a county-seat town out West, and the inside resembles an advanced case of delirium tremens with fusel-oil complications. Nothing more inclined to make the "Swan of Avon" revolve rapidly in his sarcophagus could have been devised by even a crazier, if any, architect than the one responsible for building that haunting architectural excrescence with the help of American sucker money that could not foresee this nightmare-in-brick.

They say that when Harry Thaw got his first look at the inside of one of New York's tolerably new theaters, he burst out crying because he realized he had shot the wrong architect. If Harry had got a glimpse of the inside of this theater Uncle Billy Phelps likes, he would have wept himself to death that he hadn't hoarded his cartridges 30 years longer to get the dame who made this hideous blot on the lovely banks of the placid Avon.

Sees Radicalism Growing.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your two editorials, "A Really Dangerous Lobby" and "The Rules of the Game," are just one-third O. K. The President is right when he insists on getting things done; he was elected by the people just for that purpose, and if he fails to drive the crooks out, the answer is plain as A B C. The people will put in someone that will do the job thoroughly.

I know. I travel around the country, and the people are getting more radical all the time. They will insist on a New Deal and get it.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been a stamp collector for many years and newcomer in the city. I have read philatelic articles all over this country in newspapers and periodicals, but never in any medium have I ever seen such a wealth of timely material as appeared in your issue of last Sunday.

You are to be congratulated.

The 'Married Clause' Argument

To The Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to answer "A Reader" in regard to the marriage clause of the economy act.

If this law had ever been properly enforced it might have done some good. There are plenty of married women employed by Uncle Sam in the higher salary brackets who, without exception, when this clause was supposedly put into effect, retained their positions through political influence. And this influence is as active in Civil Service as it is elsewhere.

As for saying that married women are more inefficient than single girls, this is as much a falsehood as the claim that single girls are not as efficient as married women. Neither class has any hold on efficiency.

In many cases, like my own, married women holding positions in the Government, give employment to others in the city, who would never get a cent unless these women hired them as caretakers of the home or nurses for the children.

Instead of the "marriage clause" why not put it this way: All who do not need the money they earn—and this decision to be made by an impartial observer—to be eliminated from all positions; not only in the Government, but everywhere. If they claim that they work for the love of working, there are still plenty of social service positions to be held by volunteers.

ANNE HUNT.

Washington, July 18.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am a married woman. Believing that it is one's duty to himself and to society to make the best of himself in the way of improvement, I spent a great deal of hard-earned money on my education and have two degrees. Incidentally, I still owe a little money borrowed for school expenses, but if the Government doesn't take "A Reader" too seriously and dispense with my services in the very near future, I shall have that obligation taken care of shortly.

It so happens that the depression was, and is, rather a blow to our families. We have to send money home. By the time you take that out of two low salaries, and add to that the expense of tuition, rent, groceries and insurance, you can easily see that there is little, if anything, left for clothes (yet we working girls must always look trim in the office, you know) and nothing at all left for pleasure.

In contrast, the single girls at both my office and my husband's drive to work in their cars, wear the latest style in clothes, always are manicured and finger-waved and many of them either live at home with their families or live with two or three other girls, thus cutting living expenses to a low amount.

A Reader suggests that one should remain single until he is fixed well enough financially to marry. For the middle-class person of this country there has been no such time since the depression. Are we then to sacrifice our lives and our hope of a home, husband and children waiting for a big-paying position which never seems to come to us? That is ridiculous!

A Reader infers that the married women "don't care" about established homes and refuse to recognize the sacredness of the marriage bond. Merciful heavens! Can't he see that it is this same sacredness of the marriage bond that makes the married woman willing to get out and work all day in an office and come home and work half the night in her home—to make her marriage a success, to help her husband earn the living for them both.

A Reader speaks of the rapidly increasing divorce rates, due to married women working. Personally, I believe that the quickest way in the world to force young couples into divorce is to deny them the right to earn a decent living; to take away their self-respect by forcing them to go on the relief; to take away all hope of advance and future security by forcing them to live on a $1,440 salary for the rest of their lives—just because they have had the temerity to get married. The quickest way in the world to break down the morale of a people is to take those who are well fitted to be self-supporting and deny them the right to work—the hope to live.

A Reader, why can't we get together on this thing and look at both sides of the question. Why not work for a law which would set a maximum for the combined salaries of husband and wife in cases where both are working for the Government? If we can't share the wealth, let's at least be willing to share the work.

Berries And Such

ONE of our fair-weather friends, now occupying his summer [illegible] wanted a chest of blackberries and went to a farmer who grows them. (A "chest" is the local name for a crate of 32 quart baskets.)

"I'm afraid I haven't got that many ripe now," said the farmer. "The birds are getting them as fast as they ripen."

"Why don't you shoot the birds?" he was asked.

"Well," he replied, "I don't mind shooting thrashers. I can even shoot robins. But I just hate to kill the little woodsy birds."

To which the city man harshly retorted, "Sentiment should not be permitted to interfere with business."

What struck me at the time was that each man libeled himself and bragged at the same moment. It is very curious, this urge so many of us have to appear hard-boiled. I believe the farmer would shoot neither thrasher nor robin and that the city man at heart sympathizes with his point of view. Furthermore they could, and probably would, justify their tender-heartedness by declaring, with truth, that the birds do much more good than harm.

But if I were a fruit grower I could wish that the birds would show a little better judgment. For every blackberry bush planted and cultivated there are a hundred wild ones on the edges of the woods and in the marshes. And the wild blackberries are good enough for any bird. As a matter of fact there is less difference between the wild blackberry and the cultivated blackberry than you would suspect; much less than between the wild and cultivated strawberry. The wild blackberry is still a good-sized and exceedingly juicy bite.

But you can't expect birds, wild or tame, to discriminate. Take chickens. I don't keep chickens; I keep a chicken, Henrietta, an imp of Satan. Somebody told me that chickens would eat potato bugs, so I took her along to help me with a job of "bugging." She followed me up one row and down another, always at my heels; and she ate everything she came across, except potato bugs, even though I placed them right under her beak.

But what has that got to do with berries? Nothing.

* * * *

Eph and I and Bing, the pup, went blackberrying this morning; not up one row and down another like respectable horticulturists, but all among the brambles like tramps. Eph and I filled a pail in short order. I don't know how many Bing got, for all he did was bite and swallow; but he worked fast and long, and he evidently knew that the blackberry is green when it is red, for he ate nothing but the big black juicy ones.

"Dey's a chiggah fo' ev'y bewwy," said Eph, "but I'se tough an' you gits 'em all."

But my heart bled for the poor little chiggers wrestling with my high rubber boots. And when they got at me at last (as of course they would) they were going to be terribly disappointed, for I was anointed with coal oil.

And there, surrounded by bushes laden with berries, I wondered why so many of them were bound to go to waste; why more were not daily shipped to Baltimore and Washington. Once upon a time the matter of transportation had something to do with it, but with good roads and plenty of trucks that reason is no longer a good one.

Compared to other crops comparatively few berries are grown in the county and the few experiments made with shipping have not always been profitable. I know a farmer who last year sent a lot of strawberries to market and didn't get enough for them to pay the pickers. This year he had better luck.

Among the recent settlers in the county is a Washington commission man. The story goes that he intended to grow small fruit in large quantities and ship it to Washington; but the fruit he has grown this year he has sold right in the county. He had a man out on a truck and in one day he disposed of 20 crates. The summer visitors help to swell the trade but they don't do all the buying.

* * * *

Take it all in all, I am inclined to think St. Marys' Countians have overlooked a bet. There is great land here for the growing of berries, dewberries, blackberries strawberries, raspberries, wineberries, elderberries, huckleberries, poke berries and others. All grow wild in great abundance.

So far as I can learn, the dewberries and the wineberries have never been cultivated in the county. The dewberry is a kind of blackberry that trails along the ground instead of growing on a bush. The wineberry closely resembles the red raspberry, but is a shade lighter in color, and, moreover, lacks the patina, the bloom, of the glaucous raspberry. The elderberry and the poke berry are esteemed almost wholly for their wine.

There are possibilities, I think, in the wineberry. It is a much hardier plant than the raspberry, grows like a weed, spreads as rapidly as rose briar and almost as badly as honeysuckle, but it could be cultivated into subjection. It has more businesslike thorns than the raspberry but no worse than the blackberry The berry has a delicious taste, and is also equally pleasing as a preserve or as a wine. Whether it will keep fresh long enough to be marketable is another question. But something might be done about it. The berries are sweet and tender enough to be wrapped in cellophane like New Jersey blueberries.

Paris At Random

Tour de France.

MOST popular among the French sporting events, and one of the most typical, no doubt, is the "Tour de France," the great cycling competition which, for three weeks every year, drives millions of Frenchmen crazy with excitement.

Off were the "giants of the road" the other day, from the Place de la Concorde and the Champs Elysees, for the long, big ride which is to take them around France, down along its border and up along its ocean coast. Three thousand miles of hard pedaling. And despite the early hour, thousands of enthusiastic people did not hesitate to get up in the morning chill to see their "cycling gods" start out.

Ninety-three competitors were at the start, with no paraphernalia except a spare tire and a bottle of coffee each. Nearly every morning, until the end of July, they will be faced with the exhausting task of covering up a new lap. Four times, they will climb mountain passes between 6,000 and 8,000 feet high. They will ride in the dust of the southern scorching plain. Not half of them, generally, are tough and strong enough to cover up the whole distance and get back to Paris on the triumphant last lap.

The victor, of course, is not the one who wins the last lap, but he whose total time over the 20 laps or so is the smallest. During the race itself, every morning, the man whose total is the best has a right to wear a yellow sweater, a distinction which in itself is worth the thrill of a lifetime!

• • • •

Organized some 30 years ago as a publicity stunt by the publisher of the greatest French sports paper, the "Tour de France" met with a response which has grown more fantastic each year. Like the world series, it is front-page news every day in every paper.

Although cycling in France is not quite like baseball in the United States as it has not the same following in all classes of society, it may be regarded as the sport of the masses. And to them the "Tour de France" is like the Derby to an English lord.

You should see the way it is followed all the way through by an army of official cars, of fans, reporters, photographers, newsreel operators, radio announcers, along the dusty roads lined up with trees and enthusiastic villagers. It is a show in itself. Something like an itinerant circus, a caravan of bicycles, cars, trucks and tough-looking people.

And when you read of it in the press, not the least striking feature about it is that character of national epic imparted to it by frantic sports writers. The whole stock of Homeric and Dantesque epithets is too poor for the "giants of the road" and the "Titans of the mountain."

Drag Day, which for time immemorial has been the smartest and most exclusive day of the Paris racing season, this year has gone streamline. Ever since the golden days of the Second Empire, the Friday that precedes the Grand Prix has been marked by a parade of tally-ho's smartly winding up their way from the Place de la Concorde, through the Champs Elysees and the Bois de Boulogne up to the Auteuil race course. Laden with feminine beauty, they slowly passed by the ringing notes of hunting horns.

This year, one more old tradition was discarded, when the organizers reverted to an automobile parade instead, in three-by-three formation. Giving up all hopes of ever reviving the customs and spirit of the gay nineties, they nevertheless marked their devotion to a dead epoch by having the parade led by two stately four-in-hands, the two lone survivors of the mail coach days probably to be found in the French capital.

Most familiar, petted and spoilt of all the domestic animals in Paris, no doubt, are the little donkeys and goats that toil gently up and down the Champs Elysees gardens every fine day for the children's joy.

For one franc (about 6½ cents), the plucky little boys and the daring young amazons can experience the thrill of their first ride, be it even on a little gray donkey's back. They are taken around for about half a mile by a paternal looking owner. As to the little ones, whose mothers or nurses would never let them try such an utterly dangerous thing as a ride, they derive an ample supply of safe excitement from endless tours in tiny carriages pulled by tiny goats. And do they like it!

All this goes on, under leafy trees, among thousands of children, with Punch-and-Judy shows and merry-go-rounds, just a few yards away from the noisy and jammy Champs Elysees traffic. No contrast could be better marked than that of those kids taking aimless rides for the fun of it and those hurried grown-ups rushing down town for business.

And you should see the way the little group of 12 to 15 donkeys and goats go to work, crossing the streets and avenues on their tiny hoofs, looking quite unconcerned. There is always a cop to stop the traffic to give them right of way. They are the children's joy!

The Vicious Triangle

British Empire Presents Example Of Delicate Balance Always Prevailing Between Industrial Communities And Those Providing Foodstuffs And Raw Materials.

By Commander Stephen King-Hall.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

London (By Mail).

THE prolonged and difficult negotiations which have been taking place in London between the representatives of Great Britain and those of the Dominions of Australia and New Zealand on the subject of agricultural policy—with the Argentine on the doorstep—are but one aspect of a world problem.

In pre-war days the world could roughly be divided into three areas. One consisted of western Europe and parts of North America—an area predominantly industrial in its economic make-up. Another, which consisted of the Dominions, central and eastern Europe and South America, was chiefly remarkable as one in which the basic foodstuffs of wheat and meat were produced. The third area, consisting of the tropical lands, produced raw materials, such as rubber and cotton, which were needed by the factories in the industrial area.

These three areas were linked together in a balanced manner, and the links were often those of British finance. The densely populated industrial areas, particularly the British Isles, supplied men and credits for the development of the sparsely populated agricultural areas.

NOW all is changed. The complete deterioration of the political situation since the war has caused the European nations to desire to become self-supporting as regards foodstuffs, and to a large extent they have succeeded in their object.

Immediately after the war the agricultural areas in Europe were in a serious condition, and it was not until about 1925 that production rose to the level it had attained in the years immediately preceding the war. During the period 1925 to 1929 a beginning was made with the process of restricting imports and as the crisis developed, economic nationalism began to flourish. The first symptom of the crisis—that of a falling price level—became apparent in the overseas countries in about 1929, and there can be little doubt that this was due in large part to the policy of self-sufficiency, which had begun to take shape in Europe. As the crisis spread the overseas countries, burdened with fixed debt payments, increased production and dumped their foodstuffs in Europe. This caused the European countries to raise their tariffs and subsidize their farmers, a policy which increased the production of foodstuffs in Europe and still further depressed world prices.

Ever since 1928 agricultural production in Europe has been increasing faster than in any other part of the world. When the overseas countries producing foodstuffs found themselves with a falling income, they began to default on their loans and cut down their imports of manufactured goods. These tendencies reacted on the purchasing power and state of employment in the industrial countries, and because factories were working short time, or being closed down, industrialists were obliged to terials from the tropical area; so cut down their orders of raw ma- central Africa, to quote one example, suffered because of economic nationalism in Europe.

IT is a kind of vicious triangle, but although it is on the surface an economic problem, the root cause of the trouble is political. In the pre-war days peace was balanced—very precariously balanced as we discovered to our cost in 1914—and most people have since concluded that the experience then gained shows us that a peace maintained by the method of the balance of power must sooner or later break down. However, to the men of 1909 to 1913 it seemed possible that there might be long years of peace, and therefore there was confidence in the future. Because of this confidence nations were prepared to give hostages to fortune by depending upon foreign markets for their economic prosperity.

After the war it was decided that a new method of organizing peace should replace the old system of the balance of power, but as the years went by and it became doubtful whether the league system was to be effective, the nations began to draw in upon themselves, each within its own castle. One thing reacts upon another, and although economic nationalism is the fruit of political insecurity, the more nationalistic and self-contained the nations become, the less ground there is for international co-operation.

The importance of the negotiations which are taking place within the British commonwealth of nations lies in the fact that here we have a group of nations between whom it can be said that war is unthinkable. In this case the political background should be favorable, and the Empire provides an extremely useful laboratory in which to work out policies of economic co-operation. Nevertheless, even within the Empire the greatest care will be necessary in order to insure that the political principles which are its common foundation are not shop-soiled at the bargain counter. If a workable compromise can be evolved between the claims of the Dominion agriculturists and the United Kingdom farmers and industrialists, then it may prove to be an example which can be extended over a wide area when and if the political situation becomes more stallilized.

AT present one of the difficulties facing the economic negotiators is that no generally accepted set of principles exist which lay down the limits beyond which no country has a moral right to inflict economic injury on another. On the political side the principles do exist, even though they are not always given the honor which is their due.

There is a general opinion throughout the world at the present time—as may be seen by the hardening of public opinion against the Italian action in Abyssinia — that bare-faced aggression is an international crime. But one country can suddenly place an embargo upon its imports from another country, and its act is accepted as a proper exercise of legitimate sovereignty.

Better Postoffice

By William Lyon Phelps.

AS a good American, and that is an accurate description of me, it galls me to go to Europe and see the postal service better than our own—and I wonder if anything can be done about it.

It seems as if Americans ought to be as efficient as the people of any other country. But the simple truth is, that not only in great cities like London and Paris, but in cities that can be called only fairly large, like Munich in Germany, you can depend on this fact; if you put a letter in any street post-box before 1 o'clock p. m., it will be delivered in any house or address anywhere in the city or suburbs that same afternoon. And if the person who receives it answers it within a few hours, and puts his letter in the nearest post-box, you will receive that letter on the first early mail the next morning.

I remember, in Boston 45 years ago, there were four regular deliveries of the mail at every house or address; the last one coming at 8:30 in the evening. Is that true today? A few years ago, in most of our American cities, there were more frequent clearings of the street post-poxes than there are now; the latest used to be about 11 in the evening. Now we must travel to the central postoffice (in many towns) after 9 o'clock.

I do not see why Government economy should be so sedulously practiced in vital matters of public service, when there seems so little zeal for economy in other things.

• • • •

And why not take some of the army of the unemployed and give them jobs in collecting and distributing mail; hire more men, instead of reducing the number of collections.

Incidentally, I might add that it costs 10 cents to buy a stamp that will send a letter from France to America, 5 cents to buy a stamp that will take a letter from the U. S. to Great Britain, and 3 cents to buy one that will take a letter from Great Britain to the U. S.

The British treat us like their own people in this respect. A 3-cent stamp is necessary to carry a letter across the street in London and the same amount will take it from Great Britain to any part of the U. S. How about hands across the sea?

Southern Lore.

IT is a painful time for South Carolinians to remember, those years between 1868 and 1876, when the State was controlled, looted, and despoiled by the coalition of scabby white carpet-baggers from the North and ignorant, unconsidering Negroes just freed from slavery, bolstered by Federal arms. Those years, for example, put the State deeper into debt by some $15,000,000—and a million, in those days, meant something. But even worse was the scar upon the good name of the State—she had at the time no other epithet but "The Prostrate State"—and upon the feelings of the white citizens. And reaction, amid the turmoil which at best was burlesque, at worst rapine, was bound to come.

As late as 1930 an eyewitness and leading participant in that reaction was living—Alfred B. Williams, the erstwhile journalist, who had followed and joined in the famous campaign which Gen. Wade Hampton and his red-shirted cohorts made to overthrow carpet-bag rule. In the pages of "Hampton and His Red Shirts" (Walker, Evans & Cogswell Co., Charleston, S. C., $2.50) Williams has told the full, detailed and conscientious tale of those ten months of night-riding, electioneering, bloodshed and high drama which restored South Carolina to her feet.

Williams wrote it 50 years after the events, in 1926, and it then appeared in two South Carolina newspapers. Now in book form, I recommend it highly as a stirring narrative of Southern Vigilantes, required reading for South Carolinians and all but required reading for Southerners in general.

But let them remember that it all happened 60 years ago.

I NOW know exactly the kind of book an author would fall upon with cries of delight if he were to start work upon an historical novel. And if any such work be in prospect relating to the Valley of Virginia during the Civil War, let the deviser step forward and lay hands upon "A Diary With Reminiscences of the War and Refugee Life in the Shenandoah Valley: 1860-1865" (Hunter McDonald, Nashville, Tenn.).

It was assembled in 1875 by Mr. McDonald's mother, Mrs. Cornelia McDonald, from rough diary pages she had written during the war on everything from good white paper to the spaces between the printed lines of books. And it is a simply gorgeous find for anyone who likes a close and intimate view of what daily life was like in that valley fought over time and again by armies and guerilla bands.

Mr. McDonald has gone over the original work thoroughly, filled it out with explanatory references, footnotes on the larger currents of history, detailed maps and old photographs, and a vast deal of genealogical material. If you're of the Glengarry McDonalds of Virginia you'll be delighted with these archives of your family.

But almost anyone else will enjoy these lively, frank, and thoroughly human pages of everything from eye-witness accounts of cavalry raids to how they kept the cow in the cellar so that they could milk her one jump ahead of the raiding Yankees. Mrs. McDonald, who died in 1909, was a remarkably vivid and courageous woman, "who lived to a great age and kept a clear mind and a straight back to the end of her days."

She grew up, by the way, in Hannibal, Mo.—from some of her vigorous, humorous words, I wonder if she ever knew the young Sam Clemens.

Rubber Casings Shipments Off

New York, July 22. — Shipments of pneumatic casings for the monht of May, 1935, amounted to 4,067,386 casings, a decrease of 20.9 per cent below April, and was approximately 23.7 per cent under shipments made in May a year ago, according to statistics released by the Rubber Manufacturers Association, Inc., today.

This organization reports production of pneumatic casings for May to be 4,175,170 casings, a decrease of approximately 7.5 per cent below April and 6.3 per cent under May, 1934.

Pneumatic casings in the hands of manufacturers, May 31 amounted to 11,130,764 units, an increase of 1.2 per cent above stocks on hand April 30 and practically no change as compared with stocks on hand May 31, 1934.

Bitten by Black Widow, Man Is Seriously Ill

Bristol, Va., July 22.—Bitten by a black widow spider at his home here Wednesday morning, D. C. Lawson, employe of the Bristol Door & Lumber Co., is in a serious condition. Dr. C. W. Fleenor said he had been treating Lawson twice a day, and that yesterday his condition appeared to be somewhat better.

Opiates in large amounts are necessary to combat the venom of the poisonous spider, Dr. Fleenor said, and it normally requires about seven days for the poison to run its course.

Boycott in U. S. Against Reich Urged in House

Celler Decries Religious 'Abuses;' Sen. Van Nuys Hits Nazi 'Barbarism.'

By the Associated Press.

A demand in the House for a boycott against Germany because of alleged religious abuses was coupled yesterday with a senatorial blast at a "reversion to barbarism" under Hitler.

A boycott on German goods by Catholics, Jews and "right-minded Americans" was urged on the House floor by Representative Celler (Democrat), New York, as a means of combatting "brutal attacks on defenseless people."

Shortly afterward Senator Van Nuys (Democrat), Indiana, in a telegram to an all-credal meeting in New York, condemned "the reprehensible methods now being used in Germany to abolish the free and untrammeled worship of God and liberty of conscience."

Blanton Objects.

Attacking Celler's speech, Representative Blanton (Democrat), of Texas, promptly asserted members of Congress ought to "mind their own business" as to what "Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin are doing," he said:

"Let these men run their own governments and let us attend to ours. How would we like it if they were constantly criticizing the way we run ours?"

Asserting that Germany apparently desires to remain the "pariah of nations," Celler said he was sure all Americans "deplore and denounce the terrifying scenes that have occurred in Berlin in the last few days."

"The bullying, the hectoring, the bloody deeds and atrocities which the Hitler hoodlums and the Storm Troopers are guilty of can not go by unnoticed," he said.

Would Punish Nazis.

Advancing the boycott proposal, the New Yorker said, "If it is within our power to do so," some punishment should be meted out to Germany.

In his telegram Van Nuys said, "Barbarism becomes inevitable," when the right to worship as one pleases, without fear of any individual or government, is removed.

"This violation of the principles of human rights in Germany today," he said, "should be subjected to the world's censure. The entire civilized world views with horror this reversion to barbarism and unenlightenment existing in Germany."

Rome Reduces Gold Reserve As War Move

tomorrow. It was predicted in some sources that Sugimura will lodge a formal protest over the press campaign, although the ambassador denied such intent.

The Japanese Ambassador said his mission was "to preserve good relations between Italy and Japan and his policy was to postpone any action at this moment with feeling at fever heat."

Sugimura said he has not transmitted press comments to his government and will not do so for several days until the situation becomes calmer. He said the newspapers are apt to be excitable and because the comment in all of them was similar they were undoubtedly acting under orers from above.

The well-trained Italian press turned a blast upon the Far East which corresponded to the lambasting it gave the Germans for supplying the Ethiopians with arms and the British for opposition to the East African campaign.

"Hypocrisy" Claimed.

The newspapers vied with one another in extremity of phrase. Japan was accused of trying to make herself a champion of the black races. She was further accused of hypocricy by trying to hide her concerns for her commercial interests in Ethiopia under a cloak of high-sounding principles.

Her diplomacy was accused of double-dealing by the authoritative Giornale d'Italia, which said that from now on every nation had the right to question the statements made by Japanese Ambassadors and Ministers.

Some circles accused England of being behind the Japanese opposition. Others thought the Italian press, under orders, was whipping up the campaign along the lines of the yellow and black races against the white to force England to place herself in the white camp.

Japanese Interest Denied.

The press assault upon Japan became furious over allegedly conflicting reports from Tokyo and the Japanese Embassy as to whether Sugimura had told Premier Mussolini that Japan had no interests in Ethiopia.

The newspaper Tribuna quotes Sugimura in an interview:

"I confirm in all points the declarations that I made to Premier Mussolini. What I said conforms to the opinions of the imperial government. On that I give my word as an ambassador.

"Japan," he continued, "has certain commercial interests in Ethiopia and it intends to establish a Japanese legation in Addis Ababa next December, but I reaffirm that Japan has no political interests in Ethiopia."

Today's papers reported that foreign diplomats at Addis Ababa are arranging to transfer their legations to Djibouti, French Somaliland. The report states that the ministers and consuls of the United States, England and France could not halt an Italo-Ethiopian war.

The State Department in Washington said today the United States legation is contemplating no change and will be maintained at Addis Ababa regardless of what might happen in Ethiopia.

Figures in New World Naval Problem

State, Navy Departments Unwilling to Comment Upon Announcement in Commons by First Lord of Admiralty; Prefer to Await Text.

Announcement by Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, first lord of the British Admiralty, to the House of Commons yesterday that his government was abandoning the ratio system of naval limitation was received in official circles here without comment but also without surprise.

Cables reporting Sir Bolton's remarks were not clear and led to conflicting interpretations. Consequently State and Navy Department officials declined any formal comment until they receive from the American Embassy at London the text of what he said.

They pointed out, however, that as long ago as last December it was clear that the ratio system of naval limitation had to be abandoned if the Japanese were to be brought into a new agreement.

Japan gave notice terminating the Washington treaty on December 31, 1936, because of objections to the 5-5-3 ratio in that pact. The London naval agreement expires on the same date.

Japanese Stand Firm.

The Japanese not only objected to the 5-5-3 ratio but to any ratio which openly and markedly placed their navy in a position of inferiority. Thus the only way which the Japanese can be brought back into the negotiations is abandonment of the ratio system and the devising of some other formula for limitation satisfactory to them, the United States and Japan. Since then efforts have been made to devise another formula but without success, as far as is known.

Whether Sir Bolton's remarks mean that he has in mind proposing a formula to take the place of the ratio system remained unknown and consequently his announcement received two different interpretations here. One was that it definitely eliminated the possibility of the naval powers reaching any specific pact for limitation of naval armament after December 31, 1936. The other was that his announcement raised some hope for a new agreement before the two treaties expire because his remarks were conciliatory to the Japanese viewpoint.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt spent more than an hour conferring with Acting Secretary of State William Phillips, Assistant Secretary of State R. Walton Moore, and Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador-at-Large. The presence of Davis gave rise to reports that the naval treaty situation was discussed, since he was one of the American delegates to the London naval conversations last year.

Conferees Are Reticent.

This, however, could not be confirmed. Early in the day it was generally understood the conference with the President related to proposals for legislation designed to make invulnerable this country's neutrality in the case of war abroad and to provide control of munitions shipments.

When the trio emerged from the President's office, Phillips said he did "not think he had anything to say" and declined to answer questions, except to assert that "we discussed various matters." Davis and Moore were silent.

Phillips and Moore are scheduled to confer later this week with a Senate Foreign Relations sub-committee having the neutrality proposals in hand and it was assumed they were formulating with the President what should be the Administration attitude. Davis is an authority on the questions that comprise the basis of the neutrality legislation and one whose advice is regarded highly by the Administration.

Incidentally, from Capitol Hill it was reported that Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, and several colleagues who have sponsored neutrality legislation with him were becoming restless over the Administration's delay in making up its mind and that he was considering offering his proposals as riders to other measures.

In some quarters Sir Bolton's announcement was regarded as the forerunner of a naval building race. Naval officers are convinced that the British are determined to have 70 cruisers and that cutting loose from the ratio system was but a first step toward that end.

Naval Race Foreseen.

If Great Britain on the expiration of the existing treaties should embark on a 70-cruiser building program it is held almost certain that this country would seek to enlarge its naval strength over the maximums contained in the expired treaties. Japan would follow suit, it is expected, and the building race would be on.

Indeed, the thought seems general in the American Navy that come what might this Government should maintain the 5-5-3 ratio after the expiration of the treaties—that is, should match every increment in British naval strength and should build the equivalent of five ships to every three built by the Japanese.

None in the Administration would believe that Sir Bolton's remarks indicated the British would disregard the provisions of the existing treaties until after their expiration, although Senator Key Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was quoted by the Associated Press as asserting that Sir Bolton's announcement "constitutes an abandonment of the Washington treaty" and that it was "just another move toward construing treaties as scraps of paper."

Chairman Park Trammell, of the Naval Affairs Committee, said he did not interpret the accounts of Sir Bolton's speech to mean the British would exceed ratio limits until 1937, if then.

Earlier in the day the President signed the bill authorizing an increase of 1,032 line officers in the Navy to man ships now under construction.

Japanese Accused of Firing On American School in China

By the Associated Press.

Hankow, China, July 22.—Showering of machine gun bullets from a Japanese gunboat upon the American missionary school of Huping College, at Yochow, Hunan Province, was reported by an American missionary arriving here today.

The incident occurred Thursday, the Rev. Edwin Beck, of Tiffin, Ohio, reported.

American consular authorities said they had eyewitness accounts of the incident, but had withheld them from publication for fear of harming American-Japanese relations.

Every person in the college buildings and residences for foreigners was imperiled by the shower of soft-nosed machine gun bullets, the Rev. Mr. Beck said.

(Missionary headquarters of the Reformed Church of the United States at Philadelphia said five missionaries were at the Huping School, of which the Rev. Mr. Beck is second in charge. The director is a Chinese.)

(The others were said to be the Rev. Karl H. Beck, brother of Edwin, who formerly was located at Myersdale, Pa.; his wife, the former Meta Monica Bridenbaugh, of Hollidaysburg, Pa.; Edwin Beck's wife, the former Etta Irene Poling, and his son, John D. Beck, also of Tiffin, Ohio. The institution was founded in 1902 by the late Dr. William E. Hoy, of Mifflinburg, Pa.)

The missionary was skeptical of a suggestion that the gunboat, still unidentified, might have deviated from its course during target practice. Hitherto target practice has been held farther from Yochow.

(Japanese Embassy officials and Japanese naval authorities at Shanghai said they had no information concerning the reported incident. The United States Legation at Peiping likewise announced it had not been informed of it.)

Mr. Beck said the shooting followed a conference at the college of the Chinese Young Men's Christian Association, at which were American representatives. Participants in the conference freely attacked Japans activity in China, he said, and he expressed the belief the machine gunning was related to Japanese spying on the sessions.

Huping College is a school for boys, owend by the Reformed Church of the United States, with mission headquarters in Philadelphia. The school has 136 Chinese boys enrolled. The principal subjects are agriculture and teacher-training.

time the burgomaster of Duisburg enjoined all public officials and laborers employed by the city to give up their membership in confessional workers' organizations and compel their children to resign from confessional youth organizations under penalty of losing their jobs.

The Voelkischer Beobachter, Reichsfuehrer Hitler's newspaper, published a statement calling "political catholicism" "Public Enemy No. 1."

The fact that no arrests of priests were reported despite defiance of the Nazi order yesterday at Freiburg, was attributed to the absence of Kerrl from his office, and to the fact that publication of the decree was delayed because no Saturday evening newspapers are printed in Baden.

Proctor Martin Utsch and the Rev. Father Rudolf Wilmsen today were adjudged guilty of violating the law prohibiting removal of gold or foreign exchange from Germany and Utsch was sentenced to four years' imprisonment, loss of citizenship for five years, and assessed a fine of 75,000 marks.

"Father Wilmsen was sentenced to three years imprisonment, five years loss of citizenship and fined 20,000 marks. The authorities confiscated $33,000 worth of bonds and 8,500 marks. Their trial was one of a series involving nuns and monks which were made much of in the anti-Catholic campaign of the press.

The stately synagogue of Prinz Regentenstrasse, in western Berlin, was an object of anti-Semitic abuses. "Out with the Jews" and other derogatory inscriptions were smeared over it, as well as on the sidewalk in front.

In support of the "cleansing of the Jews" policy enunciated by Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, anti-Semites routed Jews from the beaches, notably the Gruenheude beaches.

A photographer stationed himself outside a Jew-owned ice cream parlor prepared to photograph any Gentile seen entering.

Press Is Bitter.

The provincial press was especially bitter in its language against Jews. Some newspapers printed names and addresses of those it considered hostile to the local party organization.

Another listed Aryan girls accused of intimate relations with Jews. Editors denounced members of student fraternities and other "reactionaries."

Insistence on "totality" was further reflected in the call of Robert Ley, trade union commissioner, for a "German soul." He exhorted a crowd at Passau to "join hands in the ensuing fight which will be conducted with the same old fatalism."

"We shall not," he concluded, "tolerate any other party or 'weltanschaung' (world view) than ours."

It is believed, however, that few Catholics will challenge the Nazi edicts until after the conference of all Catholic bishops at Fuld, August 16. The intervening time will be taken up in negotiations with Rome in respect to a policy to be announced at the end of the conference.

"If provisional figures communicated to Germany were disclosed to the world now they would prejudice the success of international naval arms limitations negotiations," Sir Bolton replied.

Dunbar High Student In Oratorical Contest

Victoria Todd, Dunbar High School student, has been announced as one of the contestants in the national oratorical contest to be sponsored by colored Elks here just preceding their convention in August. She had defeated candidates from Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia and Delaware in the regional contest at Richmond.

As a winner of the regional contest, she has been awarded a $1,000 Elk scholarship to the college of her choice. In competition with five other regional winners, in August, discussing phases of the Constitution affecting the Negro, she will participate in distribution of an additional $1,000 in prize awards.

Lumber Mills Report Increase in Business

By the Associated Press.

A sharp upturn in the lumber business was reported yesterday by the National Lumber Manufacturers Association.

New business booked at the mills the week ended July 13 was 20 per cent greater than that of the previous week, the association said. Production was 35 per cent above the previous week, and the heaviest since the first week in May.

Wilton Lambert Funeral Today In St. Matthew's

Last rites for Wilton John Lambert, nationally known trial and corporation lawyer, civic leader and official and director in public utilities companies, will be held today at 11 a. m. in St. Matthew's Catholic Church, followed by private burial in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Lambert, who was 63, died at his residence, 1020 Vermont avenue, Sunday evening after an illness of five months. For many years Mr. Lambert, who was a native of Washington, played a leading role in legal and business life here, participating as counsel in many famous trials.

President of Railway.

A former president of the Washington and Old Dominion Railway and director of the Washington, Alexandria and Georgetown Gas Light Co., Mr. Lambert was president and general counsel of the Munsey Trust Co. At one time he was counsel for the Washington Baseball Club, and, at the time of his death, he was counsel for the American Newspapers, Inc., publishers of the Washington Herald and Washington Times. Mr. Lambert was president of the Washington Times Co.

For a number of years Mr. Lambert represented the John R. McLean estate and The Washington Post. He served as attorney for the McLeans, father and son, and for the late Frank Munsey.

Mr. Lambert was the son of Tallmadge A. and Avarilla Lambert. Both his father and grandfather were prominent barristers.

After attending Emerson Institute Mr. Lambert took up post-graduate work there, and entered Princeton University. He was graduated from Princeton in 1892, and completed his legal education in the law department of Georgetown University.

In 1895 Mr. Lambert was admitted to the bar here, and in 1903 he was admitted to practice before the United States Supreme Court, entering partnership with his father in 1904. After the elder Mr. Lambert left the firm, his place was taken by D. W. Baker, later to become United States attorney here.

Counsel for Fall.

Mr. Lambert was associate counsel for former Secretary of the Interior Fall in the Elk Hills oil lease case.

It was in the case of Frank Godsol, French army officer, who was charged, during the World War, with having embezzled several million dollars from the French government, that Mr. Lambert gained international attention. Fighting the case through the District courts, Mr. Lambert carried it to the Supreme Court, where he won acquittal for his client.

Mr. Lambert was president of the Brightwood Citizen Association, a member of the Washington Board of Trade and the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

He belonged to the Chevy Chase Club, the Racquet Club, the Metropolitan and the [illegible] and Hunt Clubs. He belonged to the New York Athletic and Princeton Clubs of New York.

The honorary pallbearers announced last night are as follows: A. L. Hume, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Judge Jennings Bailey, Judge Adolph A. Hoehling, jr., Charles A. Douglas, Judge Oscar A. Luhring, Judge F. Dickinson Letts, Corcoran Thom, C. H. Pope, Judge Wendell P. Stafford, Judge Peyton Gordon, William T. Dewart, Gen. William E. Horton, Rudolph H. Yeatman, Davis Elkins, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, Frank C. Wright, J. Spalding Flannery, Col. C. Fred Cook, Judge Jesse C. Adkins and Marcy L. Sperry.

Mrs. Oden Freed Of Hit-Run Case

Appeals Court Reverses Traffic Conviction.

The conviction of Mrs. Alada C. Oden in Police Court several months ago as a "hit and run" driver was set aside by the United States Court of Appeals yesterday because it was shown she had stopped in the nearest available parking space and had furnished all the information as to her identity required by the traffic laws.

Mrs. Oden, it was shown, parked her car double while a passenger got out. The passenger re-entered the car and in so doing failed to close the door securely. In re-closing it, the door scraped against another car, doing slight damage. The passenger Raymond Saunders, accepted full blame for the mishap, the court pointed out, and agreed to pay the small amount necessary to repair the other machine.

Under these circumstances the trial judge in Police Court should have issued a directed verdict acquitting Mrs. Oden, the Appellate Court said. I. Irwin Bolotin and Charles I. Kaplan, attorneys, represented Mrs. Oden.

James Carroll Funeral To Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral services for James Carroll, 76, who died Sunday at the Providence Hospital, will be held from his residence, 908 Eleventh street southeast, tomorrow at 8:30 a. m. Reverend James C. Murphy will officiate and interment will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Carroll was a life-long resident of Washington and his birthplace was on the site now occupied by the Union Station. He had been employed in the Washington Navy Yard as a moulder for 20 years, but was forced to resign 10 years ago because of ill health.

Surviving him are two brothers and three sisters, J. Bernard and William H. Carroll and Mrs. Charles Miller, Mrs. Albert Bond and Mrs. William Lewis, all of Washington.

Missing Paris Banker Reported on Way to U.S.

Paris, July 22.—The rumored secret departure of B. Coles Neidecker for America and the condition of his Traveler's Bank today remained a mystery to police and his friends. Authorities were told that Neidecker, Paris and New York banker, had sailed on the steamship Britannic, which arrived in New York last Saturday, but could not verify the report.

Authorities plan to open the bank safe tomorrow to search for cash and examine the books. Neidecker's friends say he kept a large part of the bank resources in New York and London. The Traveler's Bank, which has been closed for several days without an authorized declaration, is a private institution without a membership in the clearing house. It is reported to be capitalized at 2,500,000 francs.

Rublees Plan Mexican Stay Of 2 Months

Dwight Morrow Home to Be Viewed by Them Again.

D. C. Man Was Aid to Late Ambassador at Capital.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Within the next few days, Mr. and Mrs. George Rublee will close their home on Woodland drive and will leave for Mexico, where Mr. Rublee will serve on the American-Mexican Bondholders Protective Commission. The Rublees will be absent for an indefinite period, but they are not going to a place unknown to them, for during the Ambassadorship of the late Dwight Morrow Mr. and Mrs. Rublee made their home in Mexico, where Mr. Rublee was legal advisor to the Ambassador for three years. With the Rublees will go Mr. John Leylan, who was formerly assistant general counsel of the Treasury Department, and who has recently become associated with the law firm of Covington, Burling, Rublee, Acheson & Shorb.

Early this summer Mr. and Mrs. Leylan moved to the beautiful home of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harley Peyton Wilson, Hollin Hall, near Alexandria, Va., which they leased for the summer months. Mrs. Leylan will not accompany her husband on his trip to Mexico, but with her small son will remain in Virginia.

First Graduate.

Mr. Rublee is the first graduate of Groton, the school attended by President Roosevelt. In June he attended the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the school at Groton, Conn. He was a member of the original Federal Trade Commission and spent some time in Europe during the war as the allied maritime counsel. Mr. Rublee also attended the last naval conference in London as legal advisor to the United States Commission.

He and Mrs. Rublee will find many former friends in Mexico City, where they spent os much time with the popular Dwight Morrow. The sunlit street in Cuernavaca, near Mexico City, where the Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow had a charming home for week-ending, has been named Dwight Morrow Avenue, and undoubtedly Mr. and Mrs. Rublee will go there to see again the color and enchantment of the sleepy lane that winds through the town captured four centuries ago by Cortes.

Wrote of Town.

Mrs. Morrow in a magazine article depicted with her facile pen their first glimpse of the little town, flooded with golden sunshine. She described the beautiful church which hangs over the houses of "our street," as she called the avenue now named for her late husband. She told of the house they evolved in easy stages, adding wings about a series of patios which, before they were finished, numbered a "baker's half-dozen," each connected with arched entrances flanked by oleanders and palms. It was in these garden that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh courted Anne Morrow, for the Morrow family spent as much time at the mountain town as they did in the capital.

Mr. and Mrs. Rublee will remain in the southern republic several months or longer. Mrs. Rublee will return with an additional wealth of stories and pictures of the land which interests her so much.

Mrs. Borah Off To Idaho Home

Will Spend Remainder of Summer at Boise, Idaho.

Mrs. William E. Borah, wife of Senator Borah, left yesterday afternoon for her home in Boise, Idaho, where she will spend the remainder of the summer. Mrs. Borah had planned to make the trip west via the Panama Canal, but recently decided on the train as the cooler and quicker method of reaching her destination.

The Senator, who usually joins Mrs. Borah at their home later in the summer, will probably spend the entire season in their apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue. At least he will remain here until Congress adjourns.

Louisiana Couple Visit in New Jersey

Maj. and Mrs. Lluferio Leave Here to See Niece.

Maj. and Mrs. J. W. Lluferio, of New Orleans, La., after visiting relatives and friends in Washington, left today for Seaside Park, N. J., where they will visit for a few days with Lieut. and Mrs. Norman H. Smith. The latter is a niece of Mrs. Lluferio. Lieut. and Mrs. Smith and their two sons are spending the early summer at the New Jersey resort. They will sail July 30 for their new station in San Francisco.

Maj. and Mrs. Lluferio will spend a few days next week in Washington at the Martinique and then will return to their home in New Orleans.

Mr. Fred J. Ward, of Washington, is also a guest. Miss Sara Moore has returned to Washington after a week's stay.

Yoelson - Sollod Marriage Is Told

Couple Will Reside in Wilmington After Trip to North.

The Rev. and Mrs. M. R. Yoelson announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Gertrude Yoelson, to Mr. Isadore I. Sollod, formerly of Baltimore and Washington, now of Wilmington, Del. The ceremony took place June 16, with the father of the bride officiating.

The bride wore a simple gown of white satin, made princess fashion, with a high cowl neckline and long sleeves. Her shoulder length veil was draped over a plaited satin tricorn, and fell in a long train, edged in rose-point lace, in the back. She carried a shower of bride roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Florence Sollod, of Baltimore, Md., sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Her frock was of hyacinth chiffon, with hat and accessories of Dubonet, and she carried an arm bouquet of American beauty roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Helen Selznick, of Pittsburg, and Miss Libby Aronson, wore ecru and tea-rose lace gowns, with hats of matching tulle and horse-hair braid. They carried talisman roses and blue delphinium.

Mrs. George Yoelson, brother of the bride, was best man, and Mr. Herbert Sollod, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Nathaniel Berlen, both of Baltimore, were ushers.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony. Later in the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Sollod left by motor for a trip through New England and Canada, the bride wearing a navy blue maltese ensemble, with matching accessories.

After the wedding trip the couple will reside in Wilmington, Del.

Ruth Leon Wed To Irving Fogel

The marriage of Miss Ruth Emily Leon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin K. Leon, to Mr. Irving Fogel, son of Mr. Morris Fogel, of Lynchburg, Va., took place Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, 1605 Van Buren street. The ceremony, which was performed by Dr. Abram Simon before an improvised altar banked with greens and white roses, was witnessed by members of the immediate families.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was dressed in white lace. She wore a turban of white flower petals, with a wide shoulder-length veil, and carried a white satin Bible from which fell a shower of ribbons and lilies of the valley.

She was attended by her two sisters, Miss Lorraine Leon and Mrs. James Greenberg. Both wore turquois blue lace and small hats of the same shade.

Mrs. Leon, mother of the bride, wore orchid lace with a shoulder corsage of orchids.

Mr. Albert Fogel acted as best man for his brother.

Mrs. Jane Debus Returns to Home

After conferences with Senator James J. Davis, pilgrim governor of the Loyal Order of Moose, and Miss Katherine Smith, grand recorder of the Women of the Moose, Mrs. Jane Debus has returned to her home in Columbia, Pa.

Mrs. Debus has been assisting the grand recorder for several years, but her appointment as ranking official among the women came two weeks ago at the Boston conference and she was initiated in ceremonies at Plymouth Rock.

Mary H. Myers Becomes Bride Of Lieut. Stone

Wedding at Westerly, R. I.; Couple Will Visit Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hewitt Myers, of Westerly, R. I., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Hewitt Myers, and Lieut. Alexander Graham Stone, son of Commander Raymond Stone, U. S. N., retired, and Mrs. Stone, of Annapolis, which took place Sunday at the Christ Episcopal Church, at Westerly. The announcement of the marriage, which is of interest to Washington society, comes as a surprise to friends of the young couple as no announcement was made of the betrothal.

The Rev. Charles E. Karsten, rector of Zion Episcopal Church, and, during the summer, rector of the Christ Episcopal Church, performed the ceremony. The church was banked with white summer flowers. The bride wore a tailored suit of black and white openwork linen with a jacket of black. Her accessories were black and white and she wore a corsage of gardenias.

Attendants at the wedding were the bride's sisters, Mrs. John Rowland Hill, who will be remembered as Miss Persis Chase Myers, and Miss Louise Chase Myers, who were frocked in green and yellow, respectively. Mr. Hill acted as best man for the bridegroom.

After the ceremony, witnesses of which included only members of the immediate families, Lieut. and Mrs. Stone left for a wedding trip. They will make brief visits in New York and Washington and will leave August 1 for Fort Sill, Okla., where Lieut. Stone has been stationed.

The bride is a popular member of the younger set at Watch Hill, where her parents maintain a summer residence. She is a former student of Miss Madeira's School, Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn.; Masters School, at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and of the Bennington College, in Vermont. The Rev. Karsten was rector at Dobbs Ferry when she attended the Masters School there.

Lieut. Stone is a graduate of the Severn School and of West Point.

D. C. Girl Bride Of Navy Ensign

Josephine Martell Wed to Ross G. Linson.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Josephine Martell, daughter of Mrs. Charles Martell, of Washington, and the late Mr. Martell, of Boston, and Ensign Ross Garner Linson, U. S. N., which took place July 19 in Shanghai, China. Ensign and Mrs. Linson will make their home in China, where the former is stationed.

The bride is the sister of Lieut. Charles Bowling Martell, U. S. N.; a niece of Dr. Lyon Martell, of Washington, and a cousin of Lord Fairfax, of England, and the late Gen. R. Snowden Andrews, of Baltimore.

Mr. Linson is a former student of Northwestern University. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1933. He is the son of Mrs. Charles Frank, of Nebraska, and the late Mr. Louis Linson.

2 Capital Women To Visit Cape May

Mrs. F. Eberhart Haynes and Mrs. Edward K. Morris will leave today by motor for Cape May, N. J., where they will spend a week with Capt. and Mrs. Richard M. Cutts, jr., who are passing the season at the resort.

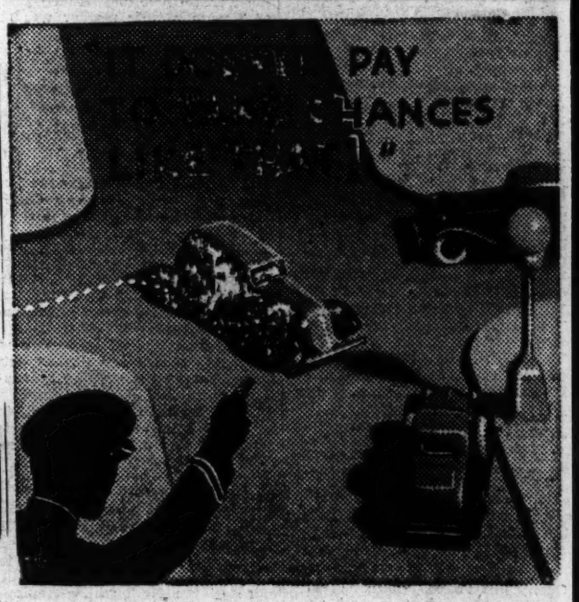
Miss Hicks, of Maryland, Visiting Her Uncle Here

Miss Betty Hicks, of Cambridge, Md., spent the week-end in Washington at the Mayflower with her uncle, Rear Admiral Thomas H. Hicks. The middle of August Miss Hicks will accompany her uncle on an extensive motor trip. Last summer they traveled together to the Pacific Coast.



IN fact it doesn't pay to gamble when the lives of others are concerned. One of the most dangerous hazards today along the highways is the motorist who clogs up the road in an outworn machine. He is a menace to the safety of others . . . as well as to himself.

It is foolish economy to drive a worn-out automobile. You can purchase a good re-conditioned Used Car for a moderate price and with terms that will not place a strain on your purse from the many money-saving offerings listed today and every day in The Post.

Sun Emporium Provides Ladies A Newport Tan

Exposure Is Scientifically Regulated on Gayly Rigged Roof Here.

By Dudley Harmon.

Pinch Hitting for Ruth Anne Davis.

TUCKED AWAY in the heart of the city, behind towering chimney pots, lies Newport-on-Connecticut avenue. Far above the roar of the traffic, directly beneath the blue of the sky, is Washington's one and only nude sun bathing roof—for ladies only. Here, protected from all eyes except that of the sun, you can acquire that Newport look without going near a beach. It's much easier, and less expensive.

This new sun roof is the latest and brightest idea of one of the town's leading beauticians. Feeling sorry for the poor souls obliged to stay in town throughout the summer, he has set to work and rigged up a roof gay with flower pots and bright colored cots and chairs. All sun bathing is done under scientific management. Most of us know from sad experience that over exposure to the sun's rays can be exceedingly painful, but not all of us are aware that such exposure often permanently injures the skin. But here special precautions are taken that no sun bather receives any but the most beneficial results. The first few sunbaths are preceded by an oil rubdown, so that the skin will not burn. The length of time one is allowed to bake depends on previous exposure. The lily white get only 15 or 20 minutes the first two or three times, after which they are allowed to remain longer.

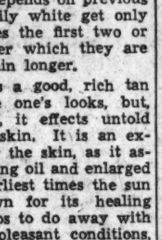
Not only does a good, rich tan greatly improve one's looks, but, more important, it effects untold benefits to the skin. It is an excellent tonic for the skin, as it assists in eliminating oil and enlarged pores. From earliest times the sun has been known for its healing qualities. It helps to do away with all sorts of unpleasant conditions, from rickets to acne. So sneak half an hour off from lunch time or household duties, and stretch out for a relaxing few minutes under the sun. It costs only 50 cents a fling, and for $7.50 you can get a season ticket, good for as long as the sun shines this summer.

Error in Price.

THE OTHER DAY in describing a new depilatory which has caught our fancy, we quoted the price as $3.50. We wish to correct this figure, which is erroneous, as the price is only $1.50. This fragrant cream, made of Oriental herbs, is the quickest and most effective remover of superfluous hair we have come across for a long time. Only one application, and you are all set for the rest of the summer.

The Complete Beauty Kit.

FOR THE BENEFIT of bargain hounds—and who doesn't get a kick out of a real bargain—we're calling attention to a grand makeup kit put out by a widely known cosmetic house. On sale at a downtown department store, it's price has been reduced from $2 to $1. It contains all the important beauty making accessories. There's a rich, fragrant cleansing cream, guaranteed to chase the dirt right out of your pores. Then, there's a foundation cream, ideal for that all-important powder base. A beauty cream for your hands, included as well, will do away with all traces of dishwashing or typewriter pounding. The kit comes in two varieties. One contains a special skin food for dry skins, which feeds and nourishes — and smooths away those weary wrinkles. The other kit substitutes for this a special tissue cream for normal skins, which is non-fattening. In both the kits there is a skin freshener as well, which tones up the skin and brings the pores back to normal.



Ultra-Violet Ray Cream.

HERE'S SOMETHING for all you pale and pasty office workers who haven't yet had a chance to find your place in the sun this summer. It's nothing less than a marvelous new cream which contains ultra-violet rays. By some secret process, these valuable, health-giving rays have been incorporated into the cream, so that you get all the benefit of their stimulating qualities without the harmful drying effect which the burning rays of the sun so often impart.

It is a well-known fact in the medical world that ultra-violet rays do wonders in the way of toning up the skin, but until the advent of this new product the only way you could get them was to toast yourself under a costly violet ray machine. But now you can get exactly the same beneficial effects simply by applying this cream overnight two or three times a week.

Besides the rays, it contains special oils imported from the Orient for their richness, and a lotion base to make the skin firm. So precious are the ingredients which go into this cream that under ordinary circumstances, the price would be almost prohibitive. But, as luck would have it, it is put out by a company so well-established that they can afford to sell it for as little as $1.75. It will work wonders on anybody's skin, especially on one which has become dry, sallow and lifeless.

Don't Entirely Give Up The Oven in Summer

By Dorothea Duncan.

DON'T GIVE UP using your oven entirely these hot days, for if you do you are sacrificing some of summer's most delectable dishes. The fresh plum roll suggested in the first menu above are the crowning glory of the entire meal, and the assorted salad platter in the second menu goes over with a flourish if there are piping hot pimiento cheese biscuits to offset the monotony of all cold dishes.

The cold dishes can be prepared well in advance of each meal and all the ingredients for cooked dishes can be measured out and waiting. So at the last minute the oven can be lighted for a few minutes and the plum rolls or biscuits can emerge hot just in the nick of time.

Even the dough for the plum rolls and the biscuits can be mixed ahead of time and stored in the refrigerator until ready for baking if you prefer to make your last minute kitchen work less strenuous. Double action baking powder will keep either dough as light and fluffy as though it had been mixed just the split second before baking.

Plum Rolls.

2 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk (about)
2 teaspoons double action baking powder
4 tablespoons butter or other shortening
1½ cups stewed fresh plums, seeded

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening. Add milk gradually until soft dough is formed. Roll ¼-inch thick on slightly floured board. Cover with plums. Roll in long roll, pressing edges together. Cut into 1½-inch slices. Place in a greased pan and pour plum sauce over them. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) 30 minutes, basting often. Serve hot, with sauce poured around, and a tablespoon of whipped cream placed on each slice. Serves six.

When stewing plums, sweeten them to taste.

For plum sauce, combine 1 cup of sugar, 1 tablespoon of flour, 1 cup plum juice, and 1 cup of water. Cook together 1 minute. Add 1 tablespoon butter.

Pimiento Cheese Biscuits.

1 cup sifted flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1-3 cup milk (about)
1 teaspoon double action baking powder
2 tablespoons butter or other shortening
2 ounces pimiento cheese
2 tablespoons butter

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening; add milk gradually until soft dough is formed. Combine cheese and butter, melt over hot water, stirring until blended. Roll biscuit dough ¼-inch thick on slightly floured board, cut with small floured cutter and place on greased baking sheet. Place one teaspoon of cheese mixture on each biscuit. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 10 minutes, or until done. Makes 12 biscuits.

For culinary assistance, call Dorothea Duncan, National 4200, or write to her, enclosing a stamped, addressed envelop, in care of The Washington Post.

Americans Put A Real Effort Into Paris Fun

Mrs. Fellowes' 'Ball of the Covered Heads' Draws Indian Princes.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS. — Everybody here is working hard at amusing himself as the end of the season approaches. It's the thing to be gay and be seen being gay—regardless of what the thermometer and bank balance report.

Mrs. Fellows' Oriental ball was one of the most glittering recent amusements. Everybody called it the "ball of covered heads," because all the women guests wore gauzy saris (Indian veils) with evening gowns, or turbans with fancy dress costumes and the visiting Indian maharajahs appeared in turbaned and jeweled splendor. The Maharajah of Patiala, whose earrings have been making everybody talk, wore his famous gold turban incrusted in pearls with a plume of golden birds of paradise sweeping from the top.

Kurt Wilde's new symphony was the piece de resistance of the Princess de Polignac's evening garden party. While colored lights gleamed on the trees and the guests seated beneath, the German composer played his new work at the piano on the terrace.

The hegira of Americans, caused by the crisis and the devaluated dollar, have left only a few thousand still in Paris. But a number of those who are left follow unusual occupations. One earns his daily bread by persuading the wine-loving French to drink a popular American "soft drink," but another has less luck with the promotion of chewing gum in France. Jeff Dickson, of Mississippi, runs prize fights, one American has a dairy farm near Paris and a third sells Texas oil stock. There are three American chiropractors and one astrologer.

Half of Paris seems to be having its horoscope read, its fortune told or its palm analyzed these days. It's all the vogue. Attending a dinner without having a horoscope or mind reading to talk about is almost as sad as having no operation to discuss ten years ago.

Child Labor Laws Seen Endangered

By the Associated Press.

A slow return to "hazardous working conditions and long hours" for children since the death of the NRA was reported today by Beatrice McConnell, director of the Children's Bureau's industrial division.

"If the lives and health of children are to be protected," she said, "there will have to be more careful employment regulations to insure justice for these young workers."

She reviewed accomplishments in this direction of 44 State Legislatures in session this year. Connecticut and New York, she said, enacted legislation establishing a minimum age of 16 for employment during school hours. Three more had previously passed such laws—Utah, Wisconsin and Ohio. A Montana law sets a 16-year minimum age for factories.

Several Readers Wish to Know 'Auris,' Whose Letter Appeared July 17.

By Mary Haworth.

AS A RESULT of the publication in this column last Wednesday of a letter from a woman who signed herself "Auris," and described herself as "being in the grandmother class . . . with children gone and outside interests somewhat abated and so in serious need of new interests and activities," I have received several letters from persons who wish to communicate with her.

Following are some of the requests, which I hope may inspire "Auris" to forward her name and address. M. H.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: Will you be so good as to favor me with the name and address of "Auris," whose letter appeared in your column July 17? I would like to offer her a suggestion of possible interest to her. Yours, J. F. D.

• • • •

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I would like to get in touch with the lady who signed her letter, "Auris." If you have her address, would you let me have it? Thanking you, I am, sincerely, MRS. J.

• • • •

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: "Auris," writes in your column of July 17 that she has leisure time on her hands. I, too, have been a minister's wife and a business woman for many years. I am now employed in the Government service in Washington. I find my leisure time entirely occupied with writing daily post cards to my shut-in friends; and in sending letters to hundreds of friends in the West who have been sorely hit during the depression. This is a task which I fully enjoy. Perhaps she could do a similar service.

I paste pictures, jokes, short stories and many other interesting things on cards for my friends. The Youth Parade ("No Sense") provides a source of amusement for them. At the present time I am sending a lover of dogs the group of "laughing dogs" pictured in Red Book. If you know your friends, you will provide a source of happiness for them, as well as yourself. Most sincerely, MRS. G. J. P.

Chautauqua Offers Budgeting Course

Consumer Week to Emphasize Value of Economy.

With a view to educating housewives to combat the depression more effectively by spending their household budgets to better advantage, the National Council of Women of the United States will sponsor a Consumer Week at Chautauqua Institution, Chautauqua, N. Y., July 29 to August 2, Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, of New York City, president of the council, announced today.

A five days' course of study on consumer trends under the direction of Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, of Belmont, Mass., former president of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, chairman of program for the recent triennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Detroit and chairman of consumer interests for the council, will constitute the program. Emphasis will be laid upon practical methods of gauging the quality of merchandise and upon buying in such fashion as to get full value for the money expended.

The course, which marks a decided innovation in the program of America's oldest summer vacation school, is open for enrollment to interested women in all sections of the country.

Former Head of Opera Company Cites Ability, Dependability of Youth

who will speak tonight at the Youth Institute at the National Catholic School of Social Service, believes that "when given an opportunity, youth never fails. It is lack of proper guidance and encouragement that is responsible for the position in which youth finds itself today."

Mrs. Hammer Urges Cultural Program; Says Young People Need Chance for Expression; Will Talk at Institute Here Tonight.

YOUTH MUST BE guided, encouraged and appreciated. It must be given something to do and a chance to express itself through cultural channels.

So believes Mrs. William C. Hammer, of New York, who will talk tonight at the Youth Institute of the National Catholic School of Social Service. Her subject will be "A Cultural Program For Youth."

Formerly artistic director and general manager of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company, Mrs. Hammer spent seven years working with a company of 300 persons, representing all nationalities and ranging in age from 6 to 60. Discussing some of her experiences at the Mayflower yesterday, she mentioned that she first became impressed with the enthusiasm, ability and dependability of younger persons while she worked with that group. As a "sort of mother to the opera company," she discovered that "when given an opportunity, youth never fails. It is the lack of proper guidance and encouragement that is responsible for the position in which youth finds itself today," she said.

Stresses Guidance.

She further pointed out that a cultural program would prove of particular benefit at this time because "an appreciation of not only the highest forms of art but the finer things of life is essential to the development of youth, even in this age when so much emphasis is being placed on material things."

She is especially interested in guiding and training young women because, as she explained, "This is indeed a woman's era, when women are being given opportunities of which their grandmothers never dreamed."

In interest of this, she has been giving a series of lectures at the Catholic Young Women's Club in New York on "The Art of Being a Woman." Discussing this subject yesterday, Mrs. Hammer pointed out that women today have the greatest opportunity they have ever had to prove they can work with, rather than against, men.

"In view of this, I think every woman should master the art of being feminine," she said. "We can contribute our best to the world by developing those qualities every womanly woman is supposed to possess—kindness, gentleness, modesty and thoughtfulness. By doing so, we can not only prove our worth, but also inspire men."

Hits European Program.

She mentioned that women were denied the same rights as men for so many years "not so much because man considered woman inferior, but because he wanted to protect her. Even today he still wants to protect her and looks to her for inspiration."

Mrs. Hammer is convinced there must be "more action and less talk" in regard to solving the problems of youth. She favors working out a definite program whereby youth can be trained and given an opportunity to express itself. But she decried some of the youth programs now being carried out in Europe. "Youth is being organized and trained there—yes. It is also being educated along so-called cultural lines. But there can be no culture without God. What youth in Europe will have as a result of a program with no religious basis is a kind of synthetic culture. We must build our program on a firmer and more satisfactory basis."

What TODAY Means

IF JULY 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m., from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m. and from 7:15 to 9:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:15 a. m., from 11:15 a. m. to 1:15 p. m. and from 4:15 to 6:15 p. m.

If July 23 is your birthday, you have all the characteristics belonging to the people who are born while the Sun is in the Zodiacal sign Leo; open-handed, unselfish, and sociable. You place no limitations on your aspirations, striving steadily to better your conditions.

If a woman and July 23 is your birthday, regardless of your age the eternal spirit of youth will be manifested in your mental and physical spryness. One of your greatest gifts is the ability to cast aside worries, and always see things in an optimistic light, if you but make the effort. A cheerful environment is essential for your physical, as well as mental well-being. You must be on your guard against the stranger who promises to help you find a pot of gold at the end of a rainbow. With proper preparatory work you should do well as a teacher, technician, musician, writer or in some specialized commercial line. Love is likely to be your greatest comfort.

The child born on July 23 may be expected, when it passes through adolescence, to display unsuspected desirable qualities that will be very gratifying to its parents.

If a man and July 23 is your natal day, your insight, as well as foresight, will be largely responsible for your financial and social advancement. Geology, theology, engineering and journalism are among the vocational activities through which your success will most probably come. The earlier the marriage the greater will the amount of happiness to be expected.

Complications Of Peptic Ulcer Rarely Perilous

Hemorrhage No Occasion For Great Alarm, Doctor Says.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

ALTHOUGH the existence of a peptic (stomach or duodenal) ulcer rarely endangers life, there are certain complications which must be recognized because of their importance. Whenever they occur the patient is usually aware that something out of the ordinary is happening, as the symptoms are not like those previously experienced.

When the ulcer bleeds the blood usually comes from a small artery. If the hemorrhage is small in amount the patient may be conscious of nothing more than a slight feeling of weakness. If the hemorrhage is large, severe pain may be present, accompanied by nausea and vomiting, striking pallor of the face, and extreme weakness.

It not infrequently happens that the vomiting of blood is the first intimation the patient receives that a stomach ulcer is present. A small amount of bleeding may occur intermittently for years and then, without adequate warning, an extensive hemorrhage may appear.

In a rather long series of cases bleeding occurred in 25 per cent of the patients with a definite diagnosis of gastric ulcer and in 20 per cent of those with duodenal ulcer. If the blood is not vomited it will appear in the stools. Strangely enough, if the hemorrhage is of fair amount the ulcer pain usually ceases. If the bleeding is extensive the patient may exhibit signs of shock with excessive perspiration, cold hands, rapid, weak pulse, and a decided drop in blood pressure.

First aid in stomach bleeding is important. Place the patient in a comfortable position and permit no movement whatsoever. Give nothing by mouth—not even a teaspoonful of water. Give no stimulants of any sort. If available, an ice bag may be placed over the stomach area. As soon as the physician arrives he will supervise moving the patient. Remember that the danger to life is not great, as the hemorrhage will usually cease if the patient can be kept absolutely quiet.

Deliberate and calm management is far more effective than haste, and surgical interference should be undertaken only in those rare and unusual cases in which bleeding is continuous. The patient needs complete rest and relaxation. Food should not be given until after bleeding has stopped. If much blood has been lost solutions of glucose and sodium chloride may be given by rectum or into a vein. If the blood volume falls to a very low level, blood transfusions may be required.

The most serious complication of peptic ulcer is perforation. This happens whenever the ulcer destroys (eats through) the wall of the stomach or the duodenum. The escape of food materials into the peritoneal cavity may follow. Sometimes these perforations are very tiny and the openings are closed promptly by the formation of adhesions.

A sudden perforation is characterized by a stabbing, unbearable pain. This is felt extensively over the abdomen and may bore through to the back. There is great difficulty in breathing, the hands and feet are cold, and the temperature usually below normal. The slightest movement intensifies the agony. The pulse rate may be slower than normal. As time elapses, however, the pain becomes less severe and the patient is more inclined to vomit. Within a few hours symptoms of inflamation of the peritoneum (peritonitis) develop with rising pulse and temperature.

Prompt operative interference is imperative. A real emergency exists, as cases that come to a skillful surgeon within five or six hours after a rupture has occurred have an excellent chance for life. The percentage of recoveries, however, decreases as operation is delayed.

Ulcers bleed, but hemorrhage from this source is rarely dangerous and surgery is seldom needed. If, however, ulcers perforate, we are immediately faced with a situation demanding quick, accurate thinking and prompt action.

Miss Brush Says Westbrook Pegler Can Even Blush

Westbrook Pegler, one of the best known and most widely read newspaper columnists in the world, comes to Washington daily in The Post beginning Thursday, July 25. Katherine Brush, author of "Young Man of Manhattan," "Red-Headed Woman" and many other top-notch pieces of fiction, writes her impression of this exciting young newspaper man whose column is eagerly read by millions every day.

He Proves Hard Writing Makes Easy Reading, She Declares.

By Katherine Brush.

IN THE FIRST place Westbrook Pegler has a becoming modesty. When you tell him his stuff is good—which is putting it as mildly as you can—he perspires gently, grins enormously and shuffles like a sophomore. He can even blush, these eyes have seen him do it. He is temperamentally unable to believe that he writes superlatively, or to do any more than hope that maybe he writes pretty well. He sees a non-existent justice in the occasional heckling letters that his journalistic valiance inevitably brings forth.

K. BRUSH.

When they are personally unflattering, he thinks they're probably right.

He enters into communion with his typewriter by swinging one long leg over the back of the straight chair that sits before it, and settling slowly down; and his sojourns at his machine are blue with cigarette smoke, and sulphuric with profanity, and attended always by the wholesale destruction of quires of copy paper. He is the only writer of my acquaintance who can invariably rip—not roll—a sheet of paper out of a typewriter without tearing the paper (until afterwards). This takes practice—years of practice, and a fine artistic passion to be rid of written lines that are unworthy.

He proves the adage that hard writing makes easy reading. I don't know everybody, but if he isn't one of the three most conscientious workmen in the business, then I don't know anybody at all. I have seen him spend three or four hours on a newspaper story, finish it, file—making his paper's first edition by the skin of his teeth—and then rewrite the story completely for the later editions, for the simple, and, to him, sufficient reason that it didn't suit him. Enthusiastic telegrams received from his chief in the meantime make no difference. He is his own critic, and for severity, and for self-punishment, he is a so-and-so.

He lives in the country in Connecticut. The city irked him, and he built himself a picturebook Bavarian-Alpine cottage on a high ridge overlooking a wooded valley. Furthermore he bought himself a pair of formidable knee-boots a baseball glove and one for whomsoever will play with him, and an unclassifiable, raffish, little dog called Annie Laurie. He takes a feverish joy in all these things.

He is a reformed hypochondriac, and to this day he interests himself in the rate of speed at which his heart, known as his ticker, may be moving. To this day he dresses for November press-boxes as if for igloos, and sits writing in them bundled like Commander Byrd. Almost certainly it is a snuffling cold he dreads—an inconvenience—not a fatality. He drives his car as if there were no death. He also runs for the trains—ticker no ticker—and he is an ecstatic practitioner of the manly art of you-hit-me-and-I'll-hit-back. The dependable referee, however, is his sense of humor. His rages have a certain splendor, but they do not last.

He is 6 feet something. He stands somewhat straighter than a monument, and he looks rather like a faintly freckled Viking. He has one of the superb wives of the world, and is aware of it. Since what I seem to be writing is the private life of Pegler the only, I may as well add that he calls her his bride, after 11 years. It is slang, but he means it. I may as well add also that they met as reporters on the doorstep of Joseph Bowne Elwell, who had just been murdered and that they were married just in time to go honeymooning on the Hall-Mills murder case.

There are no indefinite words for Westbrook Pegler; no equivocal descriptives. He is one thing, or he is the other, he is a top-notch columnist—that you know—he is a terrible dancer, he will not play cards at all, considering them a waste of time, he is the best listener I have ever met, and he learns from everybody, and he remembers everything. He is a famous raconteur—socially, as professionally.

W. PEGLER.

He has great admiration for worth, great sympathy for the underdog, and a great deal less than no patience whatever with humbug. You have gathered that, who have read him—he hates hypocrisy only a little less violently than he deplores stupidity — his mind is ceaselessly excited. It is a crusading mind. It is excited, and it is exciting. You will see.

Courtney Ryley Cooper's '10,000 Public Enemies'

Chapter IX.—The Amazing Wests.

Once the Identification Unit has pointed to a man as a guilty fugitive, or nailed his lies concerning a previous criminal history, there is no refuting it. Fingerprints cannot be forged. Fingerprints cannot be changed. Fingerprints will break down an alibi. Fingerprints cannot be accused of exact similarity. This is even true of twins.

The Kelly twins, Robert and James, of Bridgeport, Conn., look exactly alike. They are so similar that when the idea of crime appeals to one, it appeals also to the other. They have been arrested together on several occasions.

What then happened, their similarity of mannerisms, speech and general appearance was so marked that witnesses could not identify them separately in a courtroom. But when the matter of identity became that of fingerprint cards, there was utter dissimilarity.

For ten years, now, the Bureau of Investigation has been drumming this sort of information into the law-enforcement agencies of the country. It is surprising, therefore, to know that it was not until 1929 that many of the largest cities in the country began to route all their fingerprint records through Washington.

Today, New York files the prints of more than 21,000 persons a year: Philadelphia send some 5,000, and Los Angeles 6,000 or more prints where, until 1928, it sent only a few more than 1,200 a year.

Even with this tremendous increase, however, there are evidences that there is not yet absolute co-operation. This is best shown by the fact that Wichita, Kans., a comparatively small town as compared with the large centers of population, sends three-fourths as many prints as are sent by Chicago, many times its size, and certainly more widely known for variegated crime. It sends one-fifth as many as come from New York City. It sends nearly three times as many as come from Indianapolis, and twice as many as are received from Detroit, with its smuggling activities across the adjacent border, its mixture of populations, its "Purple Gang," and its close affiliations with the gangs remaining from the old Capone setup in Chicago.

Town's Name Seldom Seen in Crime News

Wichita's name seldom gets in the newspapers either as the breeding spot of crime or as a place of perpetration.

For that matter, Washington, with its high murder rate, its history of easily obtained paroles, its gambling and gang killings, did not even take the trouble until 1932 to route more than a casual number of prints through the unit. The world's greatest collection of criminal records lay within walking distance of police headquarters, yet in 1931 only 537 fingerprints of suspected persons were turned over to the Identification Unit. With a change of viewpoint, the number jumped in a year to 2,865 and is now more than 4,000.

There is a different condition in Italy; all police departments there are forced by statute to submit the fingerprints of all arrested persons to the national bureau of criminal identification in Rome. The same is true of Norway, with its national bureau at Oslo. In Denmark statutes demand national cooperation with the central bureau at Copenhagen. England, Scotland, Ireland, Canada, Australia, the Bahamas, the Barbadoes, British East Africa, Burma, Ceylon, South Africa and Zanzibar all are rigidly allied to the new Scotland Yard bureau in London. France sends its fingerprits immediately to Paris. Beyond all this, there is in Vienna the Internationale Kriminalpolizeiliche Kommission, devoted to the interchange of criminal records from all over Europe. And in Argentina the demands of fingerprints include not only criminals but passport applicants, members of regulated professions, governmental employes, chauffeurs and taxicab drivers, with two results. There is a collection in Buenos Aires of some 2,250,000 prints equaling about one-fifth of the population of the nation. And there is an exceptionally small crime percentage.

In America, however, with its local jealousies, its loose way of hiring and firing police heads after almost every change of administration, instances like the following are not unusual:

A hotel in a small city informed the police that a guest had been reported by one of the maids as having two machine guns. A raid was made, the man arrested and the machine guns confiscated. The prisoner admitted that he had not signed his true name to the hotel register. He was taken into court and sentenced for the possession of the guns. He immediately appealed the sentence and gave a cash bond of less than $1,000, which he promptly forfeited.

Two things were wrong with that picture. One was that the possession of a machine gun, especially by a person using an alias, should be a grave offense, certainly not one to be evaded by forfeiting a few hundred dollars on an appeal bond. The second error was that the suspect's fingerprints were not taken and forwarded to Washington for inquiry as to a previous criminal record.

Suspect a Kidnaper, Robber Widely Sought.

This man was a kidnapper. He was a robber of dangerous degree. He was an associate of murderers, if not himself a slayer. He was in this town to make preparations for a big hold-up, the loot of which ran into six figures. Within a month the crime was committed, plus a number of others in the getaway, such as the stealing of automobiles. All this might have been prevented had there been a check-up on the fingerprints. At least two cities gladly would have sent for this man; a pink slip on his master card in Washington shouted the fact that he was badly wanted.

This happens in spite of all the missionary work from Washington. Record cards are furnished free as well as franked envelopes for sending them on to the identification unit. Pamphlets are sent out regularly, giving instructions even on how to take fingerprints of the dead. Even the cross-roads constables of the United States should know how to take fingerprints—and should send them to Washington.

Fred (Killer) Burke, one of the most dangerous of the last decade's murderers, lived for many months on a Missouri farm. It belonged, incidentally, to the family of Harvey Bailey, himself notorious for banditry and kidnaping. The following case proves the worth of proper identification in a small town:

There had been a series of petty thefts in the little town of Pascagoula, Miss. Finally a man was arrested and his fingerprints sent to Washington. Whereupon Pascagoula was amazed to learn that it had arrested not only one person but 87. The suspect was wanted all the way across the United States. A former convict, he had posed his way from city to city, pretending to be whoever suited his fancy, from lieutenant commander in the Navy to a physician in the United States Health Service.

All the knowledge of drugs and medicines he possessed he had acquired while employed in a drug store in San Jose, Calif. The thing he knew best, however, was the stealing of automobiles, and upon the receipt of his fingerprints from Pascagoula, the Bureau of Investigation tucked all 87 of him away in a Federal penitentiary for four years.

By such care in the fingerprinting of suspected persons, one of crookdom's great avenues of escape, the plea of mistaken identity, can be eradicated. In fact, it was a matter of resemblance which gave fingerprinting its first true impetus in the United States.

A new convict, a Negro named Will West, was being measured and photographed by the record clerk of the United States Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kans., in 1903. At this time every police department and penitentiary in the country operated only on the Bertillon system.

Duplication Shown In Bertillon System.

This was a complicated combination of photography and anthropometrical measurements, which was constantly at the mercy of human trial and exceedingly human error. The Negro submitted to the various measurements. Then the record clerk asked:

"What was the matter? Did you try to escape?"

"Who, me?" asked Will West. "No, sir."

"Then, why are you being measured again?"

The Negro stared.

"I'm not being measured again. Nobody ever done nothin' like this to me before."

That called for an acrid remark from the record clerk. He left the staring Negro and went to his collection of prison photographs. Returning with a picture, he asked:

"Isn't that you?"

The Negro's eyes grew larger.

"Yes, suh!" he exclaimed. "That sho' is me."

"And your name's William West?"

"Yas, suh. That's my name."

"Then why do you try to tell me you've never been here before?"

Will West shuffled uneasily.

"'Cause I ain't been here before," he argued.

This was getting nowhere. The record clerk proceeded with the measurements. He compared them with the measurements upon the card. They tallied. But Bill West continued to insist that he never before had been in any penitentiary. At last the clerk dubiously inquired of the warden's office if William West, Convict No. 2626, under life sentence for murder, was being dressed in again.

"He's not," came the reply.

"Then would you mind sending him in here?" asked the record clerk. "I've got a mystery on my hands."

William West was taken from his work in one of the prison factories and told to report to the record clerk. As he entered the room, he halted in amazement. Then these two men merely stood and stared at each other, William West and Will West; both, it seemed, had been cast from the same mold.

It was not a case of twins meeting after many years. These men never before had seen each other and were no relation. Yet they were identical; only by the big numerals stamped on their prison uniforms could they be told apart, and even then coincidences had brought about a similarity. William West was No. 2626. Will West had two of these numerals in his number; he was 3426. Even their crimes were somewhat similar; one had murdered, the other had committed manslaughter.

The prison warden, R. W. McClaughry, had become interested in fingerprinting. He ordered that these two men be thus recorded. This done, William West and Will West were absolutely different. One possessed whorls on his fingers entirely different in pattern from those of the other man.

Shortly after this, Warden McClaughry began the building of what was at that time the biggest fingerprint file in Amreica.

The records of the Bureau of Investigation show that Will West served his sentence of ten years for manslaughter and went back into the world—evidently to move along straight lines. He was a young man when he entered Leavenworth; it may be presumed that he still lives.

Wherever he may be, the underworld gives him no thanks for his pilgrimage to the penitentiary. But for him, there might not have been an Identification Unit, catching 365 badly-wanted fugitives a month.

DOCTOR HELPS WOMAN LOSE SURPLUS FAT

Mrs. Long didn't listen to gossippers—she had a mind of her own

Mrs. H. H. Long of Clarinda, Iowa, writes: "Kruschen was recommended by my doctor in connection with gall stone treatment, high blood pressure and acid kidneys. This is my 3rd jar. I've lost 18 lbs. Doctor says I'm doing fine."

Beware of gossipers who keep you from obtaining a shapely figure by saying there's no safe way to reduce. Kruschen Salts is SAFE—it's actually a health treatment—you'll not only lose fat but you'll feel much better physically. Just take a half teaspoonful in a cup of hot water every morning—tastes fine with juice of half lemon added. A jar lasts 4 weeks and costs but a few cents.—Advt.

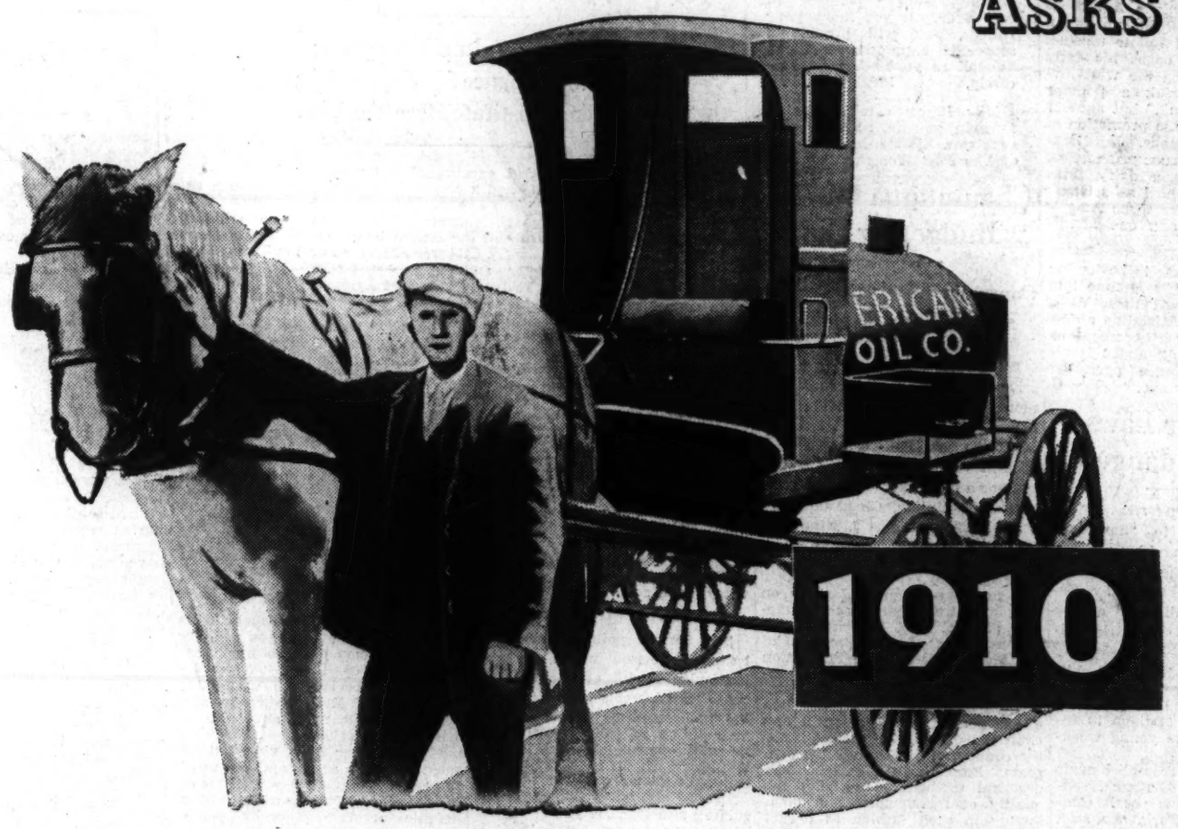
"REMEMBER when we started out with this wagon twenty-five years ago?"

ASKS JOE BIDEN



"I look back and I can't believe it myself. Just 25 years ago, and the rolling stock of the American Oil Company was the horse and tank-wagon shown in the picture.

"I was the handy-man and bookkeeper—looked after what we called 'the office'. A 300 gallon day was a big day. We had just one policy. Sell the best products and treat the customer right.

"We rocked along for a while, and then perfected the formula for Amoco-Gas. It was the first special motor fuel, and I guess about the first gasoline in the East to be branded and advertised. From then on we hit our stride and really began to grow.

"Of course, we all worked hard. We always have. I was moved up and in time came to manage a territory of my own. We had the finest products that could be produced; we gave the service and the motoring public soon learned it.

"When I look back at the start and then look at the millions of dollars we now have in refineries, ocean terminals, bulk plants, tank cars and trucks, filling stations and pumps, I always take my hat off to:

Amoco-Gas—Orange American Gas—and Amoco Motor Oil.

They had to be good to get where they are!

Mr. Biden was the first plant man and bookkeeper of the American Oil Company twenty-five years ago, and is one of the oldest employees of the company in years of service.

THE CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD ADDS A WORD

"The business that started in Baltimore with our first little tank-wagon has travelled from Maine to Florida and inland.

"There's nothing much I can add to Joe's story except to stress again our policy of creating the best products, selling them at the fairest prices and giving the best service. This policy and the support of our co-workers, dealers, other customers and friends built our business. At this time we thank all who made our 25th Anniversary possible."

Price Starts Fight Among Democrats For Governorship

Veteran Legislator Makes Public His Candidacy for 1937 Primary.

Burch May Be Man Of Organization

Friends of Aspirant Point to Faithful Party Service.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, July 22.—Lieut. Gov. James H. Price today announced his candidacy for Governor of Virginia subject to the 1937 Democratic primary.

In making his announcement, Mr. Price made no statement of platform policies, but promised to make known his views on public problems "at the proper time."

Political observers professed to see a keen political fight in prospect with Price aligned against the State Democratic organization's candidate. Representative Thomas G. Burch, of Martinsville, has been mentioned in well informed quarters as the possible organization choice.

Friends Cite Record.

Friends of Price were quick to say, however, that he has never been an "anti-organization" Democrat. They pointed out that he handled the Byrd amendments to the Virginia Constitution in the House of Delegates, where he served seven terms and three times headed the House Democratic caucus.

Mentioned also as possible candidates for the governorship are Thomas W. Oxlin, chairman of the State Corporation Commission and a former speaker of the House of Delegates, and J. Sinclair Brown, of Salem, a former speaker of the House.

In announcing his candidacy, Price said:

"I have no statement to make at the present time further than to say that I am going to be a candidate for the nomination for Governor in the 1937 Democratic primary.

"At the proper time I shall make a formal announcement and submit to the people of Virginia my views on the problems confronting the State."

Price will make his campaign for Governor after a long political career in Virginia. After he was graduated in law from Washington and Lee University he began practice in Richmond. He was interested in politics and served as chairman of the city Democratic committee. He was one of the younger leaders here in the Martin-Swanson senatorial campaign before beginning his career in the House of Delegates.

Measures He Sponsored.

He introduced or steered through the House numerous measres, including the workmen's compensation act and subsequent amendments; the constitutional amendments growing out of the Prentiss report, and several measures sponsored by the Virginia Bar Association. He served on the rules committee and was chairman of the committee for courts of justice.

He is president of the Richmond Chapter of Workers for the Blind and has risen to grand master of the Grand Lodge of Virginia and in the Shrine was potentate of Acca Temple, Richmond, before being named imperial recorder (national secretary) of North America for the Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

Seeks Governorship

JAMES H. PRICE.

Burch, Byrd, Glass Decline to Comment

By the Associated Press.

Virginia's two Senators greeted with silence last night word that Lieut. Gov. James H. Price had announced his gubernatorial candidacy.

Both Senator Glass and Senator Byrd said:

"I have no comment whatsoever to make."

Representative Burch (Democrat), of Martinsville, who has been mentioned as a probable candidate, likewise had "no comment."

95 Attend 4-H Camp For Harford County

Bel Air, Md., July 22 (AP).—Ninety-five boys and girls, ranging from 10 to 19 years in age, today trooped into "The Rocks of Deer Creek," the permanent summer camp of the Harford County 4-H Clubs, for a week's encampment and training.

The camp is under the direction of County Agent H. M. Carroll, Miss Dorothy Emerson, State girls' club agent, and E. G. Jenkins, State boys' club agent. It is the only permanent 4-H Club camp in Maryland.

Dates Are Set For Virginia's Road Hearings

$7,000,000 to Be Spent on Grade-Crossing Elimination, State Highways.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., July 22.—The first public hearing on tentative allocations for road work in Virginia will be held at Pulaski, July 30, Highway Commissioner Shirley said today. Three other hearings are scheduled as follows: Lexington, July 31; Fredericksburg, August 1, and Richmond, August 2.

The highway commission meeting here last week made the tentative allocations, which Shirley said would be ready for announcement "in a few days." Approximately $7,000,000 of Federal funds will be expended on State roads under the program.

Allocation of Federal funds for elimination of grade crossings in Virginia was announced by Shirley following a conference with railway representatives here today. Approximately $3,700,000 will be spent on the projects, which will be included in the tentative program to be submitted at the hearings next week.

The funds were allocated tentatively today in proportion to the mileage of railways in Virginia. They follow:

Railway.	Miles.	Amount.
Atlantic Coast Line...	143	$122,173.67
Baltimore & Ohio.....	93	78,590.65
Chesapeake & Ohio..	664	567,237.59
Clinchfield	94	80,316.83
Louisville & Nashville.	72	61,529.88
Norfolk & Western....	1,279	1,092,656.09
Pennsylvania	83	70,918.85
R., F. & P.....	113	96,546.26
S. A. L.	179	152,896.37
Southern	874	746,629.45
Virginian	331	282,769.58
Other roads	384	328,061.03
Totals.....	4,418	$3,774,287.00

This, however, will "hit only the high spots" in crossing work, Commissioner Shirley said, although it is the first large-scale attack on the problem.

A list of projects was received today by Shirley from the railways, but another list will be submitted because agreement was lacking on the first one.

The entire road program calling for expenditure of the $7,000,000 is destined to take about 5,000 men from the relief rolls of Virginia and provide employment for one year. Barring unexpected developments, the Federal program should get under way in about 90 days.

Free Air Ride Ends in Death Of Third Man

Ticket Selling Reward Developed Into Tragedy.

Pilot and Passengers All Succumb to Hurts.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chambersburg, Pa., July 22.—Charles Leight, 18, died at the Chambersburg Hospital early this morning, the third fatality in an airplane crash here late yesterday afternoon.

The other victims were Glen Calhoun, 22, son of the sheriff of Bedford County, and Herbert Foreman, 20, pilot of the plane. They died soon after the crash.

Calhoun and Leight had been selling airplane-ride tickets as a feature of the opening ceremonies of the Sunset Airport here. Their reward was an airplane ride.

Today investigation revealed that Foreman had completed a course at a flying school several months ago. He held a limited commercial license, which local authorities said entitled him to take up passengers from his home field. A coroner's jury was impaneled this morning for an inquest Thursday morning.

According to witnesses of the accident, Foreman was flying several hundred feet above the ground when the light plane slide-slipped and fell into a tailspin.

Until tonight the plane which fell into a field in the northwest outskirts of the city was guarded by members of the State highway patrol, pending investigation.

New Jersey Driver Accused in Death

D. C. Man Dies After Auto Crash and Fist Fight.

By the Associated Press.

Towson, Md., July 22.—State's Attorney James C. L. Anderson today announced a charge of manslaughter would be placed against Michael Laurino, of Camden, N. J., in connection with the death of Charles H. Southard, of Washington.

Laurino was released on $100 bail last week to appear at a hearing next Friday before Magistrate Henry W. Routenberg at Halethorpe.

Laurino was charged with common assault after Patrolman L. C. Puckett received information that Southard was not seriously injured in an altercation with Laurino following a truck accident. Southard died yesterday in a Baltimore hospital.

Patrolman Puckett reported Laurino's truck and the car driven by Southard collided on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard last Friday and the two drivers engaged in an argument.

U. S. Acquires Options On Pennsylvania Land

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Bedford, Pa., July 22.—A representative of the United States Department of Agriculture stated here yesterday that the Government has secured options on 20,000 acres of land in Southampton and Mann townships, and more than 5,000 in Union Township.

The latter, if the purchase is made, will be used for the establishment of a national park. The tracts in the southern section of the county will be reforested and it is believed the water supply conserved for piping to the East.

Locomotive Hits Crane.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, July 22.—A Baltimore & Ohio passenger train, Baltimore-bound from Washington, today crashed into a crane on a work train between Mount Winans and Lansdowne. No one was injured. A. L. Waltz was engineer of the passenger train. According to a Baltimore & Ohio report, the crane was extended out from the work car when the engine of the local ran into it.

Chivalry of Mosby's Rangers Attested by Note of Survivor

By the Associated Press.

Front Royal, Va., July 22.—Mosby's Rangers of the Civil War were true gentlemen and chivalrous enough—that's what the "last survivor" of a raid by Mosby's men on a B. & O. train believes.

The story came out here when two "last survivors" met through correspondence. Thornton V. Leach, of Front Royal, who is the last of Mosby's men living in Warren County, received from Mrs. W. C. Shulenberger, of Hagerstown, Md., a letter in which she described herself as the only person now living who was on a train captured and burned by the Southern leader during the latter part of the war.

Returning to her home in Martinsburg from Baltimore, Mrs. Shulenberger said "on an October evening, about 8 o'clock, between Harpers Ferry and Martinsburg, our train was attacked by Mosby's men. The passengers were politely asked to get out of the train, as they were going to burn it, and we were left sitting in an open field until the next morning, when a train was sent from Martinsburg for us.

"I will mention an incident showing the chivalry and courtesy of the Southern soldier, always. In Baltimore I had purchased a hat and two dresses for my young brother, and with two boxes I was heavily burdened for a youngster . . . So two soldiers, one on either side, said, 'Sissy, we will help you,' so they helped me down the car steps, up a steep embankment and placed me on a stone with my bundles beside me. It was not such a bad night, though crisp and cold, as the heat from the burning cars kept us comfortable."

The writer says the reason she can imagine she is the only survivor on that train, "is because there were no other children along, as children were not traveling much in those days." She was about 12 years old at the time.

Once Worth 4 Million, Mines Go for $5,000

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Meyersdale, Pa., July 22.—Quemahoning Coal Co., valued at more than $4,000,000 in the days when the coal business flourished in Somerset County, was sold for $5,000 to satisfy United States Government claims for income taxes.

A bondholders' committee, consisting of H. L. McCloy, Philadelphia banker; W. W. Hepburn, Philadelphia, and Capt. E. O. Kooser, Somerset attorney, made the purchase.

Federal income taxes against the property total about $125,000 and local taxes $120,500.

The land is divided into 155 tracts scattered in Quemahoning, Jenner, Lincoln, Shade and Somerset townships and Stoyestown Borough. Much mining equipment is included, principally at Ralphton.

Milling Firms Win Court Stay On Wheat Levy

Twelve Virginia Concerns Get Injunction in U. S. Court.

By the Associated Press.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 22.—Temporary injunctions restraining the Government from collecting a processing tax on wheat were granted 12 milling companies in district court here today.

Attorneys for the plaintiffs contended the tax should not be paid pending proposed amendments to the AAA now before Congress. Judge John Paul ordered the injunctions granted today, to terminate when Congress acts on the amendments.

The companies bringing the action included the Roanoke City Mills, Roanoke; the Shenandoah Milling Co., Shenandoah; Natural Falls Milling Co., Bridgewater; W. M. Memefee & Son, Harrisonburg; Wilkins Milling Co., Broadway; Elkton Milling Co., Elkton; Fultz Milling Co., Newport; Weyers Cave Milling Co., Weyers Cave; Rockingham Milling Co., Harrisonburg, and the Strickler Milling Co., Harrisonburg.

Judge Paul did not pass on the constitutionality of the processing tax or on the merits of the cases.

The Government will have the right to move for dismissal of the injunctions any time after the amendments are disposed of by Congress, Judge Paul said.

The judge further stated he did not want to forecast an opinion on the constitutionality of the AAA, but that he acted solely because of the pending amendments. Otherwise, he asserted, there would be no standing for an injunction in his court.

He explained the injunctions were granted to prevent harm in case no recovery feature was approved in Washington. The injunction will not continue if the danger passes, he said.

Potatoes Included Under AAA Control

By the Associated Press.

With potato prices down to $1 a barrel on the Eastern Shore of Virginia the Senate adopted provisions of the Warren potato bill yesterday as an amendment to the agricultural adjustment bill.

Action on the bill had been urged by Representatives Bland (Democrat), of Virginia; Darden (Democrat), of Virginia, and Warren (Democrat), of North Carolina. Representative Warren took the subject up with President Roosevelt in a White House conference when the Eastern Shore growers called a digging and marketing strike when prices reached as low as $1.25 a barrel.

$3,650,000 Projects Scheduled for Virginia

Richmond, Va., July 22 (AP).—Actual work can get under way without delay on projects involving $3,650,000 for work relief in Virginia now being considered in Washington, it was announced here today by William A. Smith, State WPA chief.

Action on applications totaling that sum is expected from Federal officials in a few days, Mr. Smith said. Of the total, $2,000,000 will go for a State-wide community sanitation program, and $1,000,000 for a mosquito eradication project covering the entire State. The remainder is divided into projects of the VERA, now being absorbed by the WPA.

Handled Rattler Bites Substitute Preacher

St. Charles, Va., July 22 (AP).—Rattlesnakes don't like this thing of some one substituting for the Rev. George Hensley, reptile-handling preacher par excellence.

A big rattler bit the Rev. Condy White on the back of his hand as he substituted for Hensley in a demonstration at Black Mountain, Ky., according to word received here today. White picked up two copperheads and the rattlesnake while the congregation gasped. The copperheads behaved very well. Hensley didn't appear, it was reported, "because of illness and bad weather."

Court Grants Central Trust Stock Writs

Value of Their Holdings Certified at $23,000 by the Receiver.

By the Associated Press.

Frederick, Md., July 22.—Decrees against 52 stockholders of the defunct Central Trust Co., liable for stock valued at approximately $23,000, were entered in circuit court today by order of Chief Judge Hammond Urner as a further step by the bank's receiver to collect statutory liability.

The decrees applied to more than half of the stockholders against whom suit was filed April 10. Suits against 23 defendants in the same action were dismissed Friday after amounts owed were paid.

In allowing the receiver's plea that a bill of complaint against the listed defendants be taken as a decree pro confesso against them in view of their absence from court to answer the bill, the court took the second action of this kind within two years.

The first such decree was issued August 2, 1933, against 52 of the 73 large stockholders originally sued. The decree is tantamount to a judgment by default.

Persons against whom the decrees were entered, and the amounts for which they are held liable, are:

Albert M. Ahalt and Norma A. Ahalt, Middletown, $100; Cordelia G. Albaugh, New Market, $500; Austin Angleberger, Frederick, $200; Luther A. Baumgardner, Frederick, $228.82 balance; Richard P. Bennett, Woodbine, $560; G. Harry Bevard, Sykesville, $750.

Grace Bevard, Sykesville, $238.61 balance; Belva A. E. Birely, Thurmont, $1,000; Lester S. Birely, Thurmont, $200; C. Scott Bollinger and Elsie V. Bollinger, New Windsor, $100; J. May Bond, Union Bridge, $299.85 balance; Walter D. Brenner, Smithburg, $100; S. Elmer Brown, of W. Frederick, $3,500; Elden E. Buhrman and Martha E. Buhrman, Thurmont, $100.

Addie L. Burrall, Monrovia, $250; Jesse M. Burrall, Jr., Monrovia, $360; Hattie B. Bussard, Frederick, Mae Street, Hagerstown, $409.89 balance; Jeanette Byers, Emmitsburg, $100; George E. Castle, Myersville, $100; Peter A. Coad, Emmitsburg, $1,430; Albert M. Coblentz, Middletown, $620.

Byron G. Coblentz and Florence L. Coblentz, Middletown, $1,000; Ellen F. Coblentz, Middletown, $1,000; Hattie V. Coblentz, Middletown, $110; J. Vernon Coblentz, and Oneida K. Coblentz, Middletown, $271.91 balance; Millard C. Coblentz, Middletown, $880; Amy Coffman, Boonsboro, $100.

Consistory of Glade Church, Walkersville, $450; Guy R. Cramer and Ruth R. Cramer, Frederick, $1,000; Harry E. Cramer, Frederick, Route 6, $210 balance; Luther Cruit, Poolesville, $174.77 balance; Frank I. Davis, Poolesville, $1,000; Henry E. Davis and Millard N. Davis, Frederick, $250; Daisy M. Day, Mount Airy, $200; David M. Devilbiss, Union Bridge, $500; Grayson Doub, Myersville, $336.59 balance.

Harry L. Ebert, Frederick, $4,150; Charles E. Eckenrode and Mary E. Eckenrode, Thurmont, $100; George W. Eckenrode, Thurmont, $222.48; Clarence Eldridge, Hagerstown, $250; Harry C. Erdman and Ida Erdman, Burkittsville, $172.53 balance; David G. Everhart, $100; Eva S. Everhart, $100.

The receiver has thus far entered suits in equity against 310 of the stockholders of the Central Trust Co., who totaled approximately 1,400. It is understood that a large number of liability settlements have been made out of court.

Man Kills Brother In Two-Year Feud

Slayer Jailed After Fight at Mother's Home.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Philippi, W. Va., July 22.—One brother killed another and is in jail here following a two-year feud.

Meeting at the home of their mother, Mrs. John Daugherty, in the "bend-in-the-river" section, 7 miles south of here, Virgil Daugherty, 45, farmer, was killed by his brother, William Daugherty, 40. The latter knocked his older brother down and then hit him on the head with a stone as he attempted to get up, fracturing his skull.

The victim died a half hour later in a hospital here. The slayer had caught a hog which had strayed from his brother's farm next to his mother's home and sent word to the brother to come after it. When the latter arrived, they quarreled and the fatal fight followed.

The feud started when a jointly owned truck was blown up while in the possession of the older brother.

Virginia Gasoline Taxes Show $43,000 Increase

Richmond, Va., July 22 (AP).—A $43,000 increase in tax collections on gasoline sold in June over the same month last year was reported today by the State motor vehicle division. The money is credited on the 1935-1936 fiscal year books.

Last month's collections were $1,233,759.54, compared with $1,190,259.15 for June of 1934.

Teacher, 21, and Mother Held, Charged With Parent's Death

Edith Maxwell, Accused of Slaying Father, May Not See Funeral.

By the Associated Press.

Wise, Va., July 22.—Edith Maxwell, attractive 21-year-old Wise County school teacher, and her mother were indicted here today for the murder of the young woman's father, H. T. Maxwell, a prominent citizen of southwest Virginia.

Miss Maxwell, who has been in jail since her arrest early Sunday morning, is held without bail and will not be permitted to attend her father's funeral tomorrow afternoon unless she is in the custody of an officer, Commonwealth's Attorney Fred B. Greear said.

Mrs. Maxwell is at liberty under $3,000 bond.

Mother and daughter were arrested after neighbors had found Maxwell, dying, on the floor of his home at Pound, Va. Chant Kelly, L. L. Sykes and Lovell Howards told Sheriff J. P. Adams they investigated after a small daughter of Maxwell had told Kelly her father was dying. Neighbors said previously they had heard a quarrel in the Maxwell home.

Sheriff Adams said the women told him Maxwell struck his head in a fall. Adams said he found a stained electric iron in the house. There were several deep gashes in Maxwell's head.

Mrs. Maxwell and her daughter probably will be brought to trial at the present term of court.

Dynamite Bump Blows Man Out of His Car

By the Associated Press.

Lexington, Va., July 22.—There was dynamite in this bump in the road.

Jake Claytor, driving from Galling Springs to Lone Jack Quarry this morning on his way to work, hit a bump that was real dynamite. His car was blown to pieces, but he escaped with an injured shoulder and badly injured ear drums. The accident occurred near Glasgow.

How did the dynamite get in the road? Sheriff J. V. Watts, for one, says he doesn't know.

Drop Is Listed In Relief Rolls For Maryland

44,125 Emergency Cases Are Reported in May by Greenstein.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 22.—A reduction in the relief rolls of Maryland was noted by Harry Greenstein, State relief administrator, today in announcing that there were 44,125 cases on the rolls of the Maryland emergency relief administration during May.

This total, comprising 28,714 in Baltimore City and 15,501 in the counties, was compared with 40,949 cases in the city and 23,926 in the counties during April, when the highest number of cases were being aided by the Maryland emergency relief administration.

Greenstein's office has been gathering information on the number of employables who are on relief, disclosing that the percentage varies from 22 in Baltimore County to 86 in Garrett County. Baltimore City has approximately 74 cases out of every 100 who can be employed at a gainful occupation.

The percentage of employables on relief July 17 in the counties were, Allegany, 76; Anne Arundel, 77; Baltimore, 22; Calvert, 79; Caroline, 60; Charles, 64; Cecil, 74; Dorchester, 54; Frederick, 73; Garrett, 86; Howard, 60; Kent, 73; Montgomery, 82; Prince George's, 75; Queen Anne's, 75; St. Mary's, 64; Somerset, 58; Talbot, 43; Washington, 81; Wicomico, 63, and Worcester, 70.

Truck Crash Kills Alexandria Man

Companion Also Injured in Virginia Highlands.

One man was killed and another was slightly injured yesterday afternoon when a truck in which they were riding skidded on the Washington-Richmond highway just south of Frazier avenue in Virginia Highlands.

The dead man, a driver for an Alexandria furniture firm for 12 years, is Ferdinand de Vaughn, 46, 132 Randolph avenue, Alexandria. His companion, who was slightly cut about the face, was S. Norcross, also of Alexandria.

De Vaughn was rushed to Emergency Hospital in Washington. He was pronounced dead on arrival.

He is survived by his widow and an 11-year-old daughter, Ruby.

Goes to Jail for Theft Of Brother's Chickens

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., July 22.—Pleading guilty to the theft of 35 chickens, the property of his brother, Russell Clem, of the Marlboro section, was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail by Trial Justice A. J. Tavenner today. On a charge of fishing unlawfully, he received an additional 30 days and was fined $10 and costs.

Walter Spence, of Strasburg, charged with operating a car while under the influence of liquor, was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail and was fined $100 and costs. His driver's license was revoked for a year.

Virginia Cuts Price on Wine To Wean Hard Liquor Drinkers

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., July 22.—The Virginia ABC Board today announced a reduction from 20 per cent to 14 2-7 per cent in its mark-up on direct wine and vermouth orders for licensees, in an effort to curb hard liquor consumption.

The reduction, which goes into effect on August 1, means the board will take an estimated loss of about $20,000 a year in net profits from the direct wine order business, it was pointed out.

In a statement announcing the cut, the board said it "wishes in every way to carry out the spirit of the act insofar as the sale of wines is liberalized in the effort to curb consumption of distilled liquors. The board believes that such liberalization is a move toward true temperance in the use of alcoholic beverages, and that good wine sold at relatively lower prices may tend to draw people away from immoderate use of hard liquors."

About 2,000 licensees will be affected by the voluntary reduction.

The board is in a better position to study the "relative extent of its various activities and to fix its price accordingly," the statement says, citing the benefit of a year's experience and an indication of the volume of wine business.

Paralysis Cases For Day Reach 18 in Virginia

Albemarle Churches Call Meeting Off; 19 Stricken Since June 1.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., July 22.—Eighteen new cases of infantile paralysis reported to the State health department today brought the total recorded in Virginia since June 1 to 190.

The disease apparently is centering its freshest attack in Albemarle County, five of the new cases today coming from there and leading Baptists of the section to call off a county-wide meeting of churches scheduled July 23 and 24.

Other Virginia communities are taking speedy action to guard against spread of the disease by prohibiting or cancelling assemblies of various types.

The Powhatan Health Board has ordered Sunday schools, day schools and swimming pools closed and has forbidden persons under 20 to attend any public meeting.

At Charlottesville at least two public gatherings have been canceled because of the outbreak. Dr. C. H. Elder, of Charlottesville, however, stated there is no reason for great alarm there now.

The State health department has not issued orders prohibiting gatherings or crowds, but has reiterated its warning against permitting children to congregate anywhere in the State.

The present outbreak of poliomyelitis has spread to approximately half the counties and at least six cities of the State.

Utility Valuation Down $300,000 for County

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Keyser, W. Va., July 22.—Public utility values in Mineral County dropped more than $300,000, according to figures released by the clerk of the county court, T. T. Huffman. The figures have just been received from the public service commission in Charleston, and will be used as the assessment for this county in settling the tax levy.

Drop in the valuation of railroad property in the county played a large part in the decrease. Both the Baltimore & Ohio and Western Maryland railroads had their assessments sharply decreased from 1934. The valuation for B. & O. property in this county in 1934 was $3,785,000, compared to $3,639,000 this year. The Western Maryland reduction was even larger. The 1934 valuation was $2,345,000. This year's assessment was placed at $2,308,000.

Good Morning!

We wonder if it is possible for Congress to have been influenced in its decision to remain in session, even to a small extent, by our continued offerings of cool apparel and furnishings at attractive prices? After all, Schloss Brothers Hot Weather Suits are an inducement at any price.

Pensions Go Soon to Aged In Maryland

Head of State Board Unit Hopes to Send Checks to 1-3 in 60 Days.

Welfare Boards Set Up in All Counties But One; Levies Made.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 22.—Lee L. Dopkin, head of the old-age pension division of the Board of State Aid and Charities, said today he hoped to have pension checks going to more than one-third of Maryland's needy aged within 60 days.

Welfare boards to administer the work have been formed in all counties but one. Application forms are available in all counties.

Sixteen counties have included assessments for the pensions in their levies and some other counties may pay pensions from their contingent funds.

Dopkin said he believed 5,000 aged persons would be on the rolls by the middle of September. His original survey showed about 14,000 eligible for the payments. Six persons of every 1,000 are expected to receive pensions, he said, although this ratio would be higher in industrial areas.

Federal Funds Due.

The counties already have levied for $168,000 of the $200,000 expected to be needed the first year for payments. The county welfare departments will make the actual payments, of not more than $30 a month. The State then will return two-thirds of the total amount to the county. A Federal bill now pending would match the old-age pension money dollar for dollar.

Persons desiring pensions must apply to their welfare departments. A record of the application will be sent to Baltimore and checked to prevent payments by more than one county to the same person.

The applicants will be investigated by the county welfare workers, who will recommend or oppose granting the pension. The recommendation then will be passed upon by the executive secrtieary of the county welfare body.

If both decisions are against the payment, the applicant can appeal to the pension division of the Board of State Aid and Charities.

"Every application will get speedy attention and there is no need for indorsements of any sort," Dopkin said. "All the applicant has to do is to give the (case) workers the proper answers. The law is liberal and it protects the taxpayer. I think it means the eventual elimination of the poorhouse and it will be cheaper than the poorhouse."

The status of the pension levies in the various counties is:

Status of Counties.

Allegany, levied $30,000 for 1935.
Anne Arundel, next levy January 1, 1936.
Baltimore County, next levy November 12.
Calvert, levied before bill signed by the Governor; next levy May 20, 1936.
Caroline, unreported.
Cecil, levied $10,000.
Charles, levied $2,000.
Carroll, will levy about $10,000.
Dorchester, levied $4,500.
Frederick, next levy January 1, 1936.
Garrett, levied before bill signed by the Governor.
Harford, levied before bill signed by the Governor; next levy October, 1935.
Kent, levied $3,000.
Montgomery, levied $24,500.
Prince Georges, levied before bill signed by the Governor; next levy April, 1936.
Queen Annes, considering levy of $10,000.
St. Marys, levied $3,333.
Somerset, will levy $4,000.
Talbot, levied $5,000.
Washington, commissioners to decide on levy next month.
Wicomico, levied $10,000.

The National Civic Theater Society Closes The Odeon, Pending Reorganization

Play Scheduled For Tonight Is Definitely Off

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Do not journey out to The Odeon, on the grounds of the National Park Seminary, at Forest Glen, Md., tonight in the expectation of seeing Margaret Hatfield's manuscript play of "Till Death Us Do Part," or any other. You will find it a futile trek.

The National Civic Theater Society, according to announcement made last night, has suspended operation for at least two weeks for purposes of complete reorganization and strengthening of the society's business and financial struture.

The Odeon was definitely closed Saturday night, after the final performance of "The Bride the Sun Shines On," and today the stage is being dismantled and the furniture and props brought back to town, pending reopening at a later date. The society's lease on the handsome little seminary playhouse has several months to run and will not be relinquished, according to present plans.

While a distant observer suspects internal dissention as at least a partial cause for the disruption of the society's elaborate plans for a laboratory theater, a veteran Washington showman, one of the trustee-directors of the society, last evening attributed the present crisis to failure of the management to insure adequate financial backing before launching an enterprise that can be catalogued as only partly commercial.

Backing Not Forthcoming.

"I have discovered from this brief experience in The Odeon," said he, "that a laboratory theater in the true sense of that term—a theater equipped and willing to conduct a training school in all branches of creative activity in the playhouse, as well as serve as a clearing house for new plays and a repertory theater for those of standard worth—cannot function without a list of patrons and patronesses with an altruistic sense of duty to the drama and the sustaining sinews of war, so to speak, of supporting donations, subscriptions and endowments.

"The National Civic Theater Society was founded upon the promise that these essentials of successful operation would be forthcoming. They have not been. Therefore, to preclude a serious financial smash-up and the total wreckage of an admirable idea and a workable project, it was deemed necessary to halt things at this juncture and begin all over again. The experience in the end will have proved profitable, both to those who discharge the pledges to which they are committed and to the public."

It will be a prime requirement in any realignment of the forces which must be relied upon for a successful accomplishment of the avowed purposes of the National Civic Theater Society to bring about a more compact and co-operative executive organization than has heretofore been the case.

Authority Was Scattered.

Again to a distant observer, it has seemed that the society has been suffering in its creative efforts from that unfortunate condition in which "too many cooks spoil the broth." This desk, for example, has received as many as three announcements in a single day of the society's immediate purposes, all from different sources and no two alike.

Such a circumstance is not reflective of the highest development of efficiently coordinated executive control.

It is this condition, needless to say, that is now to be remedied. There are still the lease on The Odeon, the call on some fine theatrical properties and, in prospect, other affliations that should insure a successful culmination of the society's plans and aspirations, once the wheels begin to revolve again under a new regime.

The basic idea upon which the National Civic Theater Society originally was founded is too sound and too rich in potential value to be allowed to perish for want of both the stage and the public to tangible and adequate support.

It is with vast chagrin and considerable consternation that we note in the last paragraph of Saturday morning's review of "The Scoundrel," starring Noel Coward, on the screen at the Palace, that the play is described as one that is "thoroughly conceived," etc. In case you have not already suspected, the word was "thoughtfully." After all, there is a difference!

Cast for "Going Native."

It will now be possible for those who have been in greatest suspense to stop holding their breaths.

At last Division Manager Carter Barron, of Loew's, Inc., and Gene Ford, manager of Loew's Fox Theater and director of the annual, all-Washington revue, "Going Native," have broken down and confessed that they definitely have decided upon several other principals for the home-town frolic to be staged at the Fox next month, in addition to Larry Elliott, Arthur Reilly and Horace and Polly Hunnicutt, who will share the duties and responsibilities of mastering the more or less complicated ceremonies.

Among those who have been selected for participation in "going native" may be named the Great Richards, magician; Stanley Karmazin, monologist; Joe Hall, guitarist and singer; Earl Sonderland and his dog act; La Nelle Avery, singer; Toma Genaro, acrobatic dancer; Marjorie King, singer; Marjorie Mitchell, dancer, and Alma Metcalf, vocalist and violinist.

Some of these, memorably Miss Marjorie Mitchell, have appeared advantageously in earlier editions of the local production, which it is planned to continue as a yearly fixture at the Fox.

Auditions for membership in the chorus were held in the Joe Brown studio, 1210 G street, Saturday morning and from among those present Gene Ford and Marjorie Hartoin, ballet mistress at the Capitol Theater, New York, who will stage the line numbers, selected Myrtle O'Connor, Loraine Flammer, Peggy Owens, Frances Kain, Beverly Tydings, Shirley Rose, Audrey Heathcote, Mary Hampton, Sylvia Berger, Belle Silver and Virginia Howard.

This, of course, is not nearly enough. Additional girls are needed for the chorus and Mr. Ford urges all who are interested to report to him or Miss Hartoin at the Joe Brown studio this morning, any time after 10 o'clock.

It is one of the stringent requirements of the District child labor law that girls must be 18 years of age or over to be eligible to appear on the stage. As has been pointed out in this space before, documentary evidence must be presented to prove correct age in cases of doubt.

Speaking of the Fox, as almost everybody is, at one time or another, it is a lamentable circumstance that Paul Robeson, that eminent barytone and actor, is not permitted greater latitude for his magnificent voice than he is afforded during the peculiarly unconvincing action of "Sanders of the River," the screen feature of the current week. Neither Robeson nor Nina Mae McKinney, who plays opposite him as a siren of the Congo jungles, seems overly impressed with the task at hand. When the ultra-metropolitan and Harlemesque Miss McKinney, perhaps inadvertently, permits Lilongo to drop a casual "cawn't" in the course of the jungle's pigeon English, she almost bursts out laughing and there is the suggestion of an amused smile behind even the most sinister chores Robeson is called upon to dispatch. If he had more than the single theme song, it would help.

However, to tip the balance to the other side, I doff my 1932 Knox to Paul Gerrits for the finesse and polish he is able to impart to a turn that might so easily be just another tedious interval of gymnasticism, roller skating and juggling, on the stage bill. Mr. Gerrits, who looks surprisingly like Robert Montgomery, is in every sense an artist and I was about to tell him so Saturday night, after his last show, when he strolled into Mr. Jensen's tesselated beanery to eat himself a snack, but he had plunged his physimahogany into a refreshing flagon of amber wassail before I could get around to it. I may have a chance, though, even yet.

Belasco Opens September 4.

The Belasco Theater will reopen as the home of foreign-made pictures on Wednesday, September 4, according to announcement made last night by Manager Jack Thoman, who evidently has picked up the office typewriter where Al Tamarin laid it down when he departed the Capital to summer in Mr. Matty Radin's Manhattan playhouses and upstate in a later vacation.

Extensive changes, including new flooring, new seating, and new decoration will make this illustrious Lafayette Square theater one of the most attractive amusement places in the country, if Mr. Thoman's optimistic forecasts are to be taken at face value.

The opening post-Labor Day attraction, as has already been made known here, will be Gaumont British's "Loves of a Dictator," in which Clive Brook and Madeleine Carroll are co-starred.

Kiepura in Second.

The second offering of the Belasco's second season under its new policy will be a musical subject starring Jan Kiepura, who, so far, has been seen on, and heard from, a local screen only once. "My Heart Is Calling" is the title of this new vehicle for the abundant talents of the Polish tenor. The third booking will be long-awaited "The Man Who Knew Too Much," in which the principal roles are played by Nova Pilbeam, the juvenile star who made so pleasant an impression in "Little Friend," and Peter Lorre, character actor now in Hollywood.

It is further stated that two George Arliss pictures, made on the other side, will reach the Belasco screen later in the fall.

The same policy as prevailed last season under the Matty Radin management will be in force when the theater reopens—continuous performances at popular prices.

The postman didn't have to ring at all—I met him at the front gate for this one dated Hollywood, July 18:

"Dear Nelson: Hardie Meakin, the best theater manager in the land, has sent me your most recent piece on 'The Informer.' Needless to say, both Cliff Reid and I appreciate all the plugging you've done on the film—which continues to do well for itself . . . My regards, sincerely,

" BOB SISK."

"The Informer," it may be recalled, was Bob Sisk's maiden effort as a producer for RKO-Radio after having been elevated from the post of chief of the publicity department. And what a picture he made!

Whoever cops the statuette for the best Academy acting for 1935 will have to beat Vic McLaglen's performance as Gyppo Nolan in this film to get it.

Some of Sophie's Sophistries.

That durable duenna of the two, three, four and five-a-day, Mme. Sophie Tucker, is always looking for trouble.

First she pretends to want to buy the Boston Braves, then she organizes—was it the other way around? —the "Life Begins at 40" Club, and now she plans to launch a junior "Life Begins at 40" Club, for the encouragement of those of both genders who may be less than 40 and doubtful if life holds anything worth waiting for after that.

Mme. Tucker's purpose, as she expresses it herself, is "to keep alive the spirit of achievement, tolerance and understanding and the joy of living that every 40-year-old possesses, and let the youngsters know that they have much to look forward to when they are 40."

Well, Mme. Sophie should know!

Big "Name" Acts!

And don't think that this perennial pepper-upper lacks any knack of surrounding even the most bizarre of her publicity stunts with names that more or less have Broadway and way stations by the ears. Her "Life Begins at 40" Club numbers among its members such distinguished citizens at Fiorello H. La Guardia, Mayor of New York; Will Rogers, the Maharajah of Rispiplo —somehow I don't seem to remember him along Broadway so much —Oscar Odd McIntyre, Jack Lait, Harry Richman, Jack Dempsey and others.

Any of the juniors of the clan who wish to go for this business may apply for membership to Mme. Tucker, care of Station WHN, 1540 Broadway, New York City. If membership blanks are not forthcoming, blame the energetic Miss Paula Gould, 234 West Forty-fourth street, New York City, who is official rattler of Mme. Tucker's typewriter.

And another thing. Do not commit the faux pas of addressing the madame as "last of the red hot mamas." Jack Yellen, her official song writer, who christened her that ten years ago, has gone and thought up another one now, right out of his own skull—"Public Sweetheart No. 1."

That is what Mme. Tucker is now, "Public Sweetheart No. 1," which, I submit, is taking in quite a good deal of territory!

Vocal Endurance Note.

Despite the fact that he has been calling her names for years now, and Mme. Soph has been out there on those boards for three decades, she is still for Yellen!

Man Drinks Poison.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Grafton, W. Va., July 22.—William M. Logan, 40, a bartender, may die as a result of drinking poison in a restaurant. Investigators found that he entered the restaurant, asked for a glass of water, poured the poison in water and drank it. He is a married man and has five children. No reason is assigned for his action.

Plays Famous Role for Paramount

Hollywood

Hollywood, July 21.

MARLENE DIETRICH has told friends that she would rather make a bad flicker with Von Sternberg than a good picture with any other director . . . Director Von Sternberg's Dietrich at Columbia will be Tala Birel . . . The low-down on the Fox-Twentieth Century merger is that the deal was engineered by A. C. Blumenthal. At first he couldn't get in to see Aldrich, president of the Chase National, and William Rhinelander Stewart served as his ambassador . . . Florine McKinney, who broke her engagement to Barry Trivers, is now being escorted by Walter Kane, the agent . . . Joan Crawford is reading plays trying to discover one she likes, for it is her intention to appear on the stage . . . James K. McGuinness met Clark Gable at the Trocadero, and on being introduced to Mrs. Gable, said: "It must be great for you to meet a man, who has no sex appeal" . . . The billing on a theater Marquee reads: "It Happened One Night—The Scoundrel."

• • • •

Director Van Dyke tossed another of his parties during the week. It was an unescorted party. Every guest, man and woman, had to come alone.

Van Dycke had marines stationed at the door to see that every girl came without the boy friend and every man came without the girl friend . . . Besides the movie stars, Mabel Walker Willebrandt and Pat Hurley attended . . . Lyle Talbot and Peggy Watters have taken to romancing with each other again . . . Robert Benchley is a delight and scores with a great performance in "China Seas" . . . That was a great remark uttered by Douglas Fairbanks. He said: "I haven't given up acting—acting has given me up."

• • • •

MAE WEST will receive more money for making "Klondike Lou" than any star in the picture business. Her salary is $5,000 a week, but Paramount is paying her double this, the price of two pictures, to keep her from making a picture for another concern. She will also receive a writer's salary for preparing the scenario and will clear about $400,000 for the picture . . . Anita Page is Busby Berkeley's companion at the night club tables . . . Lee Tracy will return to the Broadway stage in Philip Barry's play, "Bright Star" . . . "A Midsummer Night's Dream," was shown to the members of the cast and Al Jolson, who isn't in it, was so enthusiastic that he went out and bought more Warner stock . . . Borah Minnevitch and his gang will be in the E. Cantor flicker, "Shoot the Chutes" . . . An actor who is about to divorce his wife barked at her: "We've been married for 14 years and what have I had from you? Nothing but loyalty" . . . Marc Connelly calls it "Tarzan Stripes."

• • • •

Bryon Foy took Everett Marshall to John Boles' Malibu house and Singer Boles sat for hours listening to Marshall sing . . . A group got to relating Wilson Mizner yarns and up came the one about the crowd arguing who was the better general, Grant or Lee. The question was put up to Mizner, who answered: "I don't know, but they paid off on Grant." . . . The other afternoon, coming out of the Vendome, Norma Talmadge was besieged by a mob of autograph seekers. Miss Talmadge said: "Go away; I don't need you any more."

• • • •

MARION DAVIES' next flicker will be a talkie version of "Little Old New York" . . . Virginia Pine has redecorated George Raft's apartment for him . . . Will Hays has just signed a new contract, which puts a stop to the rumor that James J. Farley is to take that post . . . The hit of the Claudette Colbert flicker, "She Married Her Boss," will be a child actress, Edith Fellows, who is a discovery of Bill Perlberg. It was after looking at the rushes that Columbia immediately put Edith under contract . . . Sid Silvers is writing a book called "I Used to Be a Genius." The introduction will be written by George Jessel

Berger Halts Griff Rally In Ninth

Starts Double Play to Assure Indians of 6-4 Triumph.

By Shirley Povich,

A TESTIMONIAL scroll, a silver chafing dish and a ball game were presented to Walter Johnson yesterday at Griffith Stadium. The scroll and the silver plate were the contributions of admiring Washington fans to "Walter Johnson Day." The ball game was the gift of Bozie Berger, Johnson's second baseman.

Berger, the local boy who has made good with the Cleveland Indians, choked off Washington's hopes of winning the ball game in the ninth inning with a death-dealing double play at a time when the bases were full of Nats, the tying run on second, the potential winning run on first, and only one out.

The Nats put two and two together and it added up only to a 6-4 defeat, but there was some doubt as to how it would all end in the ninth when Manager Johnson was fit to be tied, and almost was. He saw half of his team's four-run lead cut away and was frantically rushing relief pitchers to the bull pen when Berger brought the situation to a happy conclusion for Johnson and the Indians.

Trail 6-2 in Ninth.

Trailing 6-2 going into the ninth, the Nats rose in their wrath against Walter Stewart, a former teammate, who had been holding them to five hits. Buddy Myer lashed a double to left field, Heinie Manush drove a single to left that scored him, and Cecil Travis put Manush on second with a single to right.

Johnson ordered Stewart out, and called Lloyd Brown in from the bull pen. Brown was little help to the Indians. He walked Powell on four straight balls to fill the bases and disposed of Holbrook on a force play as Manush scored from third with the second run of the inning. But when he walked Kuhel to put the winning run on base, Johnson had seen enough of him.

In came Willis Hudlin, the Indians' third pitcher of the inning, and Manager Bucky Harris, who had used all other available pinch hitters, resorted to Alan Strange in this emergency. Strange hit the first ball pitched; Hudlin leaped high to deflect it with his glove, and that's where Berger comes into the story.

Seals Fate of Nats.

Like a cat the tall second baseman was on the ball as it skidded near second base. It was a formality for him to step on second for a force-out, but he was far out of position for a throw to first base for a double play. But he threw the ball, anyway, and it was perfect, beating Strange to the bag by two steps and sealing the fate of the Nats.

The Indians won the ball game back in the first three innings against Ed Linke, whom Harris finally removed as a humane gesture toward Linke. The Indians slammed his offerings for eight hits in these first three innings, and he could get only one man out in the

This Morning...
With Shirley Povich

WHEN folks speak of the vanishing Indians these days, there's a fair chance that they are referring to the collection of ball players Walter Johnson is supposed to have under his management. One by one they are departing him in a series of developments that has the guy wondering what diabolical influence is at work to keep his regulars out of the line-up.

POVICH.

Three of the Cleveland regulars Johnson has been forced to send home. A fourth is confined to the club's hotel here, and a fifth recently returned to the line-up after a three week's absence. But it is not the number of the casualties, nor yet the frequency with which they occur that has Johnson on the verge of distraction. It is the lengths to which his ball players go to incapacitate themselves that has Johnson well-nigh nuts.

Johnson can pour out a tale of woe this season that would drive a cast-iron sarcophagus to tears. List while this department details what has happened to his ball club since the season started:

Ralph Winegarner, counted upon as a valuable addition to Johnson's pitching staff, went rabbit hunting, shot a rabbit, skinned it, contracted rabbit's disease (tularemia) and was forced from the line-up for a month.

Outfielder Earl Averill took his kids on an off-day picnic, showed his bravado by holding a giant firecracker in his hand, discovered that it hurt, and only recently rejoined the club after being absent three weeks with two badly burned fingers on his throwing hand.

CATCHER FRANKIE PYTLAK, Johnson's regular backstop, took ill from a mysterious malady, baffled physicians, still is suffering from a stomach ailment, and has hung up his uniform for the remainder of the season.

Pitcher Clint Brown stooped to pick up his bat at the end of a game in Cleveland, and was hit in the eye by an exploding firecracker. He is through for the season, is still confined to a dark room, and doctors hold out great hope of saving the sight of one eye.

Pitcher Oral Hildebrand, another bright star of Johnson's staff, recently was sent home to Cleveland when taken down with insomnia. A stomach disorder brought about a nervous condition, and Hildebrand, after successive ineffectual attempts to sleep at night, finally begged permission to go home.

But last Friday Johnson encountered his last full measure of grief. Monte Pearson, one of the few remaining healthy pitchers on the Cleveland staff, sought to circumvent the heat in Philadelphia on an off day by sleeping on the roof of the club's hotel. He came down with a painful case of sunburn, is confined to the team's hotel here, and may not pitch for at least a week.

Any day now, Johnson will not be surprised to discover that his whole outfield can not play because it cut itself shaving, or something. And if his infield begs off because of pink tooth brush, why, that won't surprise Johnson, either.

In Short—

Big league club owners called their scouts off the trail of Appleton, the star Montreal pitcher, when they discovered that he was Pete Jablonowski operating under a new name . . . Jablonowski was a flop with three big league clubs several years ago . . . Alva Bradley, owner of the Indians, has shown a distinct liking for seeing his name in the paper, and has gradually stripped General Manager Billy Evans of all authority . . . all official club statements now are announced from Bradley's office . . . Cleveland fans are beginning to have misgivings about Nick Trosky, the big first baseman who is hitting .250 this year after a sensational season in 1934 . . . other Cleveland sensations have flopped in their second year in the big leagues . . . notably Catcher Frankie Pytlak and Second Baseman Carl Lind . . . Bozie Berger, Cleveland second baseman, fields all hard chances with his tongue sticking far out of his mouth . . . Buck Newsom, of the Nats, and Lamar Newsome, utility infielder of the A's, are cousins . . . somehow, somewhere, the Newsoms of North Carolina lost the "e" on their name . . . Against all the laws of good baseball, Bucky Harris gambled and won in the ninth inning yesterday . . . when with the Nats two runs behind, two on and two out, he gave Dee Miles liberty to steal second, which he did . . . but the Nats would have looked very foolish, indeed, if Miles had been caught . . . it was tough enough to get men on base at that stage of the game without taking chances of having them wiped off . . . After watching 'em all this season, Bucky Harris still contends that Jake Powell is the best right-handed bunter in the American League.

Allison Beaten After Hard Contest

By the Associated Press.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 22.—One of the most gallant exhibitions of his career brought only defeat today to Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., at the hands of Gottfried von Cramm, Germany's acrobatic baron, in the second singles match of the interzone Davis Cup tennis series.

The leader of Uncle Sam's international squad in quest of the trophy held for the past two years by England bowed in straight sets, 8—6, 6—3, 6—4, to the talented Teuton. Thus Von Cramm balanced the defeat of his teammate, Heiner Henkel, by young Don Budge Saturday, and the rival forces were tied at one-all with the doubles matches scheduled for tomorrow.

Perry Is Onlooker.

Playing his heart out in an effort to justify his selection over Sidney B. Wood, jr., and scrapping like an infuriated longhorn, Allison produced a brand of tennis calculated to defeat perhaps any but two amateurs in the world. Unfortunately for him, however, Von Cramm happened to be one of them. The other Fred J. Perry, of England, sat in the press box.

"I'm glad I'm not playing either of them today," he smiled.

"Perry lets you play your own game now and then during a match," Allison said. "Von Cramm never does."

In defeat Allison received as great a hand as his conqueror from a disappointingly small crowd. The spectators realized he made one of the supreme efforts of his career in the furious first set where he charged the net and battled Von Cramm on even terms until an epidemic of double-faults ruined his chances in the last game.

Lacks Endurance.

Even after that heart-breaking experience he never ceased fighting, but in the last two sets he did not have the physical endurance to maintain the terrific offense which alone could break up the German's game.

In the opening set Von Cramm scored seven aces with service, which Allison described as the "fastest thing I ever saw." In the last two sets Allison managed to handle his rival's high-kicking delivery better, but it still proved the weapon that enabled the German to keep the situation under control.

Allison's service, on the other hand, was contrastingly erratic. He was guilty of no less than ten double-faults into the net during the three sets. Three of them came in the fourteenth and last game of the opener after he had built up a lead of 40—15. Just by way of emphasizing his superiority in this department, Von Cramm closed out against Allison in the third set with four thunderous services that almost upset the American.

Von Cramm's forehand drives along the sidelines also were of the explosive variety. Allison was ever dangerous and effective at the net so Von Cramm drove him back with flat forehands and then usually outlasted him in baseline duels.

Johnson 'Shy' As Local Fans Offer Tribute

THE man who faced the bats of Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Sam Crawford and the others of baseball's murderers row without a tremor of fear, returned to the pitcher's mound at Griffith Stadium yesterday before a crowd of worshipful fans and developed a fine case of nerves.

Walter Johnson stood about shyly, great beads of perspiration oozing from his brow as District Commissioner George Allen presented to him the handsome silver chafing dish that was the contribution of admiring Washington fans to Walter Johnson Day.

And then when Dick McCann, chairman of the Washington Baseball Writers Association, which sponsored "Walter Johnson Day," handed him the scroll that bore the autographs of thousands of local fans, Johnson could only mumble a soft but fervent "thank you."

Then, still nervous, he dropped the scroll. Finally, when he stooped to recover it, he came up with a smile, his first of the presentation ceremonies.

Wes Ferrell's Homer Wins For Sox

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, July 22.—For the second time in as many days, a ninth-inning home run by Wesley Ferrell won a ball game for the Red Sox today. Dick Coffman, of the St. Louis Browns, was the victim of Ferrell's batting prowess which made the final score 2-1.

Yesterday, as a pinch hitter, he hit a homer to beat Detroit 7 to 6.

Wes and Coffman toed the slab in a brilliant pitching duel, each allowing but 1 run until Wes stepped to the plate in the ninth inning with one out, just as he did yesterday, and drove a long smash far over the left-field wall to tally the winning marker, and run his string of victories for the year to 15.

Browns Score in Fifth.

The visitors chased across their only tally in the fifth inning on successive singles by Carey, Heath and Burns. Thereafter they were unable to pass first base.

The Yawkeymen tied the count in the sixth when Dusty Cooke drew a base on balls, Mel Almada chased his teammate around to third base with a looping single into center field, and Dusty came home after Sam West took Roy Johnson's long fly in deep center field.

Joe Cronin, Red Sox pilot, had a perfect day at bat with two doubles and a single.

Rowe Due to Face Allen Today As Tigers Open Yankee Series

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 22.—Rain held the Detroit Tigers in leash today, and Mickey Cochrane and his young men took the downpour as a sure sign that by tomorrow night they will have dislodged the New York Yankees from first place in the American League.

"That gives Schoolboy Rowe another day's rest; that's fine," said Mickey as the rain pelted down, forcing readjustment of the schedule for the four-game series to a double-header tomorrow, with single games Wednesday and Thursday. "I won't hesitate, either, to throw the Schoolboy in there for the final game, if we need it."

With only half a game separating the leaders, and packed stands at the stadium a certainty tomorrow, Joe McCarthy, manager of the Yankees, said that Johnny Allen, the Carolina right-hander, who shut the White Sox out with two hits in his last start, will oppose Rowe in the first game, starting at 12:30 (Eastern standard time). Allen beat Rowe this year in the only game the lanky Schoolboy has lost to the Yanks in three years.

Cochrane said he would send Vic Sorrell, a right-hander, after the second game. McCarthy probably will pitch Vernon Gomez. Red Ruffing for the Yanks and Tom Bridges for the Tigers are the probable selections for Wednesday, with

Schumacher Is Blasted From Mound by Early Attack.

By the Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, July 22.—The St. Louis Cardinals, riding the crest of a winning streak that has carried them to victory in 17 of their last 18 games, advanced within a half game of first place today as they whipped the league-leading New York Giants, 8 to 5, in the opener of the all-important six-game series to be played in four days.

Blasting Hal Schumacher, ace right-hander of the Giants' crippled mound staff, from the mound in the first three innings, the world champions jumped away in front and never were headed as Bill Hallahan kept the New Yorkers' 11 hits well spaced, struck out five and did not issue a base on balls. The triumph was Hallahan's sixth straight conquest and his eighth of the season. As for Schumacher it was his third successive defeat since winning 11 in a row.

Relief Hurlers Effective.

Frank Gabler and Leon Chagnon followed Schumacher to the mound and pitched excellent relief ball, but it came too late. With the exception of two runs driven in by Jack Rothrock, the first man to face Gabler after he had relieved Schumacher with one out and two on in the third, all of the tallies were scored at the expense of Bill Terry's ace.

The Cardinals collected 16 safe blows, three coming off the bats of both Pepper Martin and Joe Medwick. Bill Delancey, catcher, was the only member of the champions that failed to hit.

The Cards scored one run in the first inning on singles by Martin, Whitehead and Medwick. Four more crossed the plate in the second as

Dizzy Apologizes To Fans of St. Paul

By the Associated Press.

St. Paul, July 22.—Dizzy Dean is sorry.

In a letter today to George Edmond, sports editor of the Dispatch, Dizzy said he "made a big mistake" on his recent appearance here with the St. Louis Cardinals when he refused to pitch "or even take a bow" in an exhibition game with the St. Paul team of the American Association.

"I want to apologize to the fans of St. Paul," Dizzy wrote. "I hope the Cardinals will schedule another game in St. Paul so I can show the fans I am not such a bad fellow. If we play there I hope Frankie Frisch will let me pitch a few innings.

"I am just a young fellow and I hope the fans all over the country will be patient with me as I know I am not perfect and do make a few mistakes once in a while."

Chisox Wallop A's to Slash Yank Lead

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, July 22.—Scoring in every inning but the seventh and eighth, the Chicago White Sox moved within four games of the idle Yankees today as they turned back the Philadelphia Athletics, 12 to 3, in the opening game of the series.

For five innings the Sox, who collected a total of 14 hits off five Philadelphia pitchers, scored once in each frame. Then in the sixth they put across two and climaxed their consistent attack in the ninth by counting five times on three hits, one of them a double by Rip Radcliff, three bases on balls and two errors as Connie Mack attempted to stem the attack with two of his rookie hurlers.

Every member of the Sox, with the exception of Manager Jimmy Dykes and Pitcher Johnny Whitehead, got at least one hit, while the scoring was divided among the nine players. Al Simmons led the offensive with a home run, double and single, but shared honors with Radcliff and Zeke Bonura in runs driven in. Each sent three across the plate.

Whitehead, the Sox's ace rookie, went the route, holding the A's to nine hits for his tenth victory of the year, as compared to eight defeats. Two of the blows were homers by Bob Johnson and Pinkey Higgins and accounted for all of Philadelphia's runs. Higgins' blow came in the second with one mate on base, while Johnson got his, No. 20 for the season, in the sixth with the bases empty.

Frisky Matron Captures Suffolk Downs Feature by a Neck

12,000 See Mare Take Contest

Exhibit Wilts After Setting Fast Early Pace; Winner Pays $7.60.

By the Associated Press.

SUFFOLK DOWNS, Boston, July 22.—The favored Frisky Matron, from the famous Broomstick strain on the distaff side, showed that she was the worthy grandchild of a famous sire by capturing the Belle Isle, the 6-furlong feature of today's program.

The winner had much the better of the going and coasted in to victory by a neck over Exhibit, second, and Happy Go, third, by a length and a half.

Stainforth set the early pace out of the gate, but surrendered his command to the challenge of Exhibit after a furlong. The winner, badly placed at the start, showed progress from there on and at the elbow of the turn was running head and head with Exhibit.

That horse faded, surrendering the lead to Frisky Matron and coming into the stretch was badly placed on the outside. Ray Howell pulled him into the middle, making up ground rapidly from that point in. The winner, however, was much too strong.

An off-day crowd of 12,000 was on hand for the racing and bet $47,643 on the race. The winner paid $7.20 for a straight ticket.

EDRI	106	2	6	12	12	12	12	Stevenson	5.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SOUTHERN WAY, $21.00, $13.60, $8.60; RICH STRIKE, $18.00, $8.40; VALE OF TEARS, $7.00.

SOUTHERN WAY went into contention fast on the outside in the opening furlong, moved up stoutly, disposed of GLITTER GLOW in the stretch, but had to be hard urged at the end to hold RICH STRIKE safe. The latter worked his way up gradually and closed with a rush through the stretch. VALE OF TEARS came stoutly on the inside through the stretch, getting up in the last strides to take third over GLITTER GLOW. The latter displayed good speed for the first three furlongs, weakening slightly thereafter. THE WAY made up some ground. DELIBERATE, hard urged from the start, was unable to get to the front and tired in the closing test. KRONA was never prominent. EDRI trailed far back all the way.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. The Stockbridge. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-old maidens. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:02. Off at 3:07. Winner, Mrs. J. R. Gregory's b. c. (3), by Greenock—Maidens Trust. Trained by J. R. Gregory. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23. 0:46 2-5, 1:12 2-5.

SENOJ	115	3	7	10nk	12	12	12	Winters	43.80

†Miss B. Bowman-M. J. Myers entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SATURNINO, $10.60, $6.00, $4.20; ONWARD, $4.80, $3.60; LOVE LOST, $4.20.

SATURNINO went to the front at once, drew clear in the opening sixteenth, was rated along in front, withstood determined opposition from ONWARD and, hard ridden through the stretch, drew out steadily. ONWARD, in nearest pursuit of the leader for most of the way, made a bold bid, was not good enough, but continued gamely to the end. LOVE LOST was well placed the entire trip. PROHIBITION outpaced early, closed a good gap. YANKEE PRINCE was unable to improve his position. TAR BUCKET closed a big gap after leaving the post slowly.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:40. Off at 3:41. Winner, Mrs. E. Haughton's b. g. (2), by Blackwood—Lady Highbrow. Trained by E. Haughton. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 1-5. 0:45 4-5, 1:11 2-5.

SEA BISCUIT	115	8	5	2°	2°	2°	2°	Stout	4.70

TUGBOAT FRANK..	112	4	4	5	4½	4°	4½	Deering	4.00
WISE KING	112	3	3	4½	5	5	5	Sage	13.50

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLACK HIGHBROW, $5.40, $2.60, $2.40; SEA BISCUIT, $2.60, $2.40; NEDVIVE, $3.20.

BLACK HIGHBROW took command in the opening strides, was rated along under steadying restraint, withstood determined opposition from SEA BISCUIT and drew out steadily, winning with speed in reserve. SEA BISCUIT moved up stoutly on the outside, continued stoutly to the end, though unable to keep pace with the winner. NEDVIVE was well placed all the way. TUGBOAT FRANK never could reach the leaders after having saved all possible ground. WISE KING was outrun all the way.

FOURTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:15. Winner, W Ridenour's b. h. (7), by Politian—Catherine K. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48, 1:12, 1:39 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LANIER, $17.00, $7.60, $4.80; BELLE GRIER, $4.00, $3.20; UNKIE TOM, $7.00.

LANIER, away well, dropped back after straightening out on the back stretch, closed determinedly in the stretch and was up in the closing strides. BELLE GRIER had speed from the start, was steadied along clear of her field, but bore out badly through the last sixteenth and finished out under the judge's stand. UNKIE TOM closed willingly in the last half-mile. IDLE ALONG worked his way into contention in the first six furlongs, weakening slightly in the stretch drive. DUNBAR was unable to keep pace in the closing drive.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. The Belle Isle. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:45. Off at 4:55. Winner, C. W. Shaw, jr.'s b. m. (5), by Bistouri—Suffrage. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $800; second, $250; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:22 4-5, 0:45 3-5, 1:11 1-5.

HILLTOWN	106	5	11	8	9	10	10	Stevenson	20.50

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRISKY MATRON, $7.20, $4.40, $3.40; EXHIBIT, $7.60, $4.80; HAPPY GO, $7.00.

FRISKY MATRON, rated along within striking distance of the pace under slight reserve, moved up gamely on the outside when reaching the stretch, wore down HAPPY GO for the lead and, hard ridden at the end, held EXHIBIT safe. The latter, unable to keep pace with the winner through the stretch and was traveling fastest of all at the end. HAPPY GO showed speed from the start, was much used in racing STAINFORTH. ALL FORLORN, well placed, was unable to reach the leaders under pressure.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:21. Off at 5:22. Winner, R. Durnan's ch. g. (5), by Hill—Hullicore. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24. 0:47 3-5, 1:12 3-5, 1:38, 1:42 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MIDSHIPMAN, $16.80, $5.20, $3.40; EASIEST WAY, $2.80, $2.20; RENAISSANCE, $2.80.

MIDSHIPMAN worked his way up steadily after being restrained until nearing the far turn, moved up gradually and, coming through on the inside, fought it out courageously, outlasting EASIEST WAY, prominently placed all the way, held on gamely under energetic handling and just failed to hold the winner. RENAISSANCE weakened in the closing furlong.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 5:52. Off at 5:59. Winner, J. T. Gratton's b. or br. g. (4), by Pompey—Bourbon Girl. Trained by W. Hinds one. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24. 0:48 3-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:40, 1:53.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRINCE POMPEY, $10.00, $6.00, $4.20; HERKIMER, $33.00, 313.40; ALL BAYS, $3.60.

PRINCE POMPEY went to the front in the run to the first turn, drew clear, was rated along in front under steadying restraint and held sway to the end. HERKIMER, well placed from the start, continued gamely to the end. ALL BAYS, under slight restraint, came gamely at the end. JUST FUN, under steadying restraint, moved up gamely in the stretch, was unable to reach the leaders and Thornton was of no assistance in the drive. DANCING MACK, well placed early, tired and broke down in the running.

Playgrounds Begin Track Tourneys

Four Regional Meets Set This Week; City Finals to Be August 20.

COMPETITION in the Department of Playgrounds conference track meets for 1935 will get under way at 2 o'clock today in the Eastern Stadium with teams from 11 playgrounds in the city's southern conference entered.

Virginia avenue playground, winners of the 1934 meet, have plenty of competition in teams from Garfield, Hoover and Jefferson playgrounds, all of whom have been working their entries under expert coaching since early in the summer. Virginia avenue has not been resting on its laurels and expects to go far in the initial meet. Also in the southern conference are Buchanan, Congress Heights, Fairbrother, Potomac, Van Buren, Wallach and Orr.

The city meet will be held August 20 in the Central Stadium.

Belle Haven Links Mark Broken

By Dave Herman.

Both Walper and Beach were three under par for the 18 holes, and thus became the co-sharers of the new competitive course record. They were one stroke better than the best previous scores made at one time or another by Al Houghton, of Indian Spring, and Tommy Ryan, the husky host pro.

Walper and Beach also enriched their coffers by splitting first prize in the pro-amateur. The Washington pro teamed with Louis Fuchs, of Indian Spring, to shoot a 66, a score matched by Beach and his 200-pound amateur partner, Nathan Kaufman, jr., also of Suburban.

Tie for Third.

A three-way tie resulted for third prize between the teams of Wiffy Cox and Russ Hollebaugh, of Kenwood; Al Houghton and Levi Yoder, of Indian Spring, and Frankie Cunningham, of Burning Tree, and Sam Rice, Indian Spring's reformed big league baseball player.

They had best balls of 67.

Fuchs and Walper had a brace of 33s, as did their Baltimore rivals. After going out in 35, Hollebaugh and Cox got hot on the incoming side and collaborated for a 32, four under par. Cox made the greatest shot of the day when he drove the 354-yard twelfth green and holed an 18-footer for an eagle deuce. He holed another nice putt for a deuce on the seventh.

Rice and Cunningham had 33—34 and Houghton and Fuchs, 34—33.

Beach rounded the turn in 34, and started back 5—5. He then proceeded to play the next seven holes in two under par, birding the twelfth and sixteenth. His big partner, Kaufman helped him on three holes—the second, tenth and eleventh. Kaufman's handicap of 6 also was a big help.

Gets Five Birdies.

Walper's card shows birdies on the second, sixth, ninth, tenth and fifteenth. He was over par on the first and fourth. Fuchs got his par 4 on the first and aided the cause with another par 4 on the fourth and a birdie 3 on the twelfth.

Twenty pro-amateur teams—one of the largest turnouts in Middle Atlantic history—participated.

Discovery Given 135 Lbs. in Classic

Omaha Assigned 118, But May Not Enter.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 22.—Alfred G. Vanderbilt's 4-year-old star, Discovery, was assigned 135 pounds for the Arlington Handicap Saturday, and Omaha, champion of the 3-year-olds, drew 118 today, but whether the famous pair would get together was still undecided.

Jim Fitzsimmons, Omaha's trainer, said the weight was satisfactory, but had not received word from Owner William Woodward, who is in Europe, giving permission to start the son of Gallant Fox in the $10,000 feature. Fitzsimmons indicated he would ship Omaha to Saratoga Wednesday if he does not hear from Woodward tomorrow.

What with the huge weight impost, it was also uncertain whether Discovery would be shipped from Suffolk Downs to run at Arlington Park.

Goldstein Bout Is Declared No Contest

Caris Gets the Decision in Semi-Final of Local Card.

THE customers who paid 50 cents apiece to view the 44 rounds of benefit boxing at Griffith Stadium last night got quantity for their four-bit contributions to aid the family of a dead hero—over three solid hours. So many assorted big and little boys swapped punches that everybody lost count and finally went away feeling like they'd just consumed Thansgiving dinners.

Seven of the eight fights, however, were fairly good affairs. Mostly the contestants were hard-punching club fighters who were really trying to earn a little doughnut money. The big disappointment of the evening was the second professional appearance of Bobby Goldstein, former University of Virginia Southern Conference champion. Goldie's opposition was so woeful that the judges declared the thing no contest after the second round.

Typical of the card was the semi-final in which Romeo Duchamp, of Montreal, and Frankie Caris, Philadelphia welter, swapped real, bloody, if somewhat awkward, punches, with the decision going to Caris at the end of six rounds.

Bout Is "No Contest."

Bobby Goldstein was the unwilling principal in the most comical incident to occur in Griffith Stadium since Goose Goslin came to bat for the first time in the big leagues. Even the judges got hysterical—so much so—that they declared the bout no contest after the second so-called round.

It happened that Bobby was to take his second public workout with one George Levey, who turned out to be size 5 feet 2, and apparently aged somewhere around 65. For two rounds Levey made hurrican faces and wiggled his ears slightly. The only action discernible inside the arena was the great and concerted bird which bellowed forth from the throats of the cash customers.

The District of Columbia Boxing Commission will decide during its meeting tomorow whether or not the boys will get paid—a verdict which should take momentous thought.

Jacobs Defeats Tooney.

In a real exhibition of gameness, Johnny Tooney, Newark youngster, stayed with Stumpy Jacobs for six rounds and, in spite of taking everything except a shower of meteors, was still dodging punches at the final bell. Jacobs, the Virginia tough boy who beat the only man who ever outpointed Bobby Goldstein in collegiate competition, was never in trouble after the first round, in which he was outrushed, and won a unanimous decision.

Hunt Defeated In Seabright Net Play

Eliminated by H. M. Culley in Straight Sets; Other Upsets.

By the Associated Press.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 22.—The classic Seabright Invitation Tennis Tournament opened for the forty-eighth time today and provided several upsets to enliven the first round of both the men's and women's divisions.

Two of the Nation's top-ranking women players—the Baroness Maud Levi, of New York, and Jane Sharp, of Pasadena, Calif.—were eliminated before they had an opportunity to get their bearings. John McDiarmid, of Fort Worth, Tex., seeded No. 4, and Robert Bryan, of Chattanooga, Tenn., seeded sixth, met the same fate.

The two women stars were defeated by unranked opponents, the baroness, No. 5 in the national list and seeded fifth, losing to Eunice Dean, up-and-coming San Antonio, Tex., girl, by 6—4, 3—6, 6—3, and Miss Sharp ranked and seeded sixth, bowing to Mrs. Agnes Lamme, of Rye, N. Y., 6—2, 6—3.

Johnny Doeg Wins.

McDiarmid, No. 15 in the national standing, was beaten by Hal Surface, of Kansas City, in straight sets, 6—3, 6—3, while Bryan was defeated by John Doeg, of Rumson, the national champion in 1930, by 6—4, 6—4.

Henry M. Culley, Santa Barbara, Calif., defeated Gilbert A. Hunt, Washington, D. C., 6—4, 9—7.

The courts were slow as the result of heavy showers that interrupted play. In spite of this, the top-seeded performers in both sections moved into the second round without mishap.

Football Coach Moves, Star Athletes Follow

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Weston, W. Va., July 21.—Charles "Chubby" Watson, of Jane Lew, sensational athlete at Davis and Elkins College last season, will follow his mentor, the crafty Camden Henderson, to Marshall College this fall. He was the scoring ace of the Scarlet Hurricanes in their drive to the State basket ball championship and won a place on the second all-State team. He is 6 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 198 pounds.

"Buck" Jamison, a Glenville boy and roommate of Watson while at Davis and Elkins, will likewise enroll at Marshall. He is a three-sport star.

Carnera Is Haled Into Court By His Manager and Waitress

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Primo Carnera's worldly goods were in a court controversy again today, with two parties to a triangular legal action alleging that the Man Mountain had not done right by them.

Counsel for Miss Ermilia Tersini, a London waitress who won a breach of promise judgment for $15,773.72 against the boxer, complained of an inability to collect, and hinted broadly that Carnera had resorted to subterfuge to avoid parting with any of his cash.

Also represented was Louis R. Soresi "and others" who are alleged to have sold the boxer two villas in Italy and property at Atlantic Beach, Long Island. Soresi represented that Carnera still owed him $58,000 on the deal, and that all the funds he got for his ring calesthenics—including the near-fiasco with Joe Louis—belonged to him, Soresi.

Nevertheless, Miss Tersini's attorney, Theodore J. Skratt, induced Supreme Court Justice Edgar J. Lauer to deny an application of Soresi to vacate an extension of a receivership over the funds Carnera won in the Louis fight.

Skratt told the court: "I am informed and verily believe that it has been a uniform practice on the part of prominent pugilists and their managers ever since Jack Dempsey * * * to sign such a paper as the purported (Soresi) contract * * * to keep such moneys out of the reach of creditors. * * *

Skratt further alleged that since Carnera came to this country he has earned more than $400,000. The fighter filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy two years ago.

HARRISONBURG, Va., July 22. The second half of the Valley League pennant race begins Tuesday with the Culpeper champions, first-half winners, on the defensive as the seven other clubs are out to get them and participate in the lucrative post-season series.

Culpeper breezed through to take first-half honors after once getting started, although Front Royal and Charlottesville ran them a close race until the final week. The champions finished two games in the lead over Front Royal, thanks to a double victory while the All-Stars were dropping a twin-bill to the Heurich Brewers.

Harrisonburg, in third place, finished with six straight victories, but the runners-up to Culpeper last year for the pennant, got off to a poor start and never decided on a team until the first half was nearly over. Harrisonburg tried out 40 players before hitting on a winning combination.

Culpeper Has Injuries.

Culpeper faces a bad handicap in the absence of Herbert Hash, ace right-hander from the University of Richmond, whose arm was broken by a pitched ball, and of Douglass, stellar first baseman, who is going to school. To offset this, the champions are benefited by the return to winning form of Walter Beall, former big leaguer, and the twirling of Waugh, a youngster.

Charlottesville, which has used a large number of players and threatened to take honors in the first half with an eight-game winning streak, suddenly collapsed. The University City lads lost four games last week, two to Culpeper and one each to Waynesboro and Harrisonburg. Waynesboro, tied with Orange in last place, broke an 11-game losing streak.

Front Royal with only a mathematical chance to overcome the Culpeper club lost out when unexpectedly bumped by Orange. The Heurich Brewers, playing both in the Industrial League in Washington and in the Valley League, wound up in a tie for fifth place with Staunton. Playing every day and handicapped by lots of travel, the Brewers found the pace plenty hot.

Staunton got off on the wrong foot but now is expected to give plenty of trouble in the last half. The same is true of Waynesboro which led the league in the early stages and then slumped into a record-breaking losing streak of 11 games. Orange found itself in the same position of the other second-division clubs, but since getting organized has been a menace to the leaders.

Tuesday—Charlottesville at Harrisonburg; Front Royal at Staunton.

Wednesday—Heurich at Waynesboro.

Thursday—Culpeper at Orange.

Saturday—Heurich at Culpeper; Orange at Front Royal; Harrisonburg at Staunton; Waynesboro at Charlottesville.

Sunday—Harrisonburg at Front Royal; Staunton at Charlottesville; Waynesboro at Culpeper; Heurich at Orange.

Eighth InningRally Beats Heurichmen

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 22.—Lefty Reggie Brown, of the Heurich Brewers, was going in great form last night until he weakened in the eighth inning to permit six hits for four runs and enable Harrisonburg to score a 4 to 3 victory.

Twenty-seven strikeouts were registered during the game, Brown accounting for 14 and Lefty Hutchison, of Harrisonburg, for one less. Hutchison permitted the Brewers only seven hits but was three runs behind when the victorious rally came.

Army Poloists Win Easy Victory

Special Dispatch to The Post.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 22.—The War Department Polo Club, of Washington, opened all its guns this afternoon on the Greenbrier field, sweeping the Greenbrier four under an avalanche of goals, 12 and 8. The local quartet, which lost its first game on the home field today, did not display the teamwork that has stood out in its earlier games this season.

The first chukker was devoid of any scoring until half over, when Frost sent a long forehand through the uprights for the initial score of the game. Army came right back to tie it up, when Reed scored from in front of the goal.

The second period was all Army, with Col. Devers scoring on a foul shot at the opening bell and Ganahl smashing through for two more points. In the third, Ganahl, who was having a big afternoon at the Greenbriers' expense, scored his third goal of the game, after a mix-up in front of the home team's goal. However, Secor and Frost came through for two goals on difficult angle shots to bring the score to 5 to 3 in favor of the visitors at the close of the chukker.

Strong in Finale.

In the fourth and final period the Army was invincible, running up a total of 7 points in the two chukkers. The only bright spot in the entire aftrenoon for the Greenbrier quarter came in the fifth chukker when Jack Young, whose terrific hitting stood out all during the game, scored twice, and Billy Rand at No. 1 came through for the third goal of the period.

Col. Devers, at back, played a brilliant game for the Army, backing his team up in great style and coming through time and again on the offensive to chalk up four goals. Young played a brilliant game for the losers, hitting with marvelous accuracy and scoring two of his team's six goals. The Army four spotted the Greenbrier team two goals this afternoon. Today's loss was the first for the Greenbrier against the War Department, having won Friday's game, 8 to 2, and playing a draw at Middleburg, 4 to 4.

Mid-Atlantic Net Play Starts Today

Dave Johnson, of District, Meets Weinstein.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, July 22.—Rain Saturday and yesterday and wet courts today caused the postponement of the Maryland State boys' and junior tennis tournament at Clifton Park. Play will be resumed tomorrow afternoon.

Malcolm Weinstein, seeded first and Middle Atlantic boy champion, will oppose David Johnson, of Washington, runner-up in the Middle Atlantics in the boys' singles.

The juniors only had half completed the two semifinal engagements. In one bracket, John Myers, who upset the first-seeded player, Nathan Askin, will face Harry March, of Washington, tournament favorite, across the net. Myers was leading in their first contest Saturday when the proceedings were halted.

All-Star College Eleven Is Selected

Team Will Battle Chicago Bears on August 29 at Soldier Field.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 22. — Two full team of stars, seniors who battled to fame on college gridirons last fall, headed by four All-America selections, will match power with the Chicago Bears of the National Professional League under the lights at Soldier Field August 29, in the second annual all-star game.

Paced by Don Hutson, of Alabama, and Frank Larson, of Minnesota, 1934's All-America ends; Bill Lee, of Alabama, all-American tackle, and Francis (Pug) Lund, Minnesota's great half back, the 22 men rode in on a wave of 731,918 votes cast in a Nation-wide poll conducted by the Chicago Tribune and 110 associated newspapers. They, with 25 others recommended by coaches to bring the squad up to full strength for practice, will report for drill August 10, at Northwestern University.

Hutson Polls Largest Vote.

Hutson, who caught the forward passes from Dixie Howell that gave Alabama its triumph over Stanford in the last Rose Bowl game, polled the biggest total—143,648 votes—to gain recognition from the fans as the All-American of All-Americans for 1934. Larson, one of the stars of Minnesota's powerful Big Ten championship eleven, followed the Alabama star with 136,974. The other two flankers named were Lee Borden, of Fordham, and Ray Fuqua, of Southern Methodist, who had 119,313 and 116,505, respectively.

The tackle division also was paced by Alabama and Minnesota players. Bill Lee of the Rose Bowl victors, polled 137,982 votes to 133,317 for Phil Bengtson, of Minnesota. Selected with them were Jim Barber of the University of San Francisco, whose supporters gave him 115,754 votes, and Jim Steen of Syracuse, with 110,826.

The first string backfield, on the fans' judgment, is Irvine (Cotton) Warburton of Southern California, at quarterback; Dusne Purvis of Purdue and Millard (Dixie) Howell of Alabama, at the halves and Stan Kostka, the battering ram from Minnesota, at fullback. Howell, bound by a baseball contract, probably will not play, but Minnesota's Lund will be ready.

Warburton led his division with 118,316 votes, with Jack Beynon of Illinois polling 104,833. Purvis had 132,174 votes and was followed by Howell, 128,758; Lund, 114,692, and Bill Shepherd, high scorer from Western Maryland, who had 112,437. Kostka had a big lead at fullback, piling up 127,588 votes to 108,976 for Izzy Weinstock of Pittsburgh.

The list of 25 others invited to join the squad includes two other members of the all America—Fred (Buzz) Borries, Navy halfback, and George Barclay, North Carolina tackle.

The full list of specially invited stars:

Quarter backs—Miller Munjas, Pittsburgh; Joe Salatino, Santa Clara. Half backs—George Malinkovich, Notre Dame; Jimmy Carter, Purdue; Fred Borries, Navy; Damon Wetsel, Ohio State; Bonn Hilliard, Texas; John Regeczi, Michigan; Al Michelini, St. Mary's; Dan Hanley, Notre Dame; Frank Sobrero, Santa Clara. Full backs—Paul Sulkosky, Washington; Irving Kuncinet, North Dakota.

FREDERICK, Md., July 22.—Thurmont defeated Brunswick, 7 to 4; Union Bridge took the measure of Emmitsburg, 6 to 5, in 11 innings, and Taneytown nosed out New Windsor, 4 to 2. Rain stopped the Middletown-Woodsboro game in the fourth inning with the score 3 to 0 in favor of Woodsboro. Middletown retained its slender lead for first place in the pennant race while Brunswick, Thurmont, Union Bridge and Taneytown moved on even terms for second place.

Inability to hit Paul Shaffer, Thurmont's veteran hurler, was responsible for the setback for the Railroaders. The Mountaineers clinched the fray in the seventh inning on a triple by N. Shaffer and three singles in succession which yielded three runs. Brunswick rallied in the ninth session and scored twice on a triple by M. Younkins and singles by Taylor, Kaetzel and Moler. Shaffer then settled down and put a stop to the scoring.

11-Inning Thriller.

Coming from behind twice, Emmitsburg sent the game with Union Bridge into extra innings. The Carroll County team took the lead in the first session when singles by Bankard, Bowman and Utz and an error by Nicodemus counter for three runs. One more was put over in the fourth. Emmitsburg evened the count in the sixth frame on a double by Eckenrode and two singles which yielded two runs. A triple by Behrens and an error by Greco gave Union Bridge a lead of one run in the first half of the ninth inning. A triple by Poulson and Behren's error knotted the count in Emmitsburg's half of the ninth. Union Bridge put over the winning run in the eleventh when Behrens singled, stole second, crossed the plate on Skinner's double. A catch by Greco which he turned into a double play and the fielding of Zimmerman, Eckenrods and J. Kiss featured.

Taneytown won from New Windsor in a pitchers' battle between S. Eckner and Shilling. Barnes started in the box for New Windsor but gave way to Shilling after a double by Riffle and three singles in succession gave Taneytown three runs in the first inning. Shilling held the winners to four scattered hits the remainder of the game.

Emmitsburg will play Woodsboro at the latter place and New Windsor and Thurmont will clash at New Windsor in postponed games Wednesday.

Taxes Take 66c Out of Every Steel Dollar

$390,000,000 in All Taxes Paid Since 1929 by 26 Companies.

New York, July 22.—Taxes paid by the steel industry for the six-year period from 1929 through 1934 amounted to 66.4 cents out of every dollar of the total net income available for the payment of taxes and for the return on the stockholder's investment. This is revealed by data recently submitted to the American Iron and Steel Institute by 26 leading steel companies representing more than 93 per cent of the total steel capacity of the country.

Payments of Federal, State and local taxes by these companies have totaled $390,000,000 during this period. What this sum means in the steel industry is indicated by the fact that it represents an amount approximately equal to 8 weeks' wages every year for each employe during the six-year period.

Net earnings of the 26 companies over the same period, after all charges except taxes and before the payment of any dividends to their stockholders, aggregated $587,900,000. However, in no year since 1930 have the 26 companies earned an aggregate net income (after all other charges were provided) sufficient to pay all taxes, with the result therefore that there was no aggregate net income available for payment of dividends to their 433,500 stockholders.

Only 1-3 Remained.

For the entire six years, only 33.6 cents, out of every dollar of the total net income available for taxes and dividends, remained for the payments of dividends, which was only 2.42 cents out of every dollar of gross sales.

Finished steel production of these companies since 1929 has totalled 115,126,000 gross tons, on which the total taxes averaged $3.39 per ton. In 1929, when steel production and earnings were at prosperity levels, the payment of approximately $95,750,000 in taxes amounted to $2.78 per ton on the 34,435,000 tons of finished steel produced by the 26 companies.

In 1932, however, at the low point of the depression, when deficits had practically eliminated Federal taxes, payment of approximately $52,125,000 in taxes amounted to $8.06 on each of the 8,605,000 tons of finished steel produced. In 1934, tax payments of approximately $56,230,000 (which again consisted of practically all State and local taxes) were equivalent to $3.47 per ton on the total finished steel output of 16,212,000 tons—a rate above the six-year average.

7.6% of 1932 Income.

The proportion of all taxes paid to the gross sales of the 26 steel companies has ranged from a low of 4.0 per cent in 1929, when gross sales are estimated at $2,387,000,000, to a high point of 7.6 per cent in 1932, when gross sales had shrunk 71 per cent to $689,000,000. In 1934, gross sales amounted to $1,148,000,000, of which 4.9 per cent was paid out in taxes. Over the six-year period, gross sales aggregated $8,180,000,000, of which 4.8 per cent was paid in taxes.

As shown in the table, by reason of the depression and the resultant lack of earnings, Federal income taxes practically disappeared during the period from 1931 to 1934, inclusive.

Taxes paid to State and local governments declined less than 19 per cent, from $59,583,477 in 1929 to $48,541,966 in 1934. Over the same period, both production and gross sales dropped off more than 50 per cent.

Canada Exports Drop Wheat Price

Chicago, July 22 (AP).—Brought face to face with likelihood of wheat imports into the United States from Canada, the Chicago wheat market today receded from material new upturns.

A maximum rise of approximately 2 cents a bushel for wheat was witnessed, owing in the main to reports of augmented crop damage by black rust Northwest, more than 50 per cent loss in many fields. On the price bulges, however, speculative demand dwindled fast, and holders made haste to realize profits, especially as evidence accumulated that liberal supplies of domestic soft winter wheat were available for shipment to Chicago.

Lloyd Shares Drop; Reich Takes Hold

Berlin, July 22.—Reorganization of the Hapag and Norddeutsche Lloyd Lines is expected here to mean virtual extinction of stockholders' interests, a prospect not discounted this week week by a drop in the shares from 35 to 18 and 20, respectively, because sellers were rationed by the Bourse before it suspended trading in the issues.

Since the capital of each corporation is only 53,000,000 marks, having already been reduced from 160,000,000 marks, it appears that a more drastic scaling down will be needed to restore equilibrium to the balance sheets. The market's view is that the Reich, by declaring itself responsible for maintenance of the present unprofitable New York service, has virtually expropriated the most important department of both corporations.

Market Moves Of the Day Seen In Brief Review

What the Stock Market Did.

	Mon.	Sat.
Advances	446	230
Declines	170	176
Unchanged	147	165
Total issues	763	671

Stocks—Bulls were in the saddle and closing pushes moved many stocks ahead from fractions to 3 points to new 1935 highs. Shares were firm from the beginning, but spurted during the last 15 minutes. Sales were 1,377,490, more than one-quarter in the last hour.

Bonds—Industrials were the greatest source of strength in the corporate market. Automobile and motion-picture issues were especially firm spots. Federals were more active. Closes showed small changes, though mostly on the minus side. Transfers aggregated $8,788,000.

Curb—Shares forged ahead in sympathy with the big board. Alcohols were firm under short covering.

Grains—Tumbled in late trading on reports of Canadian plans to export wheat to the United States. Earlier the trend had been up. Closes were July wheat, 84⅜ and July corn, 83⅜.

Cotton—After net advances of 9 to 14 points in early trading, futures eased under realizing of profits. Closes were steady, 4 to 10 points higher. July last at 11.91.

Coffee—Spot coffee was steady. Rio No. 7 last at 6⅛ and Santos No. 4 final at 8 to 8¼.

Sugar—Raw sugar was quiet at 3.20, while the refined closed at 5.10 for the fine granulated.

Bar silver—Unchanged in New York at 67¾ cents per ounce. In London last prices were also unchanged at 30 3-16d (67.48 cents).

Bar gold—Off 4 pence in London to 140 shillings 8½ pence ($34.91).

London—Quietness prevailed on the stock exchange today. New issues and industrials received the most attention and held steady, while gilt-edged securities eased. Transatlantic stocks, especially steel shares, were cheerful, but speculative issues were neglected. The market closed irregular.

Paris—Profit taking weakened prices on the bourse today. International issues joined rentes, bank, electric, coal and chemical shares and also other industrials in the slump. The closing was heavy.

Highlights and Background Of Financial News and Trends

Stocks Continue Advance in Active Trading With Steels in Front—Government Bonds Irregular —Dutch Currency Breaks.

By Carlton A. Shively.

New York, July 22.—Stocks bored ahead to new advance positions, with a turnover of well above a million shares. Most groups were little better than steady, but the influence of the leaders gave the market its tone. Bonds were good in the speculative quarters, but the Government list was mixed. Cotton was strong and grains did well most of the day, but wheat sold off a little at the close. September options ended with ⅝ of a cent loss at 85½ cents a bushel.

Wall Street read in its newspapers over the week-end that attempts would be made by the inflationist diehards in Congress to slip in some of their old pets, recently glycerined and canned by Congress when in its more sensible mood. Among the revivals were the bonus measure, the Lemke farm mortgage bonus and the repeal of the silver speculation profit tax. Such strength as the market exhibited was to be found in those sections of the trading area where optimism seems to be well grounded on business news and where investment buying has been going on for several weeks.

Traders evidently did not take too seriously the legislative antics, threats and promises. In any event, some measures which two or three months ago might have given the market a little spurt now might well have the opposite effect. An inflationary step easily could frighten legitimate business and bring a setback in the real leaders of the market which an advance in some of the metal shares scarcely would offset.

On its own trade recovery is continuing. This week the steel industry, according to the American Iron & Steel Institute, will rally further to 42.2 per cent of capacity operations, more than 2 points up on the week and nearly 5 points higher than a month ago and a year ago. Another reflector of rising trade was the total of bank debits (or checks drawn on the banks), which in the present moderate state of stock market activity points strongly to greater spending among corporations and small business men. The bank deposits, or business men's money, have been rising to extremely high levels; all that has been needed was a job for them, and perhaps now that is being found.

Steels Advance.

Stock groups to go up were the steels, motors, building construction, farm implements and mail orders—that is, the stocks which logically should lead the advance. United States Steel common topped 40 and crossed its previous high for the year and the preferred set a new high. Otis Steel performed in the lower grade to show the largest turnover and a good advance. The preferred shares rose more than 7 points to bring a total of two dozen points for the last week. Republic and Bethlehem stocks were strong.

Farm implements rose 1 to 3 points. American Radiator appeared in numerous thousand share lots and forged ahead. Chrysler was the feature of the motor group, adding two points and setting a new high price, as did General Motors. Miscellaneous stocks to attract attention to their buoyancy were Safety Razor, Borden, Mullins, Real Silk common and preferred, McKeesport Tin Plate and Westinghouse.

American Sugar continued its slide. Lehn & Fink gave up 2 points to a new low price. Tractions averaged a point higher. Oils had a partial recovery, although Standard of California was soft. Corn Products improved a little, its poor earning statement having been discounted. Telephone, gas and most of the public utilities suffered from last week's surprise along the lobby line.

Dutch Fright.

Abroad the foreign exchange market was shaken out of its dullness by a renewed attack on, or flight from, the Dutch currency. Recently, after weathering a squall of fear lest guilders be devalued and the country leave the gold standard, a return flow of currency to Amsterdam took place, and The Netherlands Bank brought down in three steps its discount rate. On this side the weakness in guilders was not taken too seriously.

Press reports told of a possible cabinet crisis to come tomorrow, when an economy bill will be discussed, and of creakings among the public and the country's economy over the deflation that it has been necessary to say on gold. Just the same, a strong body of opinion in Holland, as well as in France and Switzerland, counts the goal worth the effort.

For a while French and Swiss francs went down with guilders, and even German money, oddly enough as it is pegged, was quoted lower. The Bank of France has recovered a good deal of gold, but by no means all that it lost in the run on its reserves last spring. The Netherlands Bank also has got back some gold, but still is far from the total reported a few months ago. Eventually, and before all-around stabilization can be effected, the gold-bloc countries may have to give way, but their power of resistance is surprising many who had counted them out a year or more ago.

Cotton Is Steady, 2 to 10 Points Up

New York, July 22 (AP).—After showing extreme gains of 8 to 16 points on the continued tightness of the old crop situation and an improved technical position, cotton reacted under realizing today, but closed steady at net gains of 2 to 10 points.

There was some further liquidation at the opening and after an irregular start the market turned firmer. Offerings were comparatively light after the liquidation of late last week, while there was some trade buying of near months and covering in later deliveries.

An advance to 11.97 for July and 11.38 for May met increased offerings.

Bankers Wait SEC Ruling on 'Stabilizing'

Problem Has Been Causing Concern in Local Houses.

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

A still unsolved problem connected with the distribution of new securities issues that has been causing some concern in local banking circles is the attitude the Securities and Exchange Commission will take to what syndicates usually call stabilizing the market. Commonly the practice is referred to as "price rigging" or even "manipulation."

The question that investment bankers would like some definite answer on is how far support may be extended new issues during periods of initial distribution, what market operations may be carried on pending the expiration of rights to subscribe and what practices will be permitted with respect to secondary distribution of securities already listed.

It has been reliably reported that the commission has been studying these questions as they refer to the manipulation sections of the securities act and that definite interpretations will be issued in the near future.

SEC Powers.

The powers of the SEC include the drawing up of specific regulations covering the seasoning of new issues, some practices in connection with which in past years have drawn fire from several quarters.

One situation understood to be receiving special scrutiny is the practice of registering issues with the SEC and immediately thereafter listing on the New York Stock Exchange, resulting, sometimes, it is said, in running up the price on the exchange to maintain a market for the distribution. It is believed that the commission will frown on this procedure.

The SEC is expected to confer with leading investment bankers and the investment bankers' code committee on the situation, and it is expected that a group of leading members of the New York Stock Exchange has been considering appointment of a special committee to confer with the regulatory body.

A difficulty which often arises grows out of the necessity from time to time of disposing of large blocks of listed stocks. These can not be marketed without breaking prices sharply unless cautious distributive practices are employed. Until official clarification can be obtained bankers feel that former practices employed in this connection fall within the ban of the securities act's manipulative section.

Chrysler Pays Extra Dividend

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 22.—Directors of the Chrysler Corporation today ordered an extra dividend of 25 cents on the common stock together with the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents.

Both disbursements are payable September 30 to stock of record September 3. For the six months ended June 30 the corporation and subsidiaries had a net profit of $18,659,309 after interest, depreciation and Federal taxes. This compared with net profit for the similar period last year of $8,192,984.

The profit for the six months ended June 30 was equal to $4.31 a share of capital stock. This was after a non-recurring charge of $1,507,525 premium on debentures of Dodge Bros. called for redemption. In the 1934 first half the profit amounted to $1.88 a share.

For the half year the corporation reported sales of $295,569,896 against $231,103,779 for the 1934 period.

The corporation announced that its board approved expenditures of $7,000,000 "for rounding out facilities" and for plant conditioning and tools.

Du Pont de Nemours.

New York, July 22 (AP).—The semi-annual report of E. I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co. shows earnings applicable to the common stock in the first half of 1935 amounted to $19,220,009, or $1.74 a share on 11,051,662 average shares outstanding.

This figure, which includes dividends from the company's General Motors investment equal to 45 cents a share on Dupont stock, compares with $20,572,688, or $1.86 a share in the same period a year ago, which included earnings on the company's investment in General Motors equal to 45 cents a Dupont share. Figures for both periods include Dupont's equity in undivided profits or losses of controlled companies not consolidated.

In the second quarter, earnings were $9,847,276, or 89 cents a share, compared with earnings equal to 85 cents a share in the first quarter. In both periods the company's dividends from General Motors was equal to 22½ cents a Dupont share.

New York Deposits At All-Time High

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, July 22.—Net demand and time deposits of member banks in the New York Clearing House Association struck a new all-time high last Saturday. The 19 institutions in the association had deposits of $8,676,275,000, an increase of $23,105,000 against a week ago and of $1,342,033,000 compared with July 21, 1934. The previous peak was $8,656,819,000 on June 19.

The pre-depression high on Clearing House bank deposits was $7,863,926,000, touched on November 9, 1929, when there were 24 members in the association, so that the current total represents a gain of $812,349,000. The post-banking holiday low was $5,629,556,000 on March 16, 1933, or $3,046,719,000 lower than the latest figure. More than $1,000,000,000 has been added to deposits since the beginning of the year.

Rubber Trust Is Blamed for Rising Prices

Commerce Officials Say That Rates Are Up 1 Cent Since March.

By the Associated Press.

An international rubber combine which has clamped down on the exports from 95 per cent of the rubber-producing countries was blamed by Commerce Department officials today for steadily rising prices of that commodity.

Since March, they said, the close regulation of exports from rubber-producing countries has brought the price from an average of 11.44 cents a pound for March to 12.52 cents a pound for June.

A slower demand for the commodity helped to lower the March price, they said, but despite larger shipments since that month, they attributed the rising price to the close regulation of exports.

The countries in the rubber export agreement—which replaced the Stevenson Rubber Pool plan of several years ago—were named as British Malay, Netherlands East Indies, French Indo China, British India, Ceylon, Siam, Burma, British North Borneo and Sarawak.

Most of the world's supply of rubber comes from these countries. The rubber-producing sections of the world outside the pool are the Philippines and other Far Eastern islands, Africa, South America and Mexico.

Commerce officials said that in operation the plan simply consisted of the countries joining together to regulate rubber prices by the simple expedient of refusing to allow it to be shipped out.

They added that the plan went into effect last June and by August prices had been lifted to 16 cents a pound. At the beginning of that year they had been 9 cents.

However, officials added, a desire to prevent runaway prices, coupled with a slack demand for the commodity, brought them gradually down to a low of 10 1-3 cents a pound at one time during March.

To illustrate the amount of rubber controlled by countries in the pool, Commerce Department officials cited the following figures of rubber exports during the first five months of this year:

January	77,133	79,813
February	74,018	73,775
March	85,067	86,686
April	74,978	78,474
May	76,303	77,503

Farm Values Will Increase Billion, Report

Survey for 1935 Based on Rising Prices and Stable Living Cost.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 22.—A billion-dollar increase in the farm value of agricultural production this year has been forecast on the basis of rising prices paid to farmers, coupled with a comparatively stable cost of living in rural communities.

Standard Statistics Co. estimates a prospective gross farm value of $8,860,000,000 this year, compared with $7,869,000,000 in 1934, an increase of 12.6 per cent.

The figures are based on the 22 per cent rise in the last year in prices which farmers receive for their labor and on the 5 per cent increase in prices which the farmer himself pays for commodities which he buys. The total, it is pointed out, should not be confused with cash income, which should be somewhat smaller than gross value.

Many Benefits.

Estimated benefits to the farmer, however, are only one side of the economic picture, since those persons whose business is based in whole or in part on sales to rural areas have opened to them the prospect of greatly enlarged sales this fall and winter.

Such buying power is backed by the revelation of other surveys that farmers for several years have deferred buying equipment for their farms, and in the early part of this year farm implement manufacturers were hard pressed to step up production fast enough to meet the demand.

Right now the implement companies are scaling output higher than for the last few summers in order to stock dealers in anticipation of fall and winter requirements.

Up 43.9 Per Cent.

The standard survey of gross farm income estimates a 43.9 per cent increase in grain values in 1935 over last year, an 8.9 per cent rise in cotton value and a reduction of 7.7 per cent in value of other crops, a net increase of 5 per cent.

Livestock value is given an estimated rise of 33.8 per cent while poultry, dairy and other products are estimated at 13.3 per cent ahead of last year, an aggregate rise of 21.8 per cent.

While the increase in gross farm income is placed 14.2 per cent higher this year. A reduction in the estimated total of bounties and other payments cuts the gross increase to 12.6 per cent.

Although some commentators have feared an adverse effect on farm population might attend a Supreme Court decision holding the agricultural adjustment act invalid, it is shown that Federal payments to farmers have been small when compared with the huge total of cash brought by crops and livestock.

On that score, standard comments: "The income to farmers from this source is not highly important; the $510,000,000 estimated would represent less than 6 per cent of the gross value of farm production and less than 8 per cent cash receipts from the marketing of crops and livestock."

Crude Oil Stocks Decline in Week

Washington, July 22 (AP). — The Bureau of Mines reported today that stocks of domestic and foreign crude petroleum on July 13 totaled 317,045,000 barrels, representing a decline of 2,149,000 barrels from the preceding week. Domestic stocks declined 1,965,000 barrels, and foreign crude, 229,000.

Daily average production was 2,775,000, an increase of 40,000. Daily average crude runs to stills was 2,710,000, a decline of 30,000.

Curb Follows Big Board Up

New York, July 22 (AP).—The curb market moved upward today, following the lead of the big board. Transfers approximated 163,000 shares compared with 215,000 last Friday.

Hiram Walker, Aluminum Co. of America, Parker Rust Proof and Distillers Corporation-Seagrams all ended up a point or better. Other substantial gainers included American Cyanamid "B," International Petroleum, and Gulf Oil. Utilities were inclined to lag, with both American Gas & Electric and Electric Bond & Share finishing slightly lower.

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

CHARGES of the American Liberty League that there are 148,625 people on the Federal pay roll who are not needed were vigorously denied last night by employe leaders.

BAKER.

"The American Liberty League and its wealthy sponsors want plenty of Government service, but they do not particularly want to pay for it," declared E. Claude Babcock, president, American Federation of Government Employes.

"I hardly expect argument, or appeal to fair dealing, to have much effect so far as that organization is concerned," the labor leader continued, "but the American public is fully aware that the gentlemen who back the Liberty League are largely responsible for the economic chaos into which we have been plunged, and that they are doing little if anything to get us out of it.

"The league is much concerned for the interest of the taxpayer, particularly the wealthy taxpayer. It is strongly opposed to the idea of taxing those who have money, on the ground, presumably, that there are so few of them. Instead it favors taxing the needy, of whom there are so many.

"It has, of course, been necessary for the Government to expand its activities. The rulers of our industry and commerce who are represented in the Liberty League have contracted theirs, until recently, at least, to the point where the productive processes in operation could not support our people. They are the principal beneficiaries of the Government's expenditures, for the costs of public works and the expenses of relief—food, clothing and shelter for the needy—largely find their ultimate way into their hands. They resent sharing any part of the Government's expenditures, apparently, with the employes who must administer them.

"But," Mr. Babcock asks, "how can the Government carry on its work with its substantial incidental dole to the Liberty League's sponsors, if it does not have the employes to man its agencies?"

He concluded with the statement that the "economy" drive is on.

"It must be combatted, not alone by Government employes, but by all who believe that great wealth must pay its share to get us out of economic disaster," the employe leader said.

E. E. Vial, Agriculture, has been attending a meeting of the American Institute of Co-operation at Ithaca, N. Y. He spoke on "Manufactured Dairy Products Situation."

Interstate Commerce Shifts.

Walter B. Potts has been transferred from Statistics to Annual Reports Section.

Byron Darling is now in charge of annual report files.

Miss Mabelle Nelson, who came to the Bureau of Survey six years ago, reported for duty at the Cleveland office last week. Fellow workers in the bureau presented her with a traveling bag, a five-pound box of candy and other gifts at a farewell ceremony. Miss Nelson's place has been filled by Miss Ann Vale (F).

A new stabilizer for planes, the operation of which is in the nature of an automatic aileron control, has just been perfected by Carl J. Crane (F), War.

Diary Guest Tickets.

You will receive tickets to one of the following Loew's theaters: F, Loew's Fox (stage, Jolly Coburn and his Rainbow Room Orchestra, Mae "Betty Boop" Questel and other acts; screen, Leslie Banks in "Sanders of the River"); or to P, Loew's Palace (Noel Coward, Julie Hayden and Hope Williams in "The Scoundrel"); or to C, Loew's Columbia (fourth week of Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery in "No More Ladies").

FAN ADDICTS.

All day I listen in amazed surprise;
Stretching my ears and straining my eyes,
Trying to hear and to visualize
The weather remarks—profuse and wise.
My hearing is good, but I can not see
Really and truly for the life of me—
How we'll ever be perspiration-free,
Since Washington summers are never glee.
As they gallop about wringing their hands,
I hear clerks howling for electric fans.
If only they'd work on Samuel's plans,
Or move overseas to foreign lands!

Play Manuscripts Wanted.

Numerous entries have been received in the play-writing contest at Agriculture, which is open to all employes and members of their families. Application blanks may be obtained from J. V. Morrow (C), Bureau of Agricultural Economics. The contest closes August 31, and the winning plays will be presented by the Music and Drama Guild in the autumn. All types of dramatic writing will be eligible, but one-act plays are most desired.

Hugh Arthur Kerwin, Labor, reports he had a pleasant time at the national convention of the Disabled American Veterans at New Haven last week.

Tariff Group Elects.

Tariff Commission Lodge, No. 34, American Federation of Government Employes, has elected officers and delegates for the new fiscal year, as follows:

A. J. T. Meurer (F), president; Fred A. Coolidge, first vice president; Miss Frances H. Simon, second vice president; Miss Lucy H. Lickteig (C), secretary; Eugene G. Wood, treasurer; Charles E. Swihart, sergeant at arms. The foregoing comprise the executive committee in addition to Daniel W. Alexander, John M. Jacobs and A. A. Tennant (C).

Mr. Meurer was named delegate to the national convention in Cincinnati September 9 to 12, with J. Mark Albertson and J. M. P. Donohoe as alternates.

The following were named delegates to the District department: Charles C. Caldabaugh and Samuel W. Pitts; alternates, Miss June O. Plumb and F. H. Smith. Delegates to the Central Labor Union are Ernest S. Shipley, Donald H. Cooper and John M. P. Persson.

A letter mailed recently at Warren, Ohio, addressed simply, "G-Man No. 1," with no postoffice address indicated, was promptly received by J. Edgar Hoover, director, Federal Bureau of Investigation.

$101,000,000 Monthly Pay Roll.

Q. Who is in charge of personnel at the Census Bureau and is a civil service status necessary to obtain a position? "At Liberty."—A. William L. Austin, director, supervises employment at Census Bureau. Civil service status is a prerequisite to appointment for service in the Washington office.

STRANGE as it seems, stamped envelopes and wrappers for postage are older than ordinary postage stamps. The first of these were printed in 1653 when M. de Villayer set up a local postage system for Paris by which letter covers or wrappers were sold at a penny each, good for delivery of the letter within the city.

Mail in this form was deposited in convenient mail boxes, later to be collected and delivered by M. de Villayer's private postmen. Instead of canceling the stamps before delivery, the mailman removed the letter cover when he delivered the letter.

Jacopo Robusti Tintoretto was one of the greatest of the Venetian school of painting. Born in 1518, he studied for a short time under Titian, then left to study with another artist or by himself—biographers do not agree. Some say that the great Titian, seeing in the young man a dangerous potential rival, refused to instruct him—a story which is less difficult to believe when it is remembered that Tintoretto was always an arden admirer of Titian, but never a friend.

Tintoretto painted his great 74x30 feet canvas, called "Paradise," for the Hall of the Grand Council of the Doge, in Venice. In it are 400 life-sized figures.

OF Westbrook Pegler, TIME Magazine remarked, "the most pungent wit . . . the best critical reporting" . . . and these qualities have brought this ace of news-writers and news-commentators to the very forefront of his profession. Beginning Thursday, Pegler will contribute a daily column to The Post!

Westbrook PEGLER

PEGLER'S gift for satirical burlesque is probably unequaled by any American writer since the passing of Ring Lardner. He has become a personality through whom the public savors a new and a fresh viewpoint. Although he first won national fame as a sports writer, his column long ago outgrew the limitations of the strictly sports field. His application of forthright common sense to Washington politics came as a revelation. Readers yelled with delight at the sureness of his touch as he punctured a lot of pretty balloons that were being tossed about during his stay at the Capital. In his column he writes about anything that he likes . . . or dislikes. Watch for it

By virtue of a certain deed of trust executed by Washington Arcade Company, and duly recorded in Liber 8078, folio 179 et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and pursuant to an order for foreclosure and sale thereunder entered by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, on the 19th day of December, 1934, as amended by order of said court dated March 8, 1935, in Equity Cause No. 54772, the undersigned trustee will sell at public auction, in the front entrance of the premises on Fourteenth street, on TUESDAY, JULY 23, 1935, AT TWO O'CLOCK P. M., the following property as set forth and described in said deed of trust: All that tract or parcel of land, together with improvements, easements, rights, ways and appurtenances thereunto belonging, situate, lying and being in the County of Washington, District of Columbia: Lot numbered five hundred and twenty-five (525), in Harry K. Bliss' subdivision of part of lot numbered twenty-nine (29) of John Sherman's subdivision of part of "Mount Pleasant," as per plat recorded in the office of the surveyor for the District of Columbia, in Liber County 17, at folio 14; said property formerly known for purposes of assessment and taxation as lot numbered five hundred and twenty-five (525), in square numbered twenty-six hundred and seventy-four (2674). Lot numbered seven hundred and six (706) in the combination made by New Arcade Company of lot and parts of lot in John Sherman's subdivision of "Pleasant Plains," as per plat of said combination, recorded in the office of the surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber 13, at folio 31, excepting the 7 feet off west 5 feet of said lot condemned and taken for alley purposes by proceedings in District Court Cause No. 1553, in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and shown on plat in said surveyor's office, in Liber 74, at folio 189, and being also known for purposes of assessment and taxation as lot 844, in square 2674; subject to the right of way for alley purposes, as set out and described in agreement recorded in Liber 5178, at folio 114, among the land records of the District of Columbia. Also all furniture, fixtures, engines, boilers, machinery, belting, shafting, tanks, pipes and fittings, electrical apparatus, refrigerating machines, condensers, coolers, tanks, refrigerating boxes, counters, stalls, incinerator, pool tables, billiard tables, bowling alleys, chairs, piano and all accessories and equipment of every description, which The Riggs National Bank, as trustee, as aforesaid, has a right to sell and convey under the terms of said deed of trust. Together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances belonging or in any way appertaining to the aforesaid property, or any part thereof, with the reversion and reversions, remainder and remainders, rents, issues and profits thereof, and all the estate, right, title, interest and claims whatsoever, in law or in equity which The Riggs National Bank, as trustee, as aforesaid, has a right to sell and convey under the terms of said deed of trust. Subject, however, to all existing leases, tenancies and rent agreements, the nature and extent of which will be made known at the time of sale.

TERMS OF SALE: One-fifth of the purchase money to be paid in cash, balance in four equal instalments, payable in one, two, three and four years, with interest at 5 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually from day of sale, secured by deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. A deposit of $10,000 in cash or certified check on a local bank or trust company will be required at time of sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty days after ratification by the court, otherwise the trustee reserves the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited and, without prejudice to the trustee may avail itself of any legal or equitable rights against the defaulting purchaser. Taxes, rents, insurance and water rent to be adjusted to date of sale. The sale hereunder shall be made subject to the ratification by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in said equity cause.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE AND SALE.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DISTRICT of Columbia, holding an Equity Court. David H. Blair, successor trustee under deed of trust dated November 1, 1928, executed by the Cavalier Corporation, plaintiff, vs. The Cavalier Corporation, a corporation, et al., defendants. Equity No. 53668. Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a decree of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, dated March 2, 1934, in the above entitled cause, the undersigned, appointed by said decree as trustee thereinafter called the trustee) to make the sale therein provided, and in accordance with the terms of the aforesaid deed of trust, will offer for sale without valuation, advertisement, redemption or extension, at the front door of the Courthouse of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, in the City of Washington, District of Columbia, on TUESDAY, AUGUST 6, 1935, AT TWO O'CLOCK IN THE AFTERNOON, all of the real estate and personal property which is subject to the lien of the first and refunding deed of trust or mortgage made by the Cavalier Corporation to Columbia Trustee & Register Corporation, corporate trustee, and Daniel R. Crissinger, individual trustee, dated November 1, 1928, and recorded November 23, 1928, in Liber 5254, folio 285 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia (under which said first and refunding mortgage David H. Blair is now successor trustee) or directed by said decree to be sold and therein described as follows: All that certain lot or piece of land situate in the District of Columbia described as follows: Lot numbered forty-three (43) in Morris Cafritz's subdivision of square numbered twenty-six hundred eighty-eight (2688), as per plat recorded in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia in book 81, page 120, together with any and all buildings, improvements and appurtenances now standing upon said land, or any part thereof, and all furnishings, fittings and fixtures of every kind, which the trustee is authorized to sell and convey. The property, both real and personal, in and by the decree directed to be sold shall be sold as an entirety, subject to all taxes and assessments, general or special, a lien upon the mortgaged property, to the lien of a certain underlying deed of trust or mortgage and of certain bonds issued pursuant to and secured thereby, and to the rights of the American Security & Trust Company, as successor trustee thereunder, said deed of trust and bonds being described as follows: Deed of trust dated the 1st day of April 1928, executed by Hilltop Manor, Inc., to G. Bryan Pitts, as trustee, securing an authorized issue of one million four hundred thousand ($1,400,000) dollars first mortgage six and three-quarters (6¾) per cent gold bonds, said mortgage having been duly filed and recorded among the land records of the District of Columbia on the 9th day of April, 1928, in Liber 5726 at folio 284. Of said $1,400,000 principal amount of first mortgage bonds, $1,360,000 principal amount is now outstanding. The property will be sold and by the decree directed to be sold does not include any of said Hilltop Manor first mortgage bonds held by said David H. Blair, successor trustee, as additional security for the bonds of the first and refunding mortgage issue. The property shall be sold to the highest bidder The highest bid for the property shall be received and noted. The successful bidder for the property shall, at the time and place of sale, sign a memorandum of his purchase. The trustee shall receive no bid from anyone offering to bid who shall not at or before the hour of sale, or any adjournment thereof, present to the agent of the trustee conducting the said sale, cash or a certified check on some Washington, D. C., bank in the amount of two thousand five hundred dollars ($2,500.00), or in lieu thereof first and refunding mortgage six and one-half per cent (6½%) coupon gold bonds of The Cavalier Corporation, dated November 1, 1928, secured by the first and refunding mortgage, to foreclose which this action is brought, aggregating in principal amount the sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00), said bonds to have all unpaid coupons attached thereto, for the account of the trustee as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid in case of its acceptance. In case within thirty (30) days after entry of the order confirming the sale, or such additional time as may hereafter be allowed by the Court, the successful bidder shall fail to complete his bid by making the additional payments required on account of the purchase price, or shall fail to comply with any order of this Court with respect thereto, then the sum deposited by such bidder, whether in cash or in bonds, shall be forfeited as a penalty for such failure and shall be applied toward the payment of the expenses of any re-sale and toward making good any deficiency or loss in case the property shall be sold at a less price on such re-sale, or in such other purposes as the Court may direct.

THE TERMS OF SALE shall be one-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash and the balance in two equal instalments, payable in one and two years from the date of sale, to be represented by promissory notes of the purchaser bearing interest at the rate of 6% per annum, payable semi-annually, secured by a deed of trust on the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. All expense of conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., is to be at the cost of the purchaser. The purchaser may make payment on account of the purchase price by turning over to the trustee first and refunding mortgage six and one-half per cent coupon gold bonds secured by the first and refunding mortgage, to have payment on account credited thereon, as more fully set forth in said decree. All such bonds in registered form shall be accompanied by proper documents of transfer. Government by Wire.

By H. I. Phillips.

Telegrams sent to Congress during the consideration of a major issue are not always sincere, Washington has discovered. This is a new high for belated discovery.

* * * *

It seems that in one instance a man used the telephone book and picked names at random for a batch of "indignant messages from outraged citizens." But if Congress thinks only one side was guilty, it is mistaken. The use of telegrams in influencing legislation has become a racket.

* * * *

Government by telegram has been one of the big developments of the past two years. The Senate and House have been large bodies of men entirely engulfed by yellow paper.

* * * *

* * * *

"I think I'll go down to the telegraph office and send a wire to my Senator," says Cyrus Citizen, these nights when he tires of playing with the dog.

"About what?" asks the wife.

"I'm not certain," he replies, "but the telegrapher will probably know a good message to send."

* * * *

The logical development, if the trend is unchecked, will be Form Washington Telegrams. For instance:

No. 1—As a taxpayer I (We) urge you to vote No (Yes) on Bill No.— And many happy returns of the day.

* * * *

No. 2—I (We) are greatly concerned over the possibility of the enactment of the —— bill at this session and kindest regards to your wife and family.

* * * *

No. 3—On this happy occasion our hearts are with you and yours. Be a man and vote No on the Senate amendment to the —— bill.

* * * *

No. 4—Seasonal felicitations and our sincere wishes for continued health and happiness. A vote against the death sentence in the utility bill means your political extinction.

And what's that noise...a humming sound?
This glass door is closed....and I see lights down below... in the pit.

On The Air Today

This being Tuesday again the time has arrived to take another reading on the Stoopnagle and Budd barometer. If I were sitting ringside at their show the last three weeks, since they joined the Warings, I would give them one round and confess rather sadly that the other two had been hopelessly lost.

Despite this, Stoop and Budd remain aces, as far as I am concerned, as radio comics. Inner radio circles persist in the theory that the two boys have failed in some way to jell with the rest of the Waring troupe personalities. It is rather significant, considering that theory, that the Colonel and Budd have always clicked when alone on a program.

Last Tuesday night they did a smart, laugh-provoking show. They sounded more like the Stoop and Budd of two and three years ago. They have the opportunity tonight (WJSV, at 8:30) to raise their average.

* * * *

The Warings tonight will pay their respects to Vincent Youmans, the composer. If the name doesn't mean anything to you at first blush, these titles will help to identify him (and all are on the Warings' program): "Hallelujah," "Sometimes I'm Happy," "Tea for Two," "Without a Song" and "Carioca."

* * * *

WOL will present Rex Sheridan in a series of afternoon radio programs under the billing "Book of Melodies," beginning today at 2:15. Sheridan has an extensive repertoire of light opera and musical comedy selections—and Gilbert and Sullivan things are foremost in his affection. Helen Henry, soprano, will assist the British barytone in duets. It comes from New York.

* * * *

Wasingtonians who remember Virginia Faulkner's writings in The Post a year or so ago will take delight in Jeanette Nolan's "Dramatic Interlude" tonight, WJSV, at 7:30. Miss Faulkner's "Friends and Romans," a best seller of the last year, will provide the script for Miss Nolan's half-hour—the highlight being the dramatization of the scene in which Calliope, the pet goat, intrudes in the lovemaking of Marie and her ardent Italian suitor.

* * * *

Noel Coward's "Bittersweet" will be presented in the Beauty Box Theater, WRC, at 9. . . . Little Jackie Heller sings for Ben Bernie, WRC, at 8, while Bernie's mythical world tour touches England, highlighting a novelty number called "Tallyho." . . . Martha and Hal make their second appearance at WJSV as the Koolmotor Kids, 6:15.

* * * *

Arthur Godfrey's "Gazette" goes back to the warehouse after tonight. Your guess is as good as mine as to what he has in mind doing next. Apparently the "Gazette" is going off the air merely to permit its proprietor to take a vacation. If you hear anyone say he's planning to remove the Godfrey bag of tricks to New York you can stick your tongue in your cheek. Not that he isn't contemplating that move. But no one (including Godfrey himself, I believe) has the remotest idea what will be the next move. In fact, there probably isn't any "next move."

* * * *

You can do a girl a good turn tonight if you hear the four contestants in the Pacemakers' program, WRC, at 10. Last week about 100 girls were auditioned for radio editor judges, who selected the four on the program tonight. The radio audience now has the job of voting for one of the four. The girl who receives the most votes will become permanent soloist with the Pacemakers' orchestra. Two of the girls—Marie Duchon and Kathleen Lawlor—are of the semiclassical type. Marian Meitzler and Kitty Simonds are vendors of popular tunes.

Culbertson on Bridge

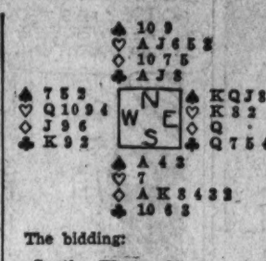
A "Pure" Guess.

A great and justly famous player has said that in contract bridge there is no such thing as a "pure" guess. It is his belief that there is always some clew, however obscure, which the Sherlock Holmes or the Philo Vance of the bridge table will find. Perhaps he is right in the majority of cases, but if Messrs. Vance and Holmes were opponents in the same game the ingenuity of either might well put the deductive powers of the other to enough of a guess to prove that the statement at the beginnnig of this article is no exception to the rule about generalities.

Is There a Detective in the House?

The situation given in today's hand is the most diabolical of all the plays a declarer might make—and puts the defending player to the nearest thing to a pure guess of any in bridge.

South, Dealer.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1◇	Pass	1♡	1♠
Pass	Pass	2♡	Pass
2NT	Pass	3NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

The bidding is a little weird. South was playing for swings in a Howell game and when he passed East's spade overcall, felt it necessary to take strong action after partner's rebid, and despite his singleton, chose two notrump instead of the diamond rebid which he feared North might read as a sign-off.

The Play.

West obediently opened a spade and South, seeing nothing to gain by holding up, won East's Jack with the Ace.

On the law of symmetry he suspected a bad break in diamonds to match his singleton heart, and the drop of East's Queen confirmed his suspicions. Without the slightest hesitation he shot back a low diamond—and West was on the spot.

South's notrump bid might have been six diamonds to the Ace-King and the Ace of spades, but it was equally possible that he held only five diamonds to the Ace, the Ace and King of spades and the Queen of clubs. Partner's overcall might have been five spades to the Queen-Jack and the King-Queen of diamonds, probably with the King of hearts, or the King-Queen-Jack of spades, the King of hearts and the Queen of diamonds alone. In the first case the Jack of diamonds play would be fatal. In the latter, failure to play the Jack would be equally deadly.

It's obvious that whether or not South makes three notrump on the actual hand depends on whether West does or does not come up with the Jack.

If South was Sherlock Holmes, West, Philo Vance you may decide for yourself which master detective won out—probably your answer will depend on whether A. Conan Doyle or S. S. Van Duyne is your favorite author.

Services Tomorrow For Henry Jaeger

Professor, 76, Succumed After Brief Illness.

Funeral services for Prof. Henry Jaeger, 76, nationally prominent musician and one of the founders of the Washington Symphony Orchestra, will be held at his residence, 15 Fourth street southeast, tomorrow at 11 a. m. Burial will be in Prospect Hill Cemetery.

Last summer Prof. Jaeger and his wife, the former Miss Rose Theilkuhl, of Washington, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Prof. Jaeger was a member of Columbia Lodge No. 3, F. A. A. M., Washington Chapter and Columbia Commandery, Knights Templar; Col. James E. Pettit Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, and one of the organizations in the Musicians' Union here.

Besides his wife, he is survived by four children, Capt. Ferdinand H. Jaeger, of Long Island, N. Y.; Dr. Henry W. Jaeger, Victor E. Jaeger and Mrs. Cleveland Richardson, all of Washington.

Roosevelt MakesDonation.

President Roosevelt yesterday allotted $13,500 of work relief funds as a donation to Goshen, Va., for a waterworks system, according to the Associated Press. The grant will cover 45 per cent of the cost, while the town will borrow the remaining 55 per cent from the PWA revolving fund at 4 per cent interest.

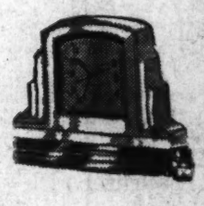
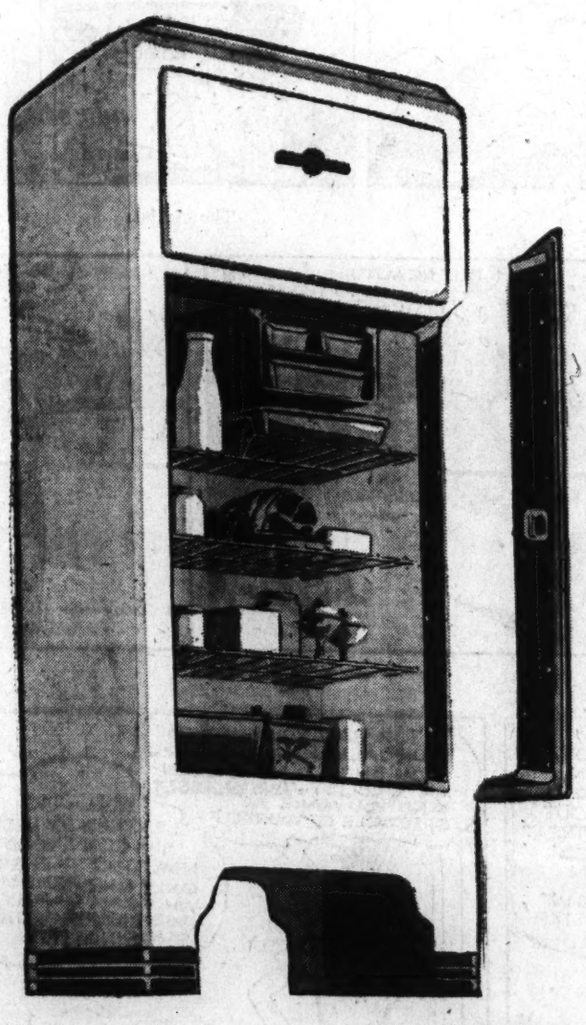
20c a DAY is All You Pay!

Westinghouse



20c a Day in the Electric Clock furnished with every Westinghouse, is a convenient means of accumulating your monthly payments. It isn't obligatory, however, because the clock works on a separate current and may be used in any room.



5 Years' Guaranteed Protection!

The hermetically-sealed mechanism of every Westinghouse is protected for 5 years from date of purchase, for the nominal sum of $5 which is included in the purchase price. This means that if at any time within that 5 years the mechanism becomes faulty it will be replaced with a new one without charge.

Plus small carrying charge if purchased on the Budget Plan.

Here's the gleaming white guardian of your health, its sleek, streamlined countours a credit to the most modern kitchen. Seven degrees of freezing . . . an over-sized, fast-freezing cooling unit . . . scads of ice cubes at any hour of the day or night. All this for only 20c a day.

Smaller than the other, but large enough to provide every refrigerating need of the average family. The same 5 years protection as the larger model and ready to provide you with cooling drinks and delicious hot-weather dessert at a moment's notice. Yours for just 20c a day
